PEACE RATIFIED IN BERLIN

GIVE FAREWELL COCKTAIL FETE FOR MOLOTOV

Russian Happy at Frisco Victory

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 8—Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov was preparing today to take plane for Moscow with unconcealed satisfaction in the success he has achieved here in protecting and furthering the interests of the soviet union.

During the fortnight he has been here Molotov has been the towering figure of the conference to abolish war. His yea or nay has shaped the structure of the new league of nations to enforce peace in the form desired by Moscow—to aggrandize Russia and spread the gospel of communism thruout the world.

Litvinov's Triumph Recalled

Not a few of those delegates of the big powers whom he has bested in the negotiations behind doors ruefully concede that he wields a subtle diplomacy. He goes home almost as triumphant as Maxim Litvinov, who left the White House in 1933 after getting Mr. Roosevelt's recognition of the soviet union and burst into a Russian embassy cocktail party with the exclamation: "They gave me everything I asked for."

Thruout his stay the crowds have followed the short, stocky Russian with the round head, broad face, scraggly mustache and happy, inscrutable smile, and choked the corridors of the St. Francis hotel for a mere glimpse of the mysterious celebrity, while other bigwigs passed unnoticed and unknown.

Farewell Cocktail Party

While the Russian delegation threw a cocktail party in honor of Molotov and his departure, these controversial issues faced the conference's commissions and committees as they completed organization and got down to business:

1. Whether the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine is to be exempted from the provision requiring previous permission of the security council to take regional action against an aggressor.

2. Whether any one of the big five powers — the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, and France—is to have power to veto use of force to curb aggression and even to prevent arbitration or investigation of an international dispute in behalf of a nation it favors.

3. Whether the league is to have power to attack treaties or prior international decisions, like the partition of Poland, that threaten the preservation of peace.

4. Whether there is to be a system of trusteeship of conquered territory under which the United States could have exclusive control of the Pacific islands, taken from Japan, for naval bases.

The steering committee decided today that procedure in the com-

RUSH TO GRAB GERMAN LANDS IS ON AT FRISCO

San Francisco, Cal., May 8 (AP)—Germany's unconditional surrender opened the floodgates tonight for territorial claims against the third reich which eventually may divide more than one-third of her pre-war land holdings among the allies.

Altho the carve-up of Germany has no place in the allied conference here, some European delegations have taken the opportunity to make known their claims.

Long Occupation Due

The spheres of allied military occupation, which are expected to be taken over shortly, have been agreed upon for several months, and many here believe the big allied powers will occupy Germany for at least six years, possibly longer. Others have contended the occupation must endure for at least a quarter of a century to teach the Germans that war does not pay.

Several European countries have let it be known that they actually want German territory.

Dutch Foreign Minister Eelco van Kleffens announced here several days ago that his government had reserved the right to claim the German province of Frisia.

The Belgians are interested in a small strip of land along their border.

The Moscow declaration of British-United States-soviet foreign ministers said Austria should be independent in the post-war world.

It seems safe to assume that Czechoslovakia's pre-war frontiers will be restored.

Poland has put in a claim for East Prussia, and the Warsaw Polish government has raised the question of extending Poland's western frontier to the river Oder to include Stettin. The Big Three have decided that Russia's own western frontier shall be extended to the Curzon line.

The French have demanded all of Germany west of the Rhine.

Danes May Get Some

Diplomatic quarters in London have heard that Prime Minister Churchill has proposed a four power rule over the Rhineland and Ruhr as a separate political and economic entity.

There also was the belief that southern Schleswig and north Frisia might be awarded to Denmark as a move to internationalize the Kiel canal.

Many allied sources believe Germany will lose the naval strongpoint of Helgoland.

Renew Pearl Harbor Quiz

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—Adm. Henry K. Hewitt has been assigned by Navy Secretary Forrestal to conduct the secretary's continuing investigation of the Pearl Harbor catastrophe, it was learned today.

Hewitt, whose home is in Hackensack, N. J., until recently was commander of the 8th fleet and United States naval forces in Northwest African waters. He has been relieved to take his new post.

Forrestal announced last Dec. 1 that the navy's formal court of inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster had developed no evidence to warrant trial by general court martial of "any person or persons in the naval service."

Forrestal Not Satisfied

The secretary said, however, he was not satisfied that the investigation had gone "to the point of exhaustion of all possible evidence."

"Accordingly," the announcement added, "he [the secretary] has decided that his own investigation should be further continued. . . ."

Forrestal noted "errors of judgment on the part of certain officers in the naval service, both at Pearl Harbor and at Washington."

Decorated for Service

Prior to his North African assignment in the spring of 1943 Hewitt commanded amphibious forces of the Atlantic fleet. As commander of naval forces in the landings at French Morocco he won the navy's distinguished service medal and the army's distinguished service medal.

He received the gold star in lieu of a second such medal as commander of the 8th fleet in the Sicilian and Italian landings. The army awarded an oak leaf cluster in lieu of a second such medal for his services in the invasion of southern France.

Cries of Dying Spoil V-E Day for Okinawa

BY GORDON COBBLEDICK

OKINAWA, May 8 (AP)—We stood in the rain this morning and heard the voice from San Francisco, only half believing.

"Confirmed by Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters," the voice was saying. "Prime Minister Churchill proclaimed May 8 as V-E day."

Artillery thundered and the planes roared low overhead and we couldn't hear all that the voice was saying.

"President Truman—Marshal Stalin announced—the Canadian government at Ottawa—unauthorized announcement—American News agency——"

Different in Okinawa

So this was V-E day. It was V-E day in the United States and Great Britain and Russia but on Okinawa the ambulances skidded thru the sticky mud and bounced over rutted rocky coral roads.

Some of the men who rode them gritted their teeth behind bloodless lips and let no cry escape them.

Some stared into space thru eyes that were dull with the look of men to whom nothing mattered greatly. Some screamed with pain that the morphine couldn't still. And some lay very quiet under ponchos that covered their faces.

It was V-E day at home but on Okinawa men shivered in foxholes half filled with water and waited for the command to move forward across the little green valley that was raked from both ends by machine gun fire.

It was V-E day, but on Okinawa a very young marine cried like a frightened child and his voice rose shrilly, "I can't stand it any more. O, God, I can't stand it."

No Good Up There

A grizzled sergeant watched him for a minute, half in compassion, half in contempt, and then called, "Corpsman, take him back. He's no good up here."

On Okinawa a flame throwing tank lumbered across a narrow plain toward an enemy pillbox. From a cave a gun spat viciously, and the tank stopped and burst into fire.

When the crewmen clambered out machine guns chattered and they fell face forward in the mud and were still.

It was V-E day everywhere, but on Okinawa the forests of white crosses grew, and boys who had hardly begun to live died miserably in the red clay of this hostile land.

RAISE RIVER'S LEVEL TO LET SHIP PASS THRU

Diversion of Lake Michigan water thru the Chicago river was increased to more than 5,000 cubic second feet for three hours after 3 p. m. yesterday to raise the river level and provide sufficient water for the lake steamer, O. S. McFarland, heavily loaded with sulphur, to pass thru the river.

The Chicago river channel is 22 or more feet deep, but at some places the river has filled to a depth slightly less. The McFarland was drawing 21 feet under its heavy load, so the river level had to be raised approximately six inches to insure clearance for the ship.

Normal diversion for May is about 2,000 cubic second feet, slightly more than the yearly average of 1,500 cubic second feet. Recent rains had caused such an increased flow in the lower parts of the drainage canal that the Chicago river diversion had been reduced to prevent backing of river water into the lake from the Calumet Sag canal. This lowered the Chicago river level.

Tokyo Radio Tells Japs of Germany's Surrender

San Francisco, Cal., May 8 (AP)—The Japanese people were told today of the unconditional surrender of their last axis partner, Germany. The usually voluble Tokyo radio was tight-lipped as to the reaction in a home broadcast, but announced a "now or never" appeal by Adm. Teijiro Toyoda, munitions minister, for increased aircraft production.

Long Beach, Cal., May 8 [Special]—First love triumphed today in the modern "Enoch Arden" problem of Mrs. Helen Goad MacDowell, 23, who suddenly discovered she has two service men husbands.

After wrestling with her domestic tangle for three days, she decided she wants "the man I've always loved," her first husband, Lt. Harold W. Goad, 27, an army pilot officially declared dead but recently found very much alive in a Rangoon hospital.

She will obtain an annulment of her second marriage to Ensign Robert MacDowell of Saugerties, N. Y., whom she wed four months ago after being informed Goad was dead.

Hopes He Wants Her

To Lt. Goad, who had termed his wife's remarriage his "roughest deal," she already had sent a cablegram saying: "Darling, am so glad to hear you are alive. Will see you soon. I love you with all my heart."

"I hope he feels the same way about me," the perplexed young wife said today. "But I know he must, and that everything will be all right."

The petite blonde and the young army officer were sweethearts in Portsmouth, O., their home town. They were married in April, 1942. Then he went away to war, to pilot a bomber in the Pacific theater.

Goad's plane exploded over Japanese held Burma on Oct. 14, 1943. Other flyers said Goad was blown thru the roof and couldn't have lived. When he had been missing a year the war department reported him dead.

The young "widow" met Ensign MacDowell in Florida last summer. She said she remembered Goad's wish that "if anything ever happened to him to go ahead and remarry some good man." She and the ensign were married last December in Long Beach.

Goad Gets "Worst" News

When the British took Rangoon recently they liberated Lt. Goad, who had lived thru the explosion and been held 18 months in Japanese captivity. But his return from an official grave plunged him into a situation he said was worse than "anything I have been thru."

"He may think my feeling is only sympathy but I mean it with all my heart," his wife said as she prepared to leave for the home of her parents in Portsmouth to await a telephone call from Lt. Goad.

She said she still felt that her second husband is "a grand person," adding, "I'm sure he'll understand."

FIELD MARSHAL KEITEL ACCEPTS TERMS IN PRESENCE OF ZHUKOV

Red Army Seizes Dresden; Pushes On as War Ends

LONDON, May 9 [Wednesday]—(AP)—The Russians, fighting thru the last day of the war, yesterday captured the Saxon capital of Dresden and won final hour victories in southern Germany, Austria, and Czechoslovakia, while Czechoslovak Partisans hoisted the free flag of the republic over liberated Prague.

The Red army's battle against the Germans apparently went on until the official deadline for the end of all hostilities—12:01 a. m. London time [5:01 p. m. Chicago time].

Surrender in Dodecanese

Meanwhile one of the Germans' most far flung resistance points disappeared yesterday when the German commander of the Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean sea, Gen. Wagener, surrendered. About 10,000 troops under his command gave up their arms. There was no word from Crete—the only remaining Nazi outpost in the Mediterranean.

Another last minute victory was won by Marshal Tito's Yugoslav army of national liberation which liberated the Croatian city of Zagreb, last of the puppet capitals once forming part of Hitler's fallen European empire.

[The Paris radio broadcast an unconfirmed report today that German holdout garrisons in the French channel ports of Lorient and La Rochelle had surrendered and that French troops have entered both cities.]

Fanatics Fire Prague

"Cease fire" was ordered in Prague, in flames from wanton Nazi destruction, at 7:25 p. m. [London time], altho a few Nazi fanatics continued to loot and fire the Czechoslovak capital. Late broadcasts from the city said that some German troops—who now become outlaws outside the scope of international law—were shelling Prague's hospitals and had set fire to historic Hradcany castle, for centuries the symbol of Czechoslovak national life.

In successive orders of the day, followed by four, five, and seven hours, the victory proclamations of President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill, Marshal Stalin announced the capture of Dresden, the fall of the Czechoslovak city of Olmuetz [Olomouc], and the seizure of four strongholds in Czechoslovakia and Austria between Prague and Vienna. Dresden fell to the 1st Ukrainian army.

The soviet operational war bulletin—probably Moscow's last—also announced that soviet forces had surged into the Czechoslovak province of Bohemia from Saxony and had captured Most [Bruex], 43 miles northwest of Prague.

ALLIED CONTROL BOARD REACHES OSLO BY PLANE

OLSO, Norway, May 8 (AP)—An allied control commission for Norway arrived in Oslo in British flying boats shortly before nightfall tonight in the midst of Norway's celebration of her liberation.

After five years of German occupation, Norway's reception of freedom was fervent but peaceful, altho there were unofficial reports that Vidkun Quisling, premier of the Nazi puppet government, and Josef Terboven, German commissioner for Norway, had been seized by the home front.

Huge crowds jammed Oslo's main squares hoping to see the members of the control commission whose chief has not yet been identified. The people also were excited by rumors that Crown Prince Olaf also might arrive by plane.

Twenty-four hours after the news of unconditional German surrender had reached the populace there was no report of any shooting either in the capital or elsewhere.

Day of Celebration

Oslo's inhabitants, however, participated in daylong demonstrations, marching and cheering.

Norwegian flags, never displayed during the occupation, were flying everywhere.

Jubilant crowds greeted allied and neutral correspondents who traveled to the capital by train from the Swedish frontier. Many of the people lined along the railway were crying openly. At every crossing, every farmhouse, and every village and town the joyous people sang over and over again their national anthem, "Yes, We Love Our Country."

Quisling, whose name became a part of the English language as a synonym for treason, was reported at patriot headquarters to have been surprised on his estate near Oslo at 3 a. m. and interned by home front guards. The same report said Terboven was taken at the same time. Neither report was official.

Start Quisling Roundup

The home front, which carried on an underground battle thruout the occupation, was known to have started a full-scale roundup of quislings, but apparently there was no hurry about this procedure. It seemed to be taken for granted that there was no place for the Nazis to flee.

Rumors spread thru Oslo's streets that British warships were anchored in the Oslo fjord and the people expected that a British force would land and march into the capital.

[A correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet reported that a British fleet was at anchor 10 miles from Oslo.]

'Festival of Victory' Declared Today in Moscow

PARIS, May 9 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Germany bowed today to the most crushing defeat ever inflicted upon a nation, her abject surrender proclaimed to the world by the United States, Britain, and Russia.

The Moscow radio in behalf of Premier Marshal Stalin, whose Red armies broke the armed might of Hitler's reich on the eastern front, announced the unconditional surrender to the Russian people at 1:10 a. m. today, 10 hours and 10 minutes after President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill proclaimed V-E day.

The announcement said the final articles of capitulation were signed yesterday in Berlin, the ruined capital symbolic of the fall of the third reich.

Keitel Signs for Germans

Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, signed the articles in the presence of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, assistant commander of the Red armies; Air Chief Marshal Tedder [British], deputy supreme commander in the west; Gen. Spaatz, chief of the United States strategic air forces in Europe, and Lt. Gen. De Tassigny, commander of the French 1st army.

For Germany it was crowning ignominy—Keitel, whose armies all but mastered Europe, forced to sign in the ashes of Germany's first city surrender articles which stripped the reich of its last vestige of military strength.

The guns of Europe, which thru five years, eight months, and seven days of unexampled war inflicted possibly 40 million casualties, fell silent at one minute past midnight today [5:01 p. m. Tuesday, eastern war time].

Actually, guns on the western front were stilled yesterday to prevent further bloodshed as the allied world celebrated V-E day 11 months and two days after Gen. Eisenhower's armies stormed into France.

"Festival of Victory"

The Moscow radio said that "in honor of the victorious conclusion of the great patriotic war of the soviet people against the German fascist invaders and the historic Red army victory that has been gained and that has been ended by the complete defeat of the German army which declared unconditional capitulation, May 9 will be a festival of victory."

Announcement of the capitulation ended the Russian warfare on the east front where the conflict with German forces in Czechoslovakia, in Austria, and in the resistance pockets of Courland [Latvia] and the Vistula estuary continued up to the last minute.

Moscow had ignored the V-E day observed by Britain, America, and the other allied nations.

With the signing of the capitulation, Russia became the only one of the big four among the allied nations at peace with the world. The United States, Britain, and China still had the war with Japan. With them in this war were 34 other nations while five more had broken diplomatic relations with the Japanese.

Order Issued in Prague

The last shot on the western front was fired in Czechoslovakia by the 80th infantry division of Gen. Patton's 3d army, the last to remain in action. Patton issued his cease fire order at 8 a. m. yesterday [1 a. m., Chicago war time].

The Nazis in Czechoslovakia—agreed to the terms of unconditional surrender, and a "cease fire" order was issued in Prague at 12:55 p. m. [Chicago war time].

The allied final terms were signed at 2:41 a. m., Monday [British double summer time, 7:41 p. m. Sunday, Chicago war time] in a red brick schoolhouse in Reims, which for months had been Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters.

Hitler Body Found, Says Red Officer

LONDON, May 8 (AP)—Dispatches from the British 2d army front said today a Russian general had disclosed that a body purporting to be that of Adolf Hitler had been found by Red army troops in the ruins of Berlin.

There was no confirmation from the soviet capital. Moscow dispatches said Russian troops still were searching for Hitler's body. The Germans said Hitler died May 1 in his vast underground headquarters.

During a meeting two days ago between Field Marshal Montgomery and Marshal Rokossovsky, dispatches said, Russian officers asked Col. Anotoly Pilugin, Tass agency war correspondent attached to the British 2d army, whether the British believed Hitler was dead or alive.

Servants View Body

Pilugin was said to have replied that there was mixed opinion and then a Russian general, whose identity Pilugin did not disclose, stated flatly that the Russians had found the bullet torn and battered body of a man identified as Hitler.

All except one of Hitler's servants were said to have identified the dead man as Hitler. The one said that the body was that of one of Hitler's cooks. The servant said he believed the "cook double," whom he knew intimately, had been assassinated while Hitler escaped.

The general was reported to have told Pilugin that bodies supposedly of Propaganda Minister Goebbels and his wife and children also had been discovered, but Goebbels' was so badly burned it was not recognizable.

Asserts Himmler in Denmark

Gen. Adm. Friedeburg, commander in chief of the German navy, told allied officers after Germany's surrender in Reims that there was "no doubt about Hitler's death."

He said Gestapo Chief Himmler had fled for Denmark and was very probably near Grand Adm. Doenitz' command post in Flensburg, near the Danish frontier. Goering also has been reported with Doenitz.

had been first reported to the world 24 hours before the official proclamation of V-E day, by Edward Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press staff on the western front.

In a ringing order of the day, Eisenhower told his armies: "The crusade on which we embarked in the early summer of 1944 has reached its glorious conclusion."

In a special message to allied prisoners of war, Eisenhower said they must remain where they were for the present, but, "Your return home will be organized as speedily as feasible."

German forces, which once held nearly all Europe in their iron grip, thus knuckled to the "unconditional surrender" formula dictated by Churchill and the late President Roosevelt at Casablanca.

Under the stern formula, Germany's guns are at rest, her air fleets are yielded, and her warships, U-boats, and merchantmen at sea are headed toward allied ports to give up.

Surrenders All Forces.

Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl, German chief of staff, former Hitler favorite, signed the surrender document at Reims for Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, successor as head of the prostrate reich to the dead or missing Hitler.

Jodl surrendered unconditionally to "the supreme commander, allied expeditionary force, and simultaneously to the soviet high command all forces on land, sea, and in the air who are at this date under German control."

Now the full power of the United States and Britain will be loosed against Japan. Seventy veteran United States combat divisions in Europe alone are released.

Eisenhower's commanders already on this official V-E day were turning their attention toward the Pacific.

"The war in Europe is won, but the war in the Pacific is still before us," said Adm. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in Europe.

"Like Germany, Japan must be completely and irretrievably beaten. Now we stand at the great noontide of our objective. We cannot—we dare not—rest until the task before us is completed."

Affects 4 Million U. S. Soldiers

Because of Japan, surrender in Europe cannot have the meaning it might have for the 4 million United States soldiers in Europe who helped to win the great victory.

For most of them the war will only change scenery. For others Victory in Europe means a job of occupying the torn and humbled reich, shot with hate, hunger and disease.

The United States 15th army becomes the American army of occupation, but at least for a few months dozens of other divisions will be needed for policing and bringing order out of Germany's chaos.

Even for the soldiers who may go home there will be weeks, even months of waiting because of the drain of transport to feed men, guns, tanks and supplies into the intensified war on Japan.

The precise fate of beaten Germany was not included in the surrender terms and it perhaps is possible that her conquerors do not yet know what they will be.

This was the crowning act five years, eight months, and six days after Germany marched into Poland Sept. 1, 1939, touching off the second World war.

From D-Day to V-E Day

Hitler's legions were masters of western Europe and stood on guard behind what they thought was the impregnable Atlantic wall of fortress Europe when Eisenhower's armies landed on the beaches of Normandy June 6, 1944.

From D-day to V-E day, these armies:

Landed at a point where Hitler boasted invasion was foredoomed.

Drove 700 miles across Europe.

Liberated France, Belgium, Holland, Luxemburg, Denmark, Norway, and overran most of Germany, much of Austria and part of Czechoslovakia.

Shattered the Atlantic wall and the Siegfried line.

Crossed the Rhine and trapped more than 300,000 German troops in the Ruhr in the greatest double envelopment in military history.

Closed up to the Elbe river, crossed it, and joined with the Russians, who had beaten back 1,400 miles from Stalingrad and captured Berlin, the world's fourth largest city and greatest metropolis ever taken by storm.

The warplanes of five air forces gained complete mastery of the skies by driving the once dreaded German air force out of existence.

Victorious Yanks Shrug, Go About Chores as V-E Day Arrives in Anti-Climactic Style

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ., Germany, May 8—Germans wept. A few ex-Hitler slaves cheered feebly. And American fighting men, who had carried a big load all the way thru, just shrugged their shoulders and went on with whatever they were doing.

The greatest war in history had been officially declared at an end. And that is the way the news came to these parts of Germany conquered by Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army. To the Yanks it was an event long anticipated but which came as an anti-climax.

For this war, like none other, has just petered out. It faded away in a series of crushing German collapses. It ended with no fanfare of trumpets, just a few shrugs, a few comments, and nothing else.

Down near Krondorf, Czechoslovakia, the war ended for the famous 1st division yesterday morning. And it ended in the same way there as it did for other units which were not in the line. Only the 1st division was in the line where it had been longer than any other unit on the western front.

Fought French at Oran

This was the division which landed Nov. 8, 1942, near Oran, French North Africa. It fought the French there and then in Tunisia it fought the Germans until that campaign was won.

This was the division which then went on to spearhead the Sicilian invasion. Then it went back to England, refitted, and spearheaded the Normandy invasion, landing on bloody Omaha beach June 6, 1944.

This was the division which swept across France, leaving its dead and wounded. It fought thru Belgium, cracked the Siegfried line, and fought long, bloody miles across Germany, across the Rhine and down into Czechoslovakia. And this is the way the war ended for the division which now has only a handful of the men who started the war back there in Africa.

Last Shot Near Krondorf

At 8:15 yesterday morning division headquarters received a teletype message from corps headquarters, which read: "Cease forward action and take all defensive security possible. This order effective immediately."

The last shot of the 1st division in this war was fired as far as we could check at 9 a. m. near Krondorf by company L, 26th infantry. There was some rifle fire around a road block but the fight ended quickly and no Americans were hurt.

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

U. S. 3D ARMY IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, May 8—America's conquest of the Nazis is completed. There is a sigh of relief from the half million men in this largest army in history, but their jubilation is tempered by the prospects of service in the orient or in policing Europe.

Cease firing was ordered at 8 a. m. yesterday; the G. I.'s knew what it meant. The men, weary from battle anxiety and physical fatigue, were stricken with homesickness rather than joy, and they were pessimistic about their immediate futures.

"I just want to go home and leave it all behind," said Pvt. Joe Connor, son of Chicago police Lt. Patrick Connor, who was directing traffic at a military bridge over the Isar river.

He Would Go to U. of I.

"The war will be over for me," said Pvt. Robert Laroy, 18, former 6 foot 6 center of the Wheaton [Ill.] High school basketball team, "when I can enter the University of Illinois.

"My immediate concern is whether I have become a father," said Capt. Jamie Retchless of 648 Burton ct., Whiting, Ind. "In the last letter from my wife she said she was expecting a baby about April 1 and that it might be twins."

[Mrs. Retchless, from her home in Whiting, told The Tribune that an 8 pound 7 ounce boy was born on April 24 and that both she and the new baby were "fine." The boy was named Jamie Edwin. "Tell the captain," she said, "that 'we all love you and hurry home.'" Mr. Foust will so inform Retchless.]

Capt. Harold [Moon] Mullins, a regular army veteran from Roanoke, Va., introduced other Chicagoland residents in the squadron:

Lt. William Mulder of South Holland, "the best damn tank maintenance man in the army"; Sgt. William Larsen of 311 S. Cicero av., Chicago, "a stretcher bearer who has borne many," and Corp. Chris Hansen of Glencoe, "the mail clerk who's always late with the mail."

Others from Chicago Area

Others were Sgt. Clarence Crandell of Decatur, Ill.; Staff Sgt. Albert Kosiek of 2855 Hillock av., Chicago; Corp. Albert Rosenthal of 5619 N. Christiana av., Chicago; Pvt. Leonard W. Baruch of 2330 S. Christiana av., Chicago.; Sgt. Floyd C. Meseke of Vandalia, Ill.; Sgt. Francis Cyphers of 112 W. 8th av., Gary, Ind.; Sgt. Fred Beckett of 4047 Gladys av., Chicago, and Pfc. Louis Cavada of 1102 Champlain av., Chicago.

"We are thankful that we have survived and pray that the Americans in the Pacific will be as fortunate," said Capt. John A. Barney of Roseburg, Ore., chaplain with the most easterly post in the European theater.

At 3d army headquarters, more than 100 miles by air from this outpost, Gen. Patton, in polished helmet, beribboned blouse and jodhpurs, held what he said was his final press conference, two and a half years to the day since he landed in Africa. He referred pridefully to the statistics of his army's accomplishments as compared with losses.

BERCHTESGADEN, May 8—Two hundred American big guns fired a salvo over Berchtesgaden tonight. And as the roar echoed and re-echoed thru the Bavarian Alps there was accomplished the salute to the end of the war.

The lanyards were pulled by the men of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel's 3d infantry division which had captured Berchtesgaden in the smashing finale of the 7th army's campaign. After the artillery show, Iron Mike O'Daniel and his ranks stood at attention while taps for the division's dead and the Star Spangled Banner were played.

V day was of course a day of gladness on this front but it was tempered by the realization that yet another V day must be won—in the Pacific. Many of the soldiers were asking today, "What are they going to do with us now?"

What Theater? Is Query

They wanted to know if they were going to the China-Burma-India theater or to the forces attacking Japan from the ocean.

Some of the men, who have not been overseas long, are certain that they will be shifted to another sector of war. But all would be much happier if they had stays at home.

There was little, if any, let-up in military routine. Discipline did not relax noticeably. But it is difficult to keep the GIs from celebrating, and even in convoys on the jammed roads they found time to pull the corks from champagne bottles.

There was so much champagne around that if a cork would not pull easily a GI would throw away the bottle and pick up another and another until he found one with a non-rebellious cork.

Religious Services Held

The men of the 42d [Rainbow] infantry division attended religious services in their bivouac area in the Alps. They offered thanksgiving and bowed their heads in memory of the comrades no longer with them.

At one ceremony in a dandelion-studded field chaplains of three faiths stood by a small white ark on which reposed the Christian cross and the Hebrew torah. The flags of the 48 states were displayed in a big semi-circle behind the ark.

Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins of Chicago, the divisional commander, speaking briefly, gave thanks that "the happiness of peace and the strength of God shall again rule the world."

Then Gen. Devers, commander of the 6th army group, in an order of the day, reviewed the campaign of nearly nine months, from the beaches of the Riviera to Berchtesgaden and the Brenner Pass.

BROWNOUT ENDS; OTHER BANS DUE TO BE REMOVED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 8—The "brown-out" order, which has prohibited outdoor electric illumination thruout most of the nation since Feb. 1, was revoked today with the formal announcement of victory in Europe. The lifting of the lighting ban by the war production board's office of war utilities marked the first government action toward removing civilian restrictions not needed in the war against Japan.

Fred M. Vinson, director of war mobilization and reconversion, will make public tomorrow a statement of general policy covering the period until Japan is defeated. Vinson's post-V-E day blueprint will outline plans for munitions and civilian production, and the rationing, price, wage, and man power controls to be kept in effect by the various federal agencies. The policy statement is expected to announce the lifting of the midnight curfew and horse racing ban within a few days.

In removing the "brown-out" restriction, Edward Falck, OWU director, said the order saved 500,000 tons of coal.

B-29S HAMMER KYUSHU; MEET NO OPPOSITION

GUAM, May 8 (AP)—Crews returning from today's B-29 raid on Kyushu reported an utter lack of air opposition and no anti-aircraft fire.

Targets of the attack, the 18th on the Japanese home island since March 27, were identified as industrial areas in the cities of Miyakonjo and Imabari and the Oitu and Kubu air fields.

All planes of the "substantial" raiding force returned to their bases in the Marianas.

Tokyo radio also reported an aerial attack on Shikoku, and said American Mustang fighters and "a few B-29s" struck at air fields and munitions plants in the Tokyo area around noon [10 p. m. Monday, Chicago time]. These reports were not confirmed.

EISENHOWER'S PROCLAMATION PRAISES TROOPS

PARIS, May 8 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower's proclamation on Germany's unconditional surrender:

"In 1943 the late President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill met in Casablanca. There they pronounced the formula of unconditional surrender for the axis powers. In Europe that formula has now been fulfilled. The allied force which invaded Europe on June 6, 1944, has, with its great Russian allies and the forces advancing from the south, utterly defeated the Germans on land, sea, and air. This unconditional surrender has been achieved by team work, team work not only among all the allies participating but among all the services, land, sea, and air.

"To every subordinate that has been in this command of almost 5,000,000 allies, I owe a debt of gratitude that can never be repaid. The only repayment that can be made to them is the deep appreciation and lasting gratitude of all the free citizens of all the united nations."

ALLIED TERMS OF SURRENDER ARE ANNOUNCED

Instructions to German Navy Revealed

PARIS, May 8 (AP)—The text of "an act of military surrender" as announced today at supreme headquarters:

"1. We, the undersigned, acting by authority of the German high command, hereby surrender unconditionally to the supreme commander, allied expeditionary force, and simultaneously to the soviet high command all forces on land, sea, and in the air who are at this date under German control.

"2. The German high command will at once issue orders to all German military, naval, and air authorities and to all forces under German control to cease active operations at 2301 hours [11:01 p. m.] central European time on eight May, and to remain in the positions occupied at the time. No ship, vessel, or aircraft is to be scuttled, or any damage done to their hull, machinery, or equipment.

"3. The German high command will at once issue to the appropriate commanders, and ensure the carrying out of any further orders issued by the supreme commander, allied expeditionary force and by the soviet high command.

Warns of Punitive Action

"4. This act of military surrender is without prejudice to, and will be superseded by any general instrument of surrender imposed by, or on behalf of the united nations and applicable to Germany and the German armed forces as a whole.

"5. In the event of the German high command or any of the forces under their control failing to act in accordance with this act of surrender, the supreme commander, allied expeditionary force, and the soviet high command will take such punitive or other action as they deem appropriate.

"Signed at Reims, France, at 0241 hours [2:41 a. m.] on the seventh day of May, 1945.

"On behalf of the German high command—Jodl.

"In the presence of:

"On behalf of the supreme commander, allied expeditionary force, W. B. Smith; on behalf of the soviet high command, Ivan Susloparoff; on behalf of the French, F. Sevez."

Naval Surrender Terms

Supreme headquarters issued this statement on the "naval terms of surrender":

"The following statement deals with the manner in which the German navy was being surrendered to the allies.

"For the information of the public, it may be stated that all German and German controled warships, auxiliaries, merchant ships and other craft at sea are being ordered to report their positions in plain language to the nearest allied wireless telegraph station, and are being given orders to proceed to such allied ports as directed. They will remain in those ports until further directions are received.

"All warships, auxiliaries, merchant ships, and other craft in harbor are being ordered to remain in harbor.

Orders to U-Boats

"U-boats at sea are being ordered to surface, to fly a black flag or pennant and report their position in plain language to the nearest allied wireless telegraph station. They will then proceed on the surface to such port as may be directed.

"All warships and merchant ships, whether in port or at sea, are being instructed to train all weapons fore and aft. Breech blocks will be removed and torpedo tubes will be unloaded.

"In harbor, all ammunition, explosives, torpedo warheads, and all portable weapons will be landed. Mine sweeping vessels and salvage vessels, tho similarly disarmed, will be instructed to complete with fuel, if necessary, and to prepare themselves immediately for mine sweeping or salvage service as directed.

"Instructions will be given for boom defenses at ports and harbors to be kept open. Demolition charges and controled mines and minefields at all ports and harbors are to be rendered ineffective.

"All personnel will be ordered to remain either on board their ships or in their establishments until other directions are received."

A FLAG WITH 11 STARS IS MOM'S V-E DAY BANNER

Celebrate? No! She'll Wait for V-J Day

Victory's in the Heir!

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 8 (AP)—A son born to Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Bankston on this victory in Europe day was V. E. [for Victor Eugene].

Denver, Colo., May 8 (AP)—One of the first babies born in Denver on V-E day was the seventeenth child of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bernard. Her name? Victoria, of course.

Mrs. Frances Evans Dyke, 45, celebrated V-E day yesterday by hanging a service flag with 11 stars in the front window of her basement apartment at 733 N. Elizabeth st. The stars are for her 11 sons in service. She has four more at home.

Mrs. Dyke took the flag out of the window several months ago because it "caused a lot of talk." The talk, and people pointing to the window, embarrassed Mrs. Dyke.

But yesterday was different. It was V-E day, and proudly she hung the flag back in the window for everybody to see, altho she didn't consider it in the nature of a celebration.

She'll Wait Till It's All Over

"I guess I'll wait till it's all over, and then I'll celebrate," she said.

Mrs. Dyke lives at the Elizabeth st. address with her second husband, Peter Dyke, and their four sons, Peter, 6; Franklin, 5; Arthur, 4, and Richard, 2. The 11 sons in service were born of her first marriage in Salida, Colo. She corresponds with three of them, but relies for news of the others on the Red Cross office at Leadville, Colo.

They are Pvts. Joseph, John, and Steven Evans, 30, triplets; Sgt. James and Pvt. Martin Evans, 28, twins; Pvts. Gene and Albert Evans, 26, twins; Tom and George Evans, 24, twins; Jack, 20, and William Evans, 19.

Wed at 13; Widowed at 29

Married at 13, Mrs. Dyke was widowed at 29 and came to Chicago in 1936. Her sons by her first marriage remained with her mother, Mrs. Frances Krobich, who died last year at the age of 82.

Mrs. Dyke knows that John is an army cook in Germany, that James is with the marines in the Pacific, and that Albert is with the army in France, because they write to her. The Red Cross tells her that Steven and Martin are in the Pacific, Joseph in Germany, William and Gene in France, Tom and George in Belgium, and Jack in the navy.

She sees nothing unusual about having 11 sons in service. Her mother, she said, had 21 children.

CENSORSHIP CODE REVISED; SECTION ON BOMBINGS IS DROPPED

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—The end of the war in Europe brought an easing of censorship restrictions today, tho basic military information was still kept subject to authorization by competent authorities.

Byron Price, director of censorship, announced that the voluntary code which has governed publication of war news in the United States since Jan. 15, 1942, soon will be rewritten in shorter form.

In the meantime several sections were eliminated or modified.

Wholly eliminated were provisions dealing with information on attacks by air, for which elaborate precautions had been set up while Germany was a major air power; weather reports, on which rules already had been eased; and sabotage, on which there had been a prohibition against "specifications [including information on 'bottlenecks'] which saboteurs could use to damage military objectives."

2 HOUR FLIGHTS, N.Y. TO CHICAGO, ARE PREDICTED

Evidence is increasing that transport planes will be operating on regular schedules at 400 miles an hour within five years, William Littlewood, vice president in charge of engineering for United Air Lines, Inc., told the fifth Chicago forum on aviation in the La Salle hotel last night.

Counting the hour's difference in time zones, he predicted it will be possible to leave New York at 8 a. m. and start the business day in Chicago at 9 a. m. Post-war airplanes for two or three years will follow conventional designs. Thereafter, he said, it is reasonable to expect the appearance of planes that may make present types obsolete.

After his address he said Chicago is a natural point of origin and collecting point for transocean flights.

Arthur E. Raymond, vice president in charge of engineering for the Douglas Aircraft company, said that by 1950 minimum annual air passenger traffic should be 4.8 billion passenger miles.

HELP DEFEAT 'CRUEL JAPAN,' CHURCHILL PLEA

Promises to Fulfill Duty to Gallant Ally

BY E. R. NODERER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 8—Prime Minister Churchill reached the climax of his colorful political career today in a broadcast to the empire announcing the surrender of Germany, and an address to London crowds calling on Britain to turn its efforts to the task of defeating Japan.

Churchill in revealing the details of the German surrender announced that the British channel islands were freed today. Speaking to Whitehall crowds tonight from the balcony of the ministry of health building, he reminded Britons that there was another foe occupying large portions of the British empire, "a foe stained with cruelty and greed—the Japanese."

The reference to the Japs evoked boos from the crowd, which changed to cheers when he declared that Britain intended to fulfill its duties "to its gallant ally, the United States."

'Hand in Hand' with U. S.

"We shall go hand in hand with them, and even if it is a hard struggle we shall not be the ones who will fail," he said.

King George made a radio address from Buckingham palace tonight in which he also reminded his people that it is still necessary to deal with the Japanese, whom he called a "determined and cruel foe."

At a brief ceremony in the bow room of the palace the king exchanged congratulations with Churchill, members of the war cabinet, and British chiefs of staff.

The prime minister drove from Downing street to the palace in an open police car, which was held up by cheering crowds still celebrating victory after 36 hours. With his black hat perched on the back of his head, the prime minister waved and smiled, and repeatedly made the V sign.

Greeted by 20,000

In front of Buckingham palace a crowd estimated at 20,000 had assembled when Churchill appeared on the palace balcony with the king, the queen, and the princesses.

In his empire message Churchill said it was not surprising that during the existing disorder in Europe the orders of the German high command should not in every case have been obeyed immediately, but added that this should not prevent the nation from celebrating today and tomorrow as victory days.

It appeared a certainty that Churchill's call on Britain to help defeat Japan will not be accomplished by the same coalition government which directed the British war front in Europe. The labor ministers are expected to resign soon, after which Churchill will set up a "caretaker" government in preparation for the general election which informed political circles forecast for June or July.

Many conservatives are reported to favor an early election in the hope of cashing in on Churchill's popularity, which again was demonstrated by the cheering thousands, and the plaudits he received in parliament where he made his world broadcast.

Meanwhile, London's millions needed no urging from their prime minister to celebrate the day. Bonfires ringed the capital. Batteries of floodlights etched most of the city's famous buildings against the sky.

Pack Every Square

As they had done the night before, crowds packed every square and historical spot to sing, dance, and parade. Three focal points for the celebrations were Buckingham palace, where the king and queen appeared eight times on the balcony to greet a crowd at one time estimated to be a quarter of a million; Whitehall, where Churchill joined in spirited singing, and Piccadilly circus, traditional center of London's once glittering night life.

It was "work as usual," however, for United States army troops stationed in the United Kingdom, but prayer services were held at hospitals, supply depots, port installations, and other military establishments.

But in Trafalgar the merrymakers seized American soldiers and carried them around the square. In other sections of the city Yanks climbed utility poles or theater marquees to snap pictures of the crowds.

Ex-League of Nations Aid for Danzig Is Arrested

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 6—[Delayed]—The former league of nations high commissioner for Danzig, Helmer Rosting, was arrested today. No reasons for his arrest were disclosed. Meanwhile, the national bank has blocked all German accounts in Denmark.

War's Cost to U. S.: 950,000 Casualties and 275 Billions

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—War against Germany, ending today, cost this nation over three-quarters of a million casualties, some 150,000 of them dead. A tabulation of reports thru last Thursday showed American casualties in all arms and all theaters since Pearl Harbor in excess of 950,000.

Actually reported losses, covering action only up to about April 1 for the army and up to April 26 for the other services, number 747,164, including 148,385 killed. While recent action in most European areas has not been of the sort that makes long casualty lists, more than a month of fighting is yet to be accounted for.

The army's list, covering fighting in the Mediterranean area including North Africa, on the continent, in the middle east, and in the Caribbean sector, totals 732,270. The breakdown shows 139,498 dead, 467,408 wounded, and 72,374 missing. The remaining 32,990 are listed as priscners.

Navy Loses 14,347

The navy reports total losses of 14,347 in the European war, broken down into 8,345 dead, 672 missing, 5,301 wounded or injured, and 29 prisoners.

In the Atlantic theater the navy total includes 10,650 casualties, made up of 6,415 dead, 594 missing, 3,612 wounded or injured, and 29 prisoners of war. In the Mediterranean theater the total is 3,697, including 1,930 dead, 78 missing, and 1,689 wounded or injured.

Marine corps casualties in the Atlantic, Mediterranean, and European theaters total only 39, including 34 dead, one missing, one wounded, and three prisoners.

Marine Corps Toll

In the Atlantic theater marine corps dead total 32 with one wounded. In the Mediterranean theater there were two marines killed, and in the European theater there were one missing and three prisoners.

The coast guard reports a total of 508 dead in the entire European war theater. No information is available on wounded, missing, or prisoners of war.

The war department said its figures no not include all those taken prisoner by the Germans, tho many of those reported as missing were presumed to have been captured. No account is taken of the thousands of prisoners liberated by allied armies.

In the first World war, the United States suffered 364,800 casualties, or 8 per cent of its total mobilization, including deaths, wounded, and missing.

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—This war has already cost the United States government more than $275,000,000,000. Many more billions will be used up before it's all over.

The government spent only $173,000,000,000 for all purposes thruout the first 151 years of its existence, from 1789 to 1940.

The treasury says it is impossible to calculate how much was spent in beating Germany and how much has so far gone into the Pacific combat. Naturally the European war has taken more than half.

No Letup Is Near

The Japanese war will gobble up many billions of dollars. War expenditures are expected to stay here for some time. After Japan collapses, there will be war caused expenses such as caring for veterans, paying pensions and other benefits, and paying interest on the public debt, which now is $236,000,000,000.

To illustrate, government expenditures in the first World war were $25,729,000,000 thru June 30, 1921. Between that date and 1934, an additional $16,000,000,000 was paid out for pensions, interest, and other purposes related to World War I. In fact, we are still paying for World War I.

"Unlabeled" War Expenses

That indicates how long it will be before the total expense of World War II. can be determined.

In addition to war spending of $275,000,000,000, the government [including government corporations] has spent about $30,000,000,000 for purposes not labeled "war" since July 1, 1940—bringing total federal expenditures during that period of less than five years to more than $305,000,000,000.

Order Allows Nazi Subs to Put in at U. S. Ports

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—Any German U-boats which were prowling the western Atlantic at the time their country gave up the fight may turn up at United States or Canadian ports to surrender. Allied orders were radioed from London today directing all German and German-controled ships at sea to head for the nearest allied ports and remain there for further orders.

Advisory Planning Board to Discuss Transit Plans

The city planning advisory board will consider further action on the pending transit modernization plan at its meeting in the Civic Opera building at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Morton Bodfish, board chairman, will preside.

STANDING ARMY OF 500,000 IS ASKED OF HOUSE

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—Despite a written denial by Chairman May [D., Ky.], house military committeemen insisted today the army had outlined to them tentative plans for a post-war military setup of 4,500,000 men, mostly reservists.

To back up their disclosure of the plan they said was outlined to the committee yesterday by army officers, committee members displayed a mimeographed war department statement using the 4,500,000 figure.

It was distributed to them yesterday, they said. They added that while it is tentative and based on the assumption that a peace time draft law will be enacted, it represents the war department's present views.

500,000 in Standing Army

The 4,500,000, they said, would include an estimated 4,000,000 reserves—built up primarily thru peace time military training of the nation's youth—and a "standing" army of approximately 500,000 men.

There was difference of opinion among committee members on whether the 4,000,000 reserves would include national guardsmen or whether the guard would be counted as part of the regular army in peace time.

Several committee members referred to the 4,500,000 force as a potential "M-day army"—which could be mobilized within a period of 120 days if needed.

Not the Facts, Says May

"Any statement to the effect that war department representatives testified before the house military affairs committee on the size of the regular army is not in conformity with the facts," May said in his statement.

There had been reports, May continued, that witnesses said the size of the post-war regular army "had been fixed at 500,000."

HERE'S A RECIPE FROM MARTHA WASHINGTON'S OWN COOKBOOK*

A PIE OF SHEEP'S TONGUE

3 tongues
½ cup bread crumbs
½ cup white wine
2 tablespoons capers
¾ cup butter (or margarine) nutmeg
pepper salt

(NOTE: This recipe can be made deliciously with considerably less butter or margarine than Martha Washington specified.)

Put tongues in kettle, cover with boiling water, add some salt, and cook slowly until tender. Take from water, remove skin and roots, and split lengthwise. Line a dish with pastry. Lay tongues on it and season with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Dot over with ¼ cup butter (or margarine), and sprinkle bread crumbs over all. Cover with top crust. Cream the wine gradually, and the capers. Lift the top crust and pour this mixture in. Serve as soon as the butter (or margarine) has melted.

END CENSORSHIP IN EUROPE, AP DEMANDS OF IKE

Ask Kennedy Be Allowed to Tell of 'Scoop'

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, called on Gen. Eisenhower last night to abolish military censorship in Europe now that the war is over and to permit Associated Press Correspondent Edward Kennedy to state his own case on the 24 hour beat he scored on the story of Germany's surrender.

Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press Paris bureau, who telephoned the news from Paris to London Monday, remained under suspension by supreme headquarters in Paris and was not permitted to file any story or messages.

Kennedy therefore was unable to give his own account of the events leading up to the delivery of the story for which he was acclaimed by editors thruout America, or to reply to a published statement by 54 rival correspondents accusing him of "the most disgraceful, deliberate, and unethical double-cross in the history of journalism."

Asked 24 Hour Suspension

This language was included in a strongly phrased formal protest in which the 54 correspondents, accredited to supreme headquarters, demanded that Gen. Eisenhower prohibit the Associated Press from carrying any official news of the surrender from the European theater of operations for 24 hours after the announcement.

The supreme commander informed them that no action could be taken against an organization for the act of an individual correspondent.

Supreme headquarters said the whole case still was under investigation, but meanwhile it also suspended Morton Gudebrod, member of the Associated Press Paris staff, who, with approval of French censorship, had distributed the surrender story to French papers on Monday.

The other members of the Associated Press staff in Paris and thruout the European theater were permitted to file dispatches, however, after supreme headquarters lifted at 11 p. m. Monday [4 p. m., Chicago time] a ban it had placed on all of them six hours and 20 minutes previously, altho all facilities for Kennedy remained suspended.

No Quotes Permitted

Headquarters ruled that they could not quote Kennedy directly or indirectly on the events in Reims at the signing of the unconditional and final German surrender, which occurred at 2:41 a. m. Monday [7:41 p. m., Chicago, Sunday]] and which Kennedy witnessed.

All available eyewitness information, however, was allowed to be incorporated in a Reims datelined dispatch filed from Paris yesterday by the Associated Press.

This was the central theme of the formal protest by the 54 correspondents at supreme headquarters, who contended that the ban on the AP should not have been lifted and that the AP should be penalized by prohibiting it from carrying any official news out of the European theater concerning the surrender.

The protesting correspondents, in their petition to Eisenhower, contended that the small group of correspondents who were taken to Reims to witness the surrender were pledged to secrecy until the surrender was officially released.

"The Associated Press cannot escape responsibility for the fact that a man selected as its representative at SHAEF and who was among those, deliberately circumvented SHAEF censorship in order to file his story for immediate publication in complete defiance of the pledge," the protest read.

Procedure Described

Kennedy was not allowed to give his side of the controversy but earlier yesterday a dispatch from Reiman Morin of the Associated Press Paris staff gave details of Kennedy's procedure in dispatching the first eye-witness report on the signing of unconditional surrender by the Germans at Reims. Morin's dispatch said:

"Kennedy went to Reims Sunday to cover the story, and returned to Paris at dawn Monday. The first 1,500 words of his story about what he had seen and heard was passed by a field censor and the remainder was written when he returned to Paris."

Morin's dispatch went on to recount that, after German broadcasts had disclosed the news of unconditional surrender and flashed orders to all German armed forces to cease resistance, "Kennedy interviewed SHAEF censors and demanded immediate release of the Reims story."

No Military Security Involved

Morin continued: "He [Kennedy] asserted that according to SHAEF's long established policy, military security was the only consideration on which correspondents' reports were censored. He said that in view of broadcast reports from Flensburg [by the Germans], London and Stockholm, there was no military security involved, and he also openly notified the censors that he intended to file his story.

"Kennedy said he considered the function of his staff and of himself was to report the news, and that he did not feel bound by any considerations of political censorship."

Chicago Tribune Man's View

This view was echoed by two accredited correspondents at SHAEF, who refused to sign the protest petition. They were Larry Rue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and John O'Connell of the Bangor [Me.] News.

Rue asked a meeting of the correspondents, "Do the correspondents here really want to cut off the news of 1,400 newspapers and still take the position that they do not believe in suppression of news?"

O'Connell said the protesting correspondents "may find that they are in a peculiar position with their own newspapers, which thru the Associated Press story were able to give American readers news of the peace without delay."

Gen. Eisenhower, by telephone via an aide, declined to enforce against the AP the prohibition that the 54 correspondents requested.

Brig. Gen. Frank Allen, director of the SHAEF public relations division, told the correspondents, "It is my firm conviction that I lack authority to punish the Associated Press as an organization for an act of one correspondent."

Gen. Allen emphasized that the original suspension was made "to investigate, not to punish," and that this was true also in the present suspensions of Kennedy and Gudebrod because "the investigation is being continued; it is not yet complete."

Suspension Lifted

The suspension of the entire AP staff in the European theater was lifted, however, only after Cooper had sent a telegram to Secretary of War Stimson asking that it be removed and a radiogram to Gen. Eisenhower asking the facts about the suspension, of which he had first learned thru United Press and International News Service accounts.

Many editors and publishers of Associated Press member newspapers also had telegraphed protests to President Truman against the suspension of AP filing facilities.

Gen. Eisenhower replied to Cooper's inquiry yesterday afternoon thru the war department, stating:

"Associated Press suspended during investigation of method transmission of release unauthorized story this date unsubmited SHAEF censorship channels, reference your message to Gen. Eisenhower dated 7th May.

"Suspension filing privileges Associated Press revoked and authority now granted correspondents other than Ed Kennedy to submit material for transmission.

"Kennedy suspended due self-admitted deliberate violation SHAEF regulations and breach confidence. Investigation filing story by Kennedy continues and report results of findings will be communicated you as soon as practicable."

Cooper Replies to General

Cooper immediately replied to Gen. Eisenhower with a radiogram asking that Kennedy be permitted to state his case personally, that supreme headquarters state its position on the security elements involved in the surrender story, and that Eisenhower do what he could to remove military censorship.

Text of Cooper's Reply.

Cooper's reply to Eisenhower follows:

"This is acknowledgment of your reply to my message May 7, with appreciation for your explanation of the decision revoking suspension of Associated Press privileges. I respectfully and urgently request your consideration of the following:

"First, that every facility be afforded Edward Kennedy to state his case personally and to transmit the fullest report thereof to me as requested in my message to you yesterday, so that the American people as well as members of the Associated Press may be apprised completely of the facts connected with Kennedy's transmission of the German surrender story, instead of being limited to the brief unilateral and undocumented statement contained in your reply.

"Secondly, that the position of supreme headquarters be stated as respects the elements of military security involved in connection with this story, particularly in the light of German broadcasts proclaiming the surrender, which were published generally thruout the world approximately one hour before the Associated Press received Kennedy's first dispatch.

"Thirdly, that you make equally available to Associated Press and representatives of all other news and radio organizations a precise statement setting forth categorically reasons for maintaining what can now be only military censorship over civil affairs since there is no longer any European enemy. I suggest this because there is general concern over the possibility of continuance of censorship over political matters in a Europe at peace, and anything you can do which will give immediate effect to removal of such censorship will be hailed by the American public, which, from expressions received here, considers of transcendent importance the removal of any obstacle to coverage of news of the European reconstruction."

MUSSOLINI'S WIDOW AND TWO CHILDREN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

WITH THE U. S. 5TH ARMY AT THE ITALIAN-AUSTRIAN FRONTIER, May 8 (AP)—Rachele Mussolini, widow of Il Duce, was taken into custody five days ago somewhere in northern Italy, it was learned tonight. Two of the Mussolini children, not identified, were taken with her to Monte Catini, west of Florence.

An unconfirmed report said Vittorio Mussolini, a son, had been seized near the Swiss border. The report did not say whether he might have been one of the children taken into custody. The widow was reported recently to have made a futile attempt to enter Switzerland with a younger son, Romano, shortly before Benito Mussolini was executed by Partisans.

[The Mussolinis had five children. The eldest, Countess Edda Ciano, took refuge in Switzerland with her three children in January, 1944, at the time Count Ciano was executed by the Fascist government. One son, Capt. Bruno Mussolini, was killed in 1941 in a new bomber he was testing. There also is a daughter, Anna Maria.]

JAPANESE FORCE YANKS BACK IN MINDANAO FIGHT

MANILA, May 9 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Stiffened Japanese resistance around captured Davao on Mindanao Island was reported by Gen. MacArthur today. Yanks of the 24th division were forced back by Japanese counter-attacks. This was the first report of any serious fighting since the second invasion of Mindanao April 17.

A front dispatch reported that a strong force of Japanese penetrated the thin American lines to establish defenses running from the Libby airdrome southwest across the Talomo river, partially isolating one battalion which had taken the village of Mintal. A few reenforcements were reaching the battalion over a little used trail.

Japanese artillery was shelling Yank positions near the Libby air field. The American hold on the field was tenuous.

In central Mindanao, meantime, the 31st division continued to crowd the retreating Japanese into mountain defenses.

On little Tarakan Island, off Borneo, the Australians and Dutch expanded their gains Monday by capturing an evacuated Japanese headquarters. They were within two miles of the Djoeata oil field, north of the air field from which allied medium bombers and fighters already are operating.

MacArthur disclosed that the 37th infantry division, which invaded Luzon at Lingayen gulf and fought into Manila, is now fighting around Balete pass on northern Luzon with the 25th and 32d divisions.

TRUMAN CALLS ON AMERICA TO FINISH THE JOB

Warns Japanese Their Doom Is Sealed

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—President Truman, in words of stern triumph and dedication, proclaimed defeat of a crushed Germany today and served grim notice on Japan that her doom is sealed.

A nation at war—picking up the cue from its President—went on with the matter of fact business of making war without breaking stride to celebrate the victory in Europe.

Mr. Truman made no mention of a "V-E day" celebration and cautioned the nation that its war job is not finished. Later the White House made clear that the omission was intentional—that there is to be no official V-E day of celebration.

Only Half a Victory

Thruout the President's words, in a brief speech, an official proclamation, and less formal remarks to newsmen in the White House beforehand, he treated the day's history making event as only half a victory.

A statement issued at the news conference but not read or the air contained an implied call to the Japanese people to follow the Nazis in surrender before it is too late.

"The longer the war lasts," the statement said, "the greater will be the suffering which the people of Japan will undergo—all in vain."

The President emphasized the benefits of freedom from the domination of tyrannical leaders and from "present agony and suffering" which the Japanese would gain from laying down their arms. He asserted that "unconditional surrender does not mean the extermination or enslavement of the Japanese people."

Japs Face Terrible Time

Mr. Truman said he was going to inform the Japanese now what they can expect. He said the United States is ready to turn loose against Japan the greatest war machine ever assembled and that military advisors told him Japan is going to have a terrible time from now on.

"Our blows will not cease until the Japanese military and naval forces lay down their arms in unconditional surrender," his statement said.

The President's words were read carefully, solemnly, without oratorical flourishes.

Mr. Truman mentioned that issuance of the victory proclamation was a happy way to celebrate his 61st birthday.

The President told reporters we want a peace of justice and law. It's what we're trying to get at San Francisco, he said, and that's what we're going to get.

HAGUE ROLLS UP HUGE VOTE TO WIN RE-ELECTION

Jersey City, N. J., May 8 [Special]—Frank Hague easily won his 8th successive term as mayor of Jersey City today, defeating a Liberation party ticket headed by Paul Doherty, independent Democrat, by more than 50,000 votes. Hague led the ticket of five incumbent members of the city commission, all of whom were re-elected.

Hague polled 77,967 votes to 27,634 for Doherty, secretary of the Hudson county tax board, who led the opposition.

The victory assures Hague a ninth consecutive term as member of the city commission, a post to which he was first elected in 1913. He was first chosen mayor four years later.

Truman Congratulates Canadians on Victory

OTTAWA, Ont., May 8—Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada yesterday received from President Truman a message of congratulations upon the victory of the Canadian army over Germans in the Netherlands, Denmark, and northern Germany.

TRUMAN HAILS VICTORY OVER EVIL OF NAZIDOM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 8—Following is the text of President Truman's proclamation announcing victory in Europe:

"The allied armies, thru sacrifice and devotion and with God's help, have won from Germany a final and unconditional surrender. The western world has been freed of the evil forces which for five years and longer have imprisoned the bodies and broken the lives of millions upon millions of freeborn men. They have violated their churches, destroyed their homes, corrupted their children, and murdered their loved ones. Our armies of liberation have restored freedom to these suffering peoples, whose spirit and will the oppressors could never enslave.

"Much Remains," Says Truman

"Much remains to be done. The victory won in the west must now be won in the east. The whole world must be cleansed of the evil from which half of the world has been freed. United, the peace loving nations have demonstrated in the west that their arms are stronger by far than the might of dictators or the tyranny of military cliques that once called us soft and weak. The power of our peoples to defend themselves against all enemies will be proved in the Pacific as it has been proved in Europe.

"For the triumph of spirit and of arms which we have won, and for its promise to peoples everywhere who join us in the love of freedom, it is fitting that we, as a nation, give thanks to Almighty God, who has strengthened us and given us the victory.

Sets Day of Prayer

"Now, therefore, I, Harry S. Truman, President of the United States of America, do hereby appoint Sunday, May 13, 1945, to be a day of prayer.

"I call upon the people of the United States, whatever their faith, to unite in offering joyful thanks to God for the victory we have won and pray that He will support us to the end of our present struggle and guide us into the way of peace.

"I also call upon my countrymen to dedicate this day of prayer to the memory of those who have given their lives to make possible our victory.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this 8th day of May, in the year of our Lord 1945, and of the independence of the United States of America the 169th."

BRITISH ORDER ENDS HITLER'S NAZI SALUTE, GERMAN ARMY TOLD

LONDON, May 8 (AP)—The German war bulletin broadcast today over the Flensburg radio said: Grand Adm. Doenitz has decreed abandonment of the Hitler-introduced nazi salute and the restoration of the military salute in the German army. The British have abolished the German [nazi] salute in several areas and reintroduced the old military salute," the bulletin said. "The discipline of our forces demands the common salute. Therefore effective immediately the military salute is ordered for all members of the German wehrmacht. It consists of raising the right hand to the cap."

NIMITZ SENDS FELICITATIONS TO EISENHOWER

GUAM, May 8 (AP)—In a congratulatory message to Gen. Eisenhower on Germany's surrender, Fleet Adm. Nimitz today said that "now the whole overwhelming weight of our force can be turned upon our treacherous enemy in the Pacific. Japan deserves, and from now on will receive, our united and undivided attention. Victory confirms the wisdom of our world strategy, which required the use of the bulk of our strength against Germany while holding Japan and driving them back where possible."

on the
Japs We Face in War

A WARNING to all America that this war is not yet finished—a timely, penetrating study of the Jap soldier—the enemy who remains to be totally defeated before this war is won. Written by a twenty-year resident of Japan, Korea, Manchuria—a man who speaks Japanese and knows the Japs.

GRIM as Tarawa is this faithful and entirely new concept of the Japanese soldiery. Its author strips dangerous under-estimation from our ideas of Jap fighting men—bares the reasons for his no-surrender, "banzai" mentality. Describes the Japs' equipment, weapons, tactics and cruelty. Shows why they are well trained, well led, well equipped, intelligent fighters. Factual, authoritative—this article brings you a new realization of the tough road that lies ahead of U. S. men in the Pacific—sharpens your respect for their amazing progress. Don't fail to read—

HUNGER AT THE PEACE TABLE
by William Vogt

HOW soon will hunger ride rough-shod over the world, as soil erosion literally saps the good earth of its sustenance? How soon will increasing population meet decreasing natural resources? A somber, strangely-moving warning—a stern indictment of ignorance and passiveness before a problem more frightening than war. "To control it will require statesmanship of a higher order. Unless it is controlled, there can be no peace." An article to read now as men plan the peace in San Francisco.

TRUMAN SENDS TRIBUTE TO WAR LEADERS ABROAD

Thanks Churchill, Stalin, Eisenhower, De Gaulle

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—President Truman sent messages of congratulations and praise to allied leaders across the Atlantic today.

Messages went from the White House to Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin, Gen. Eisenhower, and Gen. De Gaulle. All carried the same theme—affection, appreciation, and congratulations to the war leaders abroad.

To Prime Minister Churchill he said:

"With the unconditional surrender of all the armies of Nazidom and the liberation of the oppressed people of Europe from the evils of barbarism, I wish to express to you, and thru you to Britain's heroic army, navy, and air forces, our congratulations on their achievements. The government of the United States is deeply appreciative of the splendid contribution of all the British empire forces and of the British people to this magnificent victory. With warm affection, we hail our comrades in arms across the Atlantic."

Message to Stalin

To Marshal Stalin:

"Now that the Nazi armies of aggression have been forced by the coördinated efforts of soviet-Anglo-American forces to an unconditional surrender, I wish to express to you and thru you to your heroic army the appreciation and congratulations of the United States government on its splendid contribution to the cause of civilization and liberty.

"You have demonstrated in all your campaigns what it is possible to accomplish when a free people under superlative leadership and with unfailing courage rise against the forces of barbarism."

To Gen. Eisenhower:

"In recognition of the unconditional and abject surrender of the Nazi barbarians, please accept the fervent congratulations and appreciation of myself and of the American people for the heroic achievements of your allied army, navy, and air forces.

Tribute to Sacrifices

"By their sacrifices, skill, and courage they have saved and exalted the cause of freedom thruout the world. All of us owe to you and to your men of many nations a debt beyond appraisal for their high contribution to the conquest of Nazism.

"I send also my personal appreciation of the superb leadership shown by you and your commanders in directing the valiant legions of our own country and of our allies to this historic victory.

"Please transmit this message to the appropriate officers of your command and publish it to all allied forces in your theaters of operation."

To Gen. De Gaulle:

"The Nazi forces of barbarian aggression having now been driven into an unconditional surrender by our allied armies, this is an appropriate time to send thru you America's congratulations to the people of France on their permanent liberation from the oppression they have endured with high courage for so long.

"I wish also to send to you this expression of our appreciation of the contribution made by valiant soldiers of France to our allied victory."

39 CHICAGOLAND SURVIVORS ARE RETURNED HOME

Their Ships Sunk Off Okinawa

BY EUGENE GRIFFIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 8—Thirty-nine men from Chicago and its suburbs who were crew members of navy ships reported sunk by Japanese action off the Island of Okinawa were in the first group of nearly 1,000 survivors to be returned here by transport, the navy disclosed tonight.

None of the survivors is wounded or injured. Their transport docked Sunday as the men crowded the rails and cheered excitedly. Most of them were members of the crews of the 2,100 ton destroyer Calhoun, which was sunk April 6; the old destroyer Dickerson, sunk April 2; the 2,150 ton destroyer Halligan, sunk March 26, and the Emmons, a destroyer converted for minesweeping. Others were on landing craft.

Adm. Nimitz announced the sinkings April 21.

WARSHIPS AGAIN RIP JAP LINES IN SOUTH OKINAWA

GUAM, May 9 [Wednesday]—(AP)—American battleships and cruisers turned their heavy guns on Japanese positions guarding the southern Okinawa defense line yesterday and Monday, destroying gun emplacements, artillery weapons, and mortars, Fleet Adm. Nimitz announced today.

Adverse weather limited ground operations yesterday and there were "no substantial changes" in either the marine or army lines. American ground forces have been held at a virtual standstill for several days altho two of the three army divisions which originally began the southward push on April 1 have been relieved by relatively fresh outfits.

Shells Light Up Front

Nimitz said the navy's surface craft fired several hundred rounds of illumination shells over the front thruout Monday night "which effectively reduced the enemy's attempts at infiltration."

Meantime, naval aircraft ranging to Korea and Honshu sank six Japanese ships, including a small freighter-transport, and damaged 13 ships and fishing vessels Monday and Tuesday.

Nimitz said 14,000 tons of shipping were sunk and 3,500 tons damaged by search planes of Fleet Air Wing 1 which discovered concentrations of shipping off Korea.

One Group Bags 13.

A small freighter-transport and a large fleet oiler were sunk and these ships were damaged: One trawler, set afire; one small freighter-transport, set afire and left listing, and one small freighter, left listing and dead in the water.

Fleet Air Wing 18, announced as in action the first time only two days ago, sank two small cargo ships, one large fishing craft, and one coastal cargo vessel south of Honshu. It also damaged four small cargo ships, four large fishing vessels, and one coastal cargo vessel, and destroyed a four engine flying boat.

Army Mitchells damaged another enemy vessel, a small ship otherwise unidentified, in a rocket attack south of Honshu.

Nimitz also reported pilots of the 2d marine aircraft wing have shot down a total of 209 Japanese aircraft since they began operating from captured Okinawa air fields [about April 7] thru Monday.

DO FANNIE MAY CHOCOLATES COST MORE TO MAKE THAN THE UNCOATED CANDIES?

On the contrary! Wrapped Nougats, Caramels, Fudge, Dixies, and Mallowdips—all uncoated—cost more than do the majority of our chocolate coated pieces!

You see, a number of chocolate coated soft centers contain more sugar—relatively inexpensive. Our uncoated pieces usually contain more cream, milk solids and nuts—really expensive ingredients—as your own kitchen costs tell you!

So, when in your box of Fannie May Candy you find a balanced assortment of chocolate coated soft and chewy centers, together with uncoated pieces, you'll know we've not been sparing costs in giving you a box full of taste thrills—fresh, pure, delicious candies!

NAZI SURRENDER GENERAL VOICES PLEA FOR MERCY

Full Story of Historic Signing at Reims

[The following dispatch from Reims, France, supplements the dispatch by Edward Kennedy, issued on Monday, which gave the first account of the German surrender. It is Kennedy's dispatch. The Associated Press has permitted to file this as Kennedy wrote it, but it could not be attributed to him. Kennedy wrote 1,500 words at Reims which were passed by the field censor and wrote more of his story after returning to Paris. Only some 300 words of Kennedy's dispatch were transmitted from Paris on Monday before his communications were broken.]

REIMS, France, May 7 [Delayed] —(AP)—Thru an iron faced Prussian general, speaking after he had finished signing the unconditional surrender of the Nazis, Germany pleaded today for mercy for the German people. On the wall behind his back was a huge chart tabulating allied casualties.

He was Col. Gen. Gustaf Jodl, chief of staff of the German army.

He was standing in a room of a red school house in Reims, where Gen. Eisenhower had his advanced headquarters. On a big wooden table in front of him lay four identical documents to which he had just affixed his signature.

There was one each for the United States, Britain, France, and Russia. Each bore the words first written by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at Casablanca: "Unconditional surrender."

Asks Permission to Speak

Seventeen correspondents including Edward Kennedy of the Associated Prers were present at the signing and heard Jodl's plea.

After he had signed the four instruments of surrender and after the military representatives of the four powers had signed them, Jodl asked for permission to speak.

He was told he might.

He held himself stiffly erect, conforming to the traditions of Prussian military correctness. His voice was low and soft and he said:

"With this signature the German people and armed forces are, for better or worse, delivered into the victors' hands.

"In this war which has lasted more than five years both have achieved and suffered more than perhaps any other people in the world. In this hour I can only express the hope that the victor will treat generously with them."

Meet Gen. Eisenhower

His face was expressionless and so were the faces of the American, British, Russian, and French generals who represented the allies.

All had seen German murder camps and all knew the furious cruelty of German occupying forces.

Jodl finished speaking and sat down. The sound of his voice was quickly absorbed by the wall boarding covering the room's walls.

A moment passed in dead silence and then the German representatives were taken down the hall to meet Gen. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower and his British deputy, Air Chief Marshal Arthur Tedder, were waiting. They stood behind Eisenhower's small desk.

Jodl entered first, followed by Gen. Adm. Hans Georg von Friedeburg and then by Col. Poleck, a supply expert.

Germans Study the Floor

Poleck glanced once at the allied officers and then studied the floor. Friedeburg looked out the windows. Only Jodl, his bald head gleaming beneath naked electric light bulbs, looked the American and British commanders in the face.

Again there was a moment of silence.

Then Eisenhower spoke. He was brief and terse as always.

His voice was cold and stern. His steel blue eyes were hard.

In a few clipped sentences he made it plain that Germany was a defeated nation and that henceforth orders to the German people would come from the allies. He said they would be obeyed.

Then the Germans filed out. It was over.

Nazi Germany has ceased to exist. The war had ended.

May Be "Peace of Reims"

The signatures of the document of surrender climaxed two days of negotiations in the cathedral city [Reims], scene of many dramatic events in European history. Possibly what was born here today will be known as the "peace of Reims."

The doom of the third reich was sealed in the war room of the allied supreme command's advanced headquarters in the big bricq ecole [school] professionelle, which in peace time was a co-educational industrial school.

The signatories sat at a wooden table 20 feet long and 10 feet wide, with its top painted black. The war room itself is L shaped, about 30 feet long and 30 wide on the outer sides of the L.

Its walls are of Nile green wallboard covered with battle maps, their red lines marking what were the fronts and teaching the plight of the wehrmacht [German army] which once had almost the entire continent under its heel.

Others at Signing

Also seated with the signers were Maj. Gen. Frederick E. Morgan [British], SHAEF deputy chief of staff; Capt. Harry E. Butcher, Eisenhower's naval aide; Adm. Harry Burrough [British], commander of allied naval forces; Lt. Ivan Chermiaeff of the Red army; Lt. Gen. Spaatz, commander of the United States strategic air forces in Europe; Air Marshal James M. Robb [British], chief of the SHAEF air staff; Maj. Gen. H. R. Bull, assistant chief of staff, and Col. Ivan Zenkovitch of the Red army.

The allied representatives sat along the side of the table nearest the wall and along its right end. Facing them across the black table were Jodl and Friedeburg and Maj. William Oxenius, Jodl's aide. Behind the Germans stood Maj. Gen. K. W. D. Strong, chief of SHAEF intelligence, who acted as interpreter.

Correspondents were ushered into the war room upon receiving word of the agreement upon final terms.

Enter Room at 2:29 a. m.

Most of the allied officers entered the room at 2:29 a. m. [7:29 p. m., Sunday, Chicago time] Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith [Eisenhower's chief of staff] followed five minutes later. The strain of the climactic months of the war was evident in his serious countenance.

There was another wait of five minutes. Then Jodl, in a grey green uniform and silver trim of a wehrmacht officer, strode in with the blue clad Friedeburg.

Jodl wore his knight of the iron cross decoration. Friedeburg's highest military decorations were likewise on display.

Neither seemed crestfallen. They moved slowly but resolutely to the table, there standing at attention. The allied officers bowed stiffly.

Every one's visage—ally or enemy —was rigid. Not a trace of a smile appeared on any face.

"There are four copies to be signed," Gen. Smith remarked dryly.

Gen. Jodl First to Sign.

Gen. Jodl was the first to put his name on the quadruplicate document at 2:41 a. m. Copies were passed across to be signed by Generals Ivan Susloparov of the Red army, Smith of SHAEF and Francois Sevez of France in that order.

The terms of the naval agreement, which was signed by Adm. Burroughs, and the terms of the land and air disarmament were signed by Smith and presented to the Germans to be carried out.

It was 2:45 a. m. The ink of the signatures still was damp. Then Jodl spoke, beseeching "generosity" of the allied conquerors.

Chairs scraped and the Germans rose stiffly to stand at attention. The allies got to their feet and bowed formally and the Germans walked out of the room at 2:47 a. m.

On their departure, Eisenhower summoned all allied officers who had participated in the ceremony of surrender.

His mouth broke into a big victory smile. His eyes, a moment before stern and cold, sparkled with joy.

Greets Aide Warmly

Tedder clasped his hand. Then Eisenhower greeted Smith warmly, thanking him for his spectacular work of the last two days. He thanked all of those present and held up the fountain pens with which the surrender was signed—making a V-sign with them for cameramen.

He left his office at 3:39 a. m. for the war room, where he made a brief victory speech into newsreel microphones.

"Just a few minutes ago Germany surrendered all her remaining forces on land and sea," he said. "They have been thoroly whipped and the surrender is unconditional.

"In January, 1943, the late President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met in Casablanca. There they pronounced a formula of unconditional surrender for the axis powers. In Europe, that has been fulfilled. The allied forces which landed on the continent on June 6, 1944, have utterly defeated the Germans on land, sea, and in the air."

Signed "In Heart of France"

Eisenhower remarked that it was "particularly fitting" that the surrender was signed "in the heart of France," a country which had contributed in large measure to the common victory.

"This unconditional surrender was achieved by teamwork, not only among the allies but by all the services of the land, sea, and air," he said.

Negotiations for the full surrender grew out of the conference between Friedeburg and Field Marshal Montgomry last Thursday [May 3]. After agreeing to surrender of German forces in Holland, Denmark, northwest Germany, the Frisian Islands and Helgoland at that meeting, the German delegates indicated that the reich leadership wished to discuss the larger question of complete surrender of all armed forces.

Began on Saturday

Eisenhower accordingly approved a conference at Reims for Saturday and transportation was furnished for bringing Friedeburg and Col. Fritz Poleck of the German supreme command.

They left Montgomery's headquarters at Lueneberg by plane at 8 a. m. Saturday, escorted by Lt. Col. Bury and Maj. F. J. Lawrence of Montgomery's staff.

They changed planes at Vorst. Bad weather prevented them from continuing past Brussels.

Then a staff car, driven by a girl of the auxiliary territorial service, Pvt. Bobbie Alexander of Inverness, Scotland, took the group onward at 1:30 p. m.

At 5:04 p. m. the enemy emissaries reached advanced SHAEF headquarters just as the news of the surrender of German army group G in Austria to Gen. Devers was flashed.

Eisenhower has spent far more time at Reims than at main headquarters farther to the rear. The Ecole Professionnelle is a modern building, three stories high. It is of red brick and resembles many schools in the United States.

Shaped in a quadrangle, the building encloses a big square planted with green chestnut trees.

Britons Meet Germans

Brig. E. J. Foord, British chief of SHAEF's operational intelligence, and Lt. Col. W. A. S. Morrice, British assistant secretary of the general staff, met the Germans in this square.

Soen GIs, tommies, and WACs were craning their necks for a glimpse of the unusual visitors.

The Germans asked to tidy up before meeting the high allied officers. Friedeburg hummed softly to himself as he scrubbed his hands and changed his collar. Poleck teetered on his heels nervously. He seemed almost dazed.

Maj. Gen. Strong escorted Friedeburg to Gen. Smith, where he came to sharp attention in front of a battery of allied officers including Spaatz, Morgan, Burrough, Maj. Gen. Bull, Robb, Butcher, Col. R. G. H. Phillimore, who drafted the surrender terms, and Maj. Ruth M. Briggs, Gen. Smith's secretary.

The discussion lasted 22 minutes. It opened with a request that Friedeburg show his credentials and his authority to represent Grand Adm. Doenitz, the new head of the German state.

Must Include Russia

He produced these and it became apparent that he was authorized to surrender on' on the western front. In reply, Smith gave him the terms in writing—unconditional surrender to Russia as well as to the western allies.

Smith declared that the German position was hopeless. Friedeburg agreed and said the Germans preferred to surrender only to the western allies, expressing fear that the Russians would kill many German soldiers.

Almost impatiently, Smith brushed aside the assumption. He said even more emphatically that the allies would consider only unconditional surrender to all four nations.

Friedeburg then attempted to describe what he called the sufferings and hardships of the German people.

Under "Dictates of Humanity"

Smith answered that the German people were enemies and would remain so until they surrendered. After surrender the allies would "act in accordance with the normal dictates of humanity," he said.

The German appeared perfectly composed. He rose and took the terms to the office assigned him in the school building. There he sat down with Poleck and studied them anew.

Whisky and sandwiches were sent into them.

Once during their deliberations Strong visited them to clarify some points in Eisenhower's terms.

Meanwhile the commander in chief sent urgent messages to Washington, D. C., London, and Moscow, informing them that Friedeburg was authorized only to offer surrender of the remaining German forces on the western front, that this offer had been rejected, and that the admiral was now seeking authorization from Donetz to make a full surrender to Russia as well as the western allies.

Russians Informed

At the same time Susloparov and Zenkovitch, Russian representatives at SHEAF, received full details of the situation from Gen. Smith and they and other high SHEAF officers waited for any formal meeting which might be arranged on receipt of authority from Doenitz.

Finally Friedeburg appeared with a message addressed to Doenitz.

It outlined the terms and embodied Smith's suggestion that Doenitz either give Friedeburg full authority for a total surrender or send his chief of staff and the commanders in chiefs of his army, navy, and air forces with such authority.

SHEAF's warning that the new German government would have to shoulder the guilt for continuing the fighting also was contained in the message.

Spend Night in House

While awaiting Doenitz's reply, Friedeburg and Poleck spent the night in a seven room house at 3 Rue Goinot, Reims, with Lt. Col. Bury, Maj. Lawrence, and Lt. George Reinhardt of New York, SHEAF interpreter. Military policemen stood guard outside.

On instructions from Eisenhower, Smith made another suggestion during the conversation that an immediate cessation of hostilities be ordered to save lives while waiting for formal surrender.

Doenitz's response came on Sunday with Jodl, who entered British lines from German territory.

Brought to the schoolhouse, Jodl washed and then went to the room where Friedeburg was waiting. The admiral did not salute as Jodl walked in. They talked together for a considerable time.

Smith received them at 6:15 p. m. and at 7:56 Strong sent word to the correspondents that nothing would be signed for at least three hours.

At 9:12 p. m. the Germans left headquarters to dine.

Eisenhower had two fountain pens ready. He had been keeping them for such an occasion since the close of the North African campaign in 1943. All the signatories used them except Susloparov, who pulled a big green fountain pen from his pocket when it was his turn to write.

Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen Jr., chief of SHAEF public relations, stepped into the ground floor conference room assigned to correspondents and said:

"Gentlemen, I think this is it. Follow me in double file."

G. I. Joe in the Pacific

By ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH 3D ENGINEER SPECIAL BRIGADE, May 7 [Delayed]—The idea, the general said, was to open the Mindanao river to traffic. The Mindanao is the Mississippi of the Philippines and runs right up to the back door of Davao, on Mindanao Island.

The job naturally went to the boys of this brigade. Their rather confusing title means that they run the landing barges which bring assault troops ashore and then haul in supplies.

A flotilla of a dozen barges, some loaded with infantry men of the 24th division, chugged into the 300 foot wide river. Four miles away was the town of Toamontaka. Guerrillas said about 200 Japs were there, but navy planes had just finished bombing it as the flotilla came around a bend and there wasn't much left so the barges kept right on.

Cave Proves Hiding Place

Around the next bend was a cave. "That would be a nice place for the Japs to hide," said Capt. Ferdinand [The Bull] Newburg, Rockford, Ill., whose sister is Mrs. Stanley Faulkerson, 125 Waiola av., La Grange, Ill.

So he fired a machine gun into the rushes. Six Japs came running out. The whole flotilla cut loose. Five Japs just fell over, but one, hit by an explosive 25 millimeter shell from a Jap ack-ack gun taken from Clark field and mounted on one barge, blew up. "Must have been something he ate," some one wisecracked.

Occasionally snipers fired and the men in the boats fired back. What appeared to be a heavily foliaged island rocked in the wash of the barges. The explorers investigated with their guns, shot aside the foliage, and found the "island" comprised six camouflaged Jap barges. They sank the barges.

A Filipino waving from the bank said a gang of 80 Japs had kidnaped his father and brother to lead them to a nearby village. The barges halted and 18 men went ashore. That night the Yanks ambushed the Japs, then all but two of the 18 withdrew. One Yank got lost and sprained an ankle. Two Filipino boys, each about 8 years old, carried him five miles. The other Yank didn't get the withdrawal order. He dug in and stayed there all night. Once he saw 12 Japs crawling past him and he killed all of them. At dawn, when he discovered he was alone, he got out without delay.

They Capture Fort Pikit

About 60 miles up river was Fort Pikit, Filipino constabulary post. Guerrillas said 500 Japs lived within the heavy stone walls of the fort, which, with towers on each corner, looked like an army post on our western plains years ago.

While rounding a bend below the fort, the barges shot rockets into the fort. There was a beautiful explosion. The barges ground ashore. Capt. Newburg and seven others stormed the hill and peeked into the open gates. Inside there was lots of wrecked equipment, but no Japs, alive or dead.

The flotilla sent a radio message to the general: "We have stormed Fort Pikit and it is ours."

From then on until the river shallowed, 90 miles inland, it was clear sailing.

[The general concerned is the outfit's commander, Brig. Gen. D. A. D. Ogden. From 1934 to 1938, he was assistant engineer in Chicago, concerned with another waterway—the Chicago drainage canal.]

DOENITZ TELLS GERMANS NAZI REICH IS ENDED

LONDON, May 8 (AP)—Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, announcing that he had discharged his "foremost task—saving the lives of German people"—ordered German forces to cease fire tonight, pronounced the end of the Nazi reich, and placed the fate of the people and himself at the mercy of the allies.

Addressing the German people over the Flensburg radio, Hitler's successor said, "All arms will be silent" at 11 o'clock European time [5 p. m. Chicago time] tonight.

This order, if obeyed, would end all the remaining fighting by the Germans on land and sea and in the air—the last ragtag resistance reported in today's, presumably the last, German high command bulletin.

Account of Stewardship

Speaking sadly and solemnly, Doenitz, who once told his submarine commanders to go out and "kill, kill, kill," rendered to the people an accounting of his historic eight days as fuehrer in which Germany surrendered unconditionally to the allies.

He pointed the Germans toward the future as a beaten and occupied nation in which "we must face facts squarely," and called upon them to "walk dignified, disciplined, and courageous . . . in the hope that our children may one day have a free and secure existence."

Doenitz said that the Nazi party had been severed from the state and "the Nazi party has left the scene of its activities."

The admiral said he ordered the German high command to surrender unconditionally on the night of May 6-7 "to save the life of the German people" and "German soldiers of countless battles are now treading the bitter path to captivity and thereby making the last sacrifice for the life of our women and children and for the future of our nation."

Up to Occupying Authorities

"With the occupation of Germany," Doenitz continued, "power has been transferred to the occupying authorities. It is up to them to confirm me in my function and the government I have appointed, or decide whether to appoint a different one. Should I be required to help our fatherland I will remain at my post.

[I. Yermashev, a Moscow radio commentator, branded Doenitz as a war criminal equally guilty with Hitler and Himmler and demanded death for all the top Nazi figures.]

"Duty keeps me on my difficult post for the sake of Germany. I will not remain one hour more than can be reconciled with the dignity of the reich. I will disregard my person in this matter.

"We bow to all those who have fallen. In the coming years of want I will help the courageous women and children as far as I humanly can to alleviate their conditions."

M'ARTHUR HAILS V-E DAY; LOOKS FOR BIG ARMY

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, May 8 [Reuters]—On the occasion of V-E day, Gen. MacArthur broadcast the following message:

My fellow Americans: "I rejoice with you in the triumph of allied arms which has restored human liberty to the enslaved peoples of Europe. I rejoice that this phase of the titanic struggle, in which our country has now been long engaged, has now been brought to a victorious conclusion—and I rejoice that this command, which is at present engaging our remaining enemy on many fronts, will now be reenforced by those vast powerful resources of war which heretofore have been employed on the battlefields of Europe.

"Thru this additional strength, the Japanese empire will be the more speedily vanquished with a greater economy of American and allied life than otherwise would be possible."

He concluded his message: "The members of this command salute their comrades in arms, victors in the war in the west, as we rededicate ourselves to the task which lies ahead in the east. However monumental the task, with help of Almighty God, we shall not fail."

215 Interned U. S. Flyers Free to Leave Sweden

STOCKHOLM, May 8 (AP)—Almost 400 military internees, including 215 American flyers who made forced landings in Sweden, may leave the country as soon as the allies arrange transportation for them, Swedish authorities announced tonight.

BANDSMEN TURN CORPSMEN AND SAVE WOUNDED

Brave Fierce Jap Fire on Okinawa

BY THOMAS MORROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH U. S. FORCES ON OKINAWA, May 7 [Delayed]—War on the 1st marine division front developed into a hand grenade hurling contest that jarred Japanese troops from a ridge pocket which they had defended stubbornly for four days.

Then the marines assaulted the ridge with a shower of grenades, and the Japs replied with the same weapon. The enemy fell back, however, and the marines were hunting them thru the ridge system.

Five hundred yards ahead along the west coast other marines were waiting for those assaulting the ridge to pull up and straighten out the line 1,500 yards north of the outskirts of Naha. Patrols had moved ahead along the coast without meeting any resistance.

Meanwhile the 77th army division was slowly advancing thru the heavily caved and defended positions south of hill 196. Six thousands yards ahead of the most advanced troops lay the narrowest point of southern Okinawa. At this point, where the island flares to a wide southern end, the going was expected to become easier in terrain and defenses.

Capture Carrier Pigeon

Captured by the marines during the fighting was a Japanese carrier pigeon taken from an infiltrating Jap. It was freed, bearing this message: "We are returning your pigeon. Sorry we can not return the troops with it."

As casualties mounted during the heavy fighting, members of the 1st marine division band, who double as stretcher bearers, were commended for their work. The call of "Corpsman," which follows each Japanese shell blast, is answered by the bandsmen. They move forward under the heaviest fire to bring the wounded to safety.

"We lost two men killed and six wounded," said Bandsman Henry L. Genco, Brooklyn, N. Y. "A machine gun got them. We lost a pianist and a drummer today."

Team Rescues 15 Yanks

Sgt. Gaze of Hawthorne pl., Chicago, said that his team brought out 15 wounded on May 2, the first day they were in the lines. James C. Wilbur, a sergeant and clarinetist, 4509 Highland av., Downers Grove, Ill., strained his back and was evacuated after moving four stretcher cases.

Pvt. Ted Kawiecki, 640 Waveland av., Chicago, a violinist, and Pvt. Cort J. Spalding, 29 N. Sheridan rd., Highland Park, Ill., braved a stretch of sniper fire to remove wounded. Also engaged in removing the wounded were Corp. Robert E. Barr, 430 S. Maple st., Centralia, Ill., a drummer in more peaceful maneuvers, and Pvt. Kenneth Monge, 530 N. London av., Rockford, Ill.

THE DAY BERLIN FELL: WRECKAGE, TEARS MARK END

American Tells of Scene as Reds Move In

[Two American writers have written accounts of what they saw in Berlin. John Groth, 37 year old artist and war correspondent, who served for several years as a Tribune artist, wrote his story after a visit to Berlin the day it fell. Virginia Irwin of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch visited the Russians in Berlin before the city's final surrender.]

BY JOHN GROTH

[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press.]

BERLIN, May 3 [Delayed]—(AP)—Hitler's legacy—the broken, smoking chaos of Berlin—sprawls under the vivid banners of the Red army today. German tears and hunger mark the end of the Nazi empire.

We entered the once arrogant capital of the European new order at 1:30 p. m., in a dusty jeep mixed in with trucks of a Russian convoy returning from the west.

Russian storm troops were crushing the SS [Nazi elite guards] remnants in the last hour of battle in the shell torn waste of the Tiergarten.

For miles around that tiny pocket of resistance stretched lifeless mounds of debris of what had been a city of 4,000,000.

Slowly plodding past us on the Berliner strasse came long lines of soviet horse drawn transports. The drivers looked like nomads from the steppes of central Asia. There was a dreary rain falling from an overcast sky—appropriate for this Teutonic Goetterdaemmerung.

Smashed, overturned street cars showed where enemy barricades had been conquered in turn by the Russian assault that days earlier had moved from the Berliner strasse north of Belle Alliance strasse. It was the only clear way into the city from the south.

Germans Clear Debris

German women, children, and old men were clearing paths under the guard of Russian tommy gunners and riflemen. There are no young German men left. Civilians moved abjectly, picking up bricks by hand.

The scarred walls and a hillock of muddy masonry of the reichschancellery on the left side of Wilhelm platz still smelled of battle. Empty windows gaped in the fire scorched facade. Part of the roof had fallen in.

Three Red flags flew over this seat of government for the reich that Hitler predicted would last 1,000 years. A mammoth black and white photograph of Premier Stalin had been hung by his proud troops on one of the chancellery's walls. A defaced picture of Hitler could still be seen.

Our soviet allies seemed very elated about the fact that American and British bombers had wreaked such great destruction upon Berlin before the Red army's assault.

They threw their arms around us and welcomed us as "comrades." Many others, however, exhausted by long hours of battle, dozed in their vehicles parked along the street.

Revenge for Russians

But the Russians were happy—with almost indescribable joy. They were in Berlin. In this German capital lies their true revenge for Leningrad and Stalingrad, for Sevastopol and Moscow.

And the Russians are having their revenge. Along the road into Berlin, the fields along the roadways are littered with the carts and belongings of the Germans who tried to escape from the capital.

1ST U. S. GIRL IN BERLIN

BY VIRGINIA IRWIN

[War Correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch]

BERLIN, April 27 [Delayed]—(AP)—[Copyright]—I am one of the first three Americans to enter Berlin. After we crossed the Elbe river where the Russians and Americans made contact this afternoon, I arrived at Berlin at dark tonight with Andrew Tully, correspondent for the Boston Traveler and jeep driver Sgt. John Wilson of Roxbury, Mass.

Virginia Irwin.

Andrew Tully

The air is heavy with smoke. Everywhere around us is the clatter of small arms fire. Russian artillery is pouring an almost constant barrage into the heart of the city. But in this Russian command post, where we are guests of Guards-Maj. Nikolai Kovaleski, there is a terrific celebration going on. The arrival of three Americans in Berlin was the signal for the Russians to break out their best vodka and toss a terrific banquet in our honor.

Run Off the Map

We arrived in Berlin a few minutes before 8 p. m. after the strangest journey I have ever undertaken. We "ran off" the map and had to navigate by guess. None of us understood Russian. German road signs had been removed and replaced with their Russian equivalent.

We got to Berlin on the strength of a crude hand-made American flag flying from our jeep, several hundred handshakes and repeated assurance to fierce Russians who repeatedly stopped us that we were "Amerikanski."

Before 8 o'clock we were well into Berlin with the forward elements of the Russian troops in the German capital. German dead lay on the sidewalks, in the front yards of the bomb shattered homes of the Berlin suburbs. All streets were clogged with Russian tanks, guns, infantry in their shaggy fur hats and everywhere the horses of the Russian army ran loose about the streets.

FINDS GERMAN BUSINESS SET FOR 'GO' SIGNAL

Nation Richest in Europe on Day of Defeat

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 8—On the day of final defeat, big and little business men in Germany have only one concern—how soon they can resume business and insure their own survival.

Germany, still the wealthiest country of Europe and with a people stronger and healthier than any nation on the continent except Sweden, eagerly awaits the "go" signal to begin peacetime production, oblivious of the fact that the victor nations first will seek to restore the nations despoiled by German armies.

Can Start Soon

A big proportion of Germany's industry will be able to resume work on relatively short notice, because the blows of the allied air forces were directed principally against key plants, producing solely for the German war machine.

Even such a plant as the great Siemens Schukert works at Nuernberg, which manufactures transformers, could resume production on two months' notice, altho it was heavily damaged in air raids.

Big and little industrialists and business men in Germany have so many plans in readiness for the resumption of activities that the business-industrial advisers of the military government offices which the allies set up in Germany are overrun with Germans trying to enlist coöperation.

With foreign slave labor leaving Germany and millions of Germans still prisoners in foreign lands, German industry might suffer from a man power shortage, but an industrialist with whom I talked in Nuernberg said that he and his colleagues were certain that England and America would return German prisoners promptly.

Can Work Again Soon

"The Americans have been treating German prisoners very well, according to reports, so that they will be able to resume work quickly," the industrialist said.

All Germans, however, are worried about German prisoners in Russia.

Thanks to the food supplies and raw materials which the Germans seized in France, Belgium, Holland, and other countries or in the rich granaries of Hungary, Yugoslavia, and Romania, the population has retained the vitality, energy, and physical health which the Nazis sought to destroy in all the lands they conquered.

Better Food Than in 1940

When I left Germany in 1941 the population was beginning to grow listless and tired because of food shortages, long hours of work and long hours in air raid shelters during bombings. Even the homes of the rich were beginning to suffer from the shortage of textiles and foodstuffs. Now, after four more years of war and systematic exploitation of German conquests, the homes of the well-to-do are overstuffed with reserves, and the population as a whole is much better fed and more energetic than in 1940 and 1941.

Linen rooms are bulging with precious damask linens, eiderdowns, blankets, and furs from France, Czechoslovakia, and all the countries the Germans despoiled. Pantries are filled with a vast assortment of the best canned delicacies of Europe, olive oil, and home grown foodstuffs.

The larders of the lower classes and the non-Nazis are not so well stocked, but they are better supplied than in the long years when Germany accepted Hermann Goering's order calling for "guns instead of butter."

Chaplin Files Notice He'll Seek New Trial

Los Angeles, Cal., May 8 [Special]—Recently named by a jury as the father of 19 month old Carol Ann Berry, Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, today filed notice in Superior court that he intends to ask for a new trial of the paternity suit which ended with him being ordered to pay $75 a week for the child's support. His attorneys filed the petition for a retrial on the grounds the evidence did not support the verdict. No date for hearing on the motion has yet been set.

V-E State St. Prays and Plods

BY GLADYS PRIDDY

State street yesterday was a great aisle of walking and waiting people. People moving in endless procession; people lined against store windows; people teetering on curbs; people standing in queues outside theaters.

It was a magnet for high school girls who bought paper hats and perched them atop their babushkas only to look more forlorn than ridiculous, more disappointed than merry.

It was a street of families—men and women and their children—plodding up and down.

But the hours wore on, and the spontaneous good fellowship, the dancing in the street of Nov. 11, 1918, never materialized. In mid-afternoon, automobile traffic was allowed on the street again.

At 5:30 p. m. and again at 9 the people bowed heads as prayers came to them over the public address system.

Chicago centers for service men became refuges for them yesterday. Demonstrative bobby soxers drove the men in uniform to spots where the girls couldn't follow. "Those bobby sox girls over on State st. are crazy," was the rather ungallant way a sergeant with four gold bars on his sleeve described his reason for retiring to the safety of the U. S. O. at 131 S. Wabash av.

A well dressed man stood hesitantly at Wabash av. and Washington st., asking passing soldiers and sailors to go to lunch with him. After three smilingly had said, "No, thanks," a young sailor accepted the invitation. The two men introduced themselves and went off, arm in arm, with the civilian explaining, "I just wanted to say 'thanks' some way to the guys who are fighting."

Display lights went on sporadically in Chicago last night, as the dim-out was lifted after having been in effect since Feb. 1. The water tower, at Michigan and Chicago avs., and the Palmolive building were lighted again. Most of the theaters turned on marquee illumination. Along Michigan av., La Salle st., and various other streets some signs were lighted and some not.

Many Chicagoans observed the day by calling at the Red Cross blood bank, 5 N. Wabash av., to offer blood for the men still facing death in the Pacific war. The bank easily reached its daily goal of 500 pints. Among the donors were 40 SPARS and coast guardsmen.

Douglas Crooks, who operates a candy shop on Main st., Wauconda, placed on the floor of the shop a 13 foot long nazi flag which a friend had sent him from Germany. Crooks invited all customers to wipe their feet on the flag. "Business was good," he said.

Workers at the Dodge Chicago plant and the aircraft division of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company celebrated V-E day yesterday in a manner unpleasant for the Japanese. Twenty thousand Dodge workers reported for their day shift jobs, establishing an attendance above normal. The Chrysler corporation plant makes engines for the Super Fortresses used to bomb Japan. Attendance at the Pullman division likewise was above normal. The 3,500 employes there make wings for giant cargo and transport planes, also needed in the Pacific war.

All stores and saloons were closed; there was no place for celebrators to go except to movies, and these were soon jammed. Police details were stationed at each theater. The police department had 800 men in the loop and the entire fire department force of 3,000 men was held on duty, but there was little for them to do.

Many of the city's war plants stopped their machines to let workers listen to President Truman's proclamation. At the Douglas Aircraft corporation plant, workers stood for a minute of silence in tribute to Douglas employes in the army and navy. Employes of the Electro-Motive plant in McCook stood at attention while the plant's sirens blew five times in salute to the fighting men.

One of the most dramatic incidents of the day occurred at Fort Sheridan, where 1,400 German prisoners of war were notified by Lt. Col. E. R. Schuelke, base camp commander, that the cause for which they fought has been lost. To the spokesman for the prisoners Col. Schuelke said:

"The organized resistance of the German armed forces has ceased. The national socialist [Nazi] government no longer exists. As prisoners of war, you continue to be subject to American laws and regulations. Correct, soldierly conduct is mandatory."

The spokesman nodded gravely. "I understood," he said.

SIX NEW TRIER PUPILS HELD IN V-E VANDALISM

Six New Trier Township High school pupils were arrested by Lake Forest police for breaking street lights at three intersections as part of their V-E celebration. Those seized were James Hayes, 14, of 806 Locust st.; Edward Kearns, 15, of 1158 Hamptondale rd., and Joseph Hayes, 16, of 1047 Tower rd., all of Winnetka, and Thomas Leahy, 16, of 300 Green Bay rd.; William Krichberg, 16, of 254 Mary st., and Arthur F. Shaw Jr., 18, of 427 Woodlawn ave., all of Glencoe. Police Sgt. Paul Jensen said he found 18 rocks in the convertible coupe driven by young Shaw. All were held on charges of disorderly conduct.

V-E DAY MOBS LOOT HALIFAX, BATTLE POLICE

HALIFAX, N. S., May 8 (AP)—Looting mobs, growing out of Halifax's boisterous V-E day celebration, raged thru the business districts today, smashing store windows, battling police, and causing loss estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Civil authorities clamped an 8 p. m. curfew on this Canadian port city, and military and naval police were called in to clear the streets. Two fires were reported, power lines were cut, and a large section of the city was without lights for more than an hour. A mob overturned a street car last night and set it on fire.

SMALL NATIONS HIT BY FRISCO PRIORITY RULE

San Francisco, Cal., May 8 (AP)—The allied conference agreed today to give priority in its working committees to big power amendments to a world charter for maintaining peace.

Proposals of small countries will have to wait their turn for consideration under procedure approved today by the conference's executive and steering committees.

"Priority should be given by the technical committees to the consideration of the amendments jointly proposed by the sponsoring governments," the formula says. "These amendments should be incorporated in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

"The Dumbarton Oaks proposals as thus amended should be reissued as the basic document of the conference for the work of the commissions and technical committees."

Some small nation delegates expressed the fear that under the procedure outlined some of their proposals would be squeezed out.

PARIS STAGES ALL OUT VICTORY CELEBRATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 8 — While planes roared over rooftops and loud speakers blared Paris was staging an all out victory celebration tonight. The official observance began today, but the celebration was well under way by last night, with a sea of Parisians moving thru the streets until morning.

Highlights of the day included a broadcast address by Gen. de Gaulle, announcing the war's end which he called "a victory of the allied nations and of France"; the firing of cannons from the Paris forts and the hooting of sirens and ringing of church bells; parades of singing, shouting youths.

Processions of civilians mixed with allied soldiers moved up and down the flag dotted streets. Soldiers kissed all the French girls they could find. Tonight the capital was ablaze with floodlights thrown on the Arch of Triumph and other monuments, the National Opera house, and the city hall.

RICHARDS MADE A SPEECH
—and "Safety First" was born

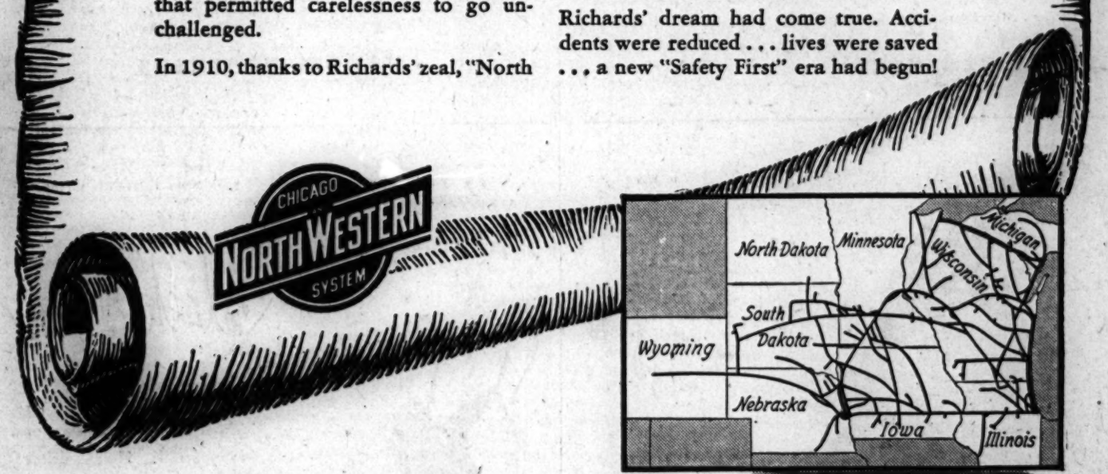
Some years after the turn of the century, "North Western's" Ralph C. Richards delivered an address before a group of employes. His subject was, "Conservation of Men."

Richards was a crusader, in the finest sense of the word. He felt keenly the need for safety education. To him the saving of human life was a sacred duty . . . he rebelled at the easy philosophy that permitted carelessness to go unchallenged.

In 1910, thanks to Richards' zeal, "North Western" began systematic efforts to reduce accidents . . . thus the first railroad accident prevention organization came into being.

Richards' influence spread. The Father of the "Safety First" movement won recognition from cities, states, industries and other railroads. Finally, came the National Safety Council, the attainment of his long sought ambition.

Richards' dream had come true. Accidents were reduced . . . lives were saved . . . a new "Safety First" era had begun!



Today, "Safety First" is a by-word on every railroad and in all industries. The security of travelers is important; that of employes equally so. Safety measures, too numerous to mention, have been introduced. Along with faster train schedules have come protective devices, such as automatic train control, that have made train travel safer than an evening at home. In the years to come "North Western", always a leader in the "Safety First" movement, will continue to pioneer. Safety—first, last and always!

MEAT SHORTAGE IS BLAMED ON OPA PRICE RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 8—Sen. Bushfield [R., S. D.] today recommended that the office of price administration be stripped of its authority to regulate prices of all meat products. He predicted such a move would eliminate the black market and produce an adequate supply of meat thru legitimate channels.

Bushfield made his recommendation in a letter to Chairman Thomas [D., Okla.] of the senate food investigating committee. Thomas had asked members of the committee, of which Bushfield is a member, for suggestions for the forthcoming report of the committee.

"The only purpose for fixing prices thru the office of price administration or otherwise," said Bushfield, "is to prevent inflation and cause a fair distribution. There can be no inflation unless there is a shortage of merchandise.

"There is no shortage of meat, therefore there could be no inflation if all the price regulations on meat products were removed."

Gen. Pershing 'Quite Sick'; Army Gives No Details

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—The man who led American troops to victory in 1918—Gen. John J. Pershing—was on the sick list today when Germany's surrender was proclaimed today. A war department spokesman reported the 84 year old hero was "quite sick" but gave no details. Pershing for years has lived at the army's Walter Reed hospital here.

GIVE FAREWELL COCKTAIL PARTY FOR MOLOTOV

Beaming Russian Has Cause for Smiles

missions and committees would be determined by a simple majority but that all other matters would be decided by a two-thirds vote. This is subject to formal approval of the full conference later.

Tonight's farewell party for Molotov, who is reported ready to depart for Moscow tomorrow, altho his successor as delegation head, Russian Ambassador Gromzko, professed not to know if this was so, drew in addition to Stettinius and British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden a select group of representatives of the leftist press. Also on hand to bid the Russian good-by, and some of them perhaps to compliment him on his successes here, were members of most of the 48 delegations present at the conference.

Reverses, Not Real Defeats

While pleased with what he did accomplish for Russia, Molotov suffered some reverses. He failed to get the Russian sponsored Lublin Polish government admitted but the soviets will not mind that very much, inasmuch as they hold all the cards in the Polish dispute. They control the only provisional government in Poland and their army occupies the country. All that Britain and America can do is to urge Moscow to abide by the Yalta agreement to include non-communist democratic elements in the Polish government.

Molotov also failed to prevent the admission of Argentina, but he entered that fight for trading purposes. He was willing to accept Argentina if the conference had been willing to accept the Russian Polish government.

Yalta Deal Carried Out

Much amusement was generated in conference circles by the outcome of Molotov's proposal that the peace league's preamble should mention "the right to work and the right to education as some of the most important human rights." The American delegates applauded Molotov's suggestion and said that the league charter should go farther and espouse freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of religious worship. Possibly because these freedoms do not exist in Russia, Molotov quickly dropped the subject and nothing more was heard of it.

Among the accomplishments here chalked up to the credit of Molotov is the admission of the White Russian and Ukrainian soviet republics to the peace league and their seating in the conference, thus giving Russia three votes to the British empire's six and the United States' one.

In this matter, however, he was fortunate to have the potent aid of the United States, and otherwise might have been defeated.

The American delegation already had decided to support the three votes for Russia as a secret deal Mr. Roosevelt made at Yalta which the United States was in honor bound to abide by, no matter how much Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and other delegates might feel that it was a repudiation of the principle of sovereign equality of nations on which the new peace league was to be founded.

The Latin American republics and other small nations, however, were opposed to plural votes for Russia, being unconvinced that White Russian and the Ukraine had any actual status independent of the soviet union. Stettinius and Nelson Rockefeller, who has superintended the expenditure of hundreds of millions of lend-lease dollars in South and Central America, got the Latin Americans in line for the deal, after which Molotov scored an easy victory.

Molotov made no bones of admitting that the three votes for Russia are only a starter. There are 13 other soviet republics with as good a claim to independent representation in the league as the three now admitted. Then there are Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, which the soviet union has swallowed up but intends to give nominal independence, at least for eventual voting purposes in the league.

A Ballot Box Contest

Thus Russian Premier Stalin and his faithful and efficient servant Molotov have paved the way for an aggregate 19 votes in the league in addition to the soviet satellite countries — Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, already voting with Moscow in the San Francisco conference, and eventually Poland, Finland, Romania, Bulgaria and Austria, in which the soviets have set up Russian controled Communist governments.

Altogether Moscow eventually may have something like 30 votes in the peace league when the present membership of 49 nations is increased to approximately 70. With Latin America, the United States might command 21 votes, Britain and France the remainder. Under the two-thirds rule governing important decisions, Russia might have eventually more than the 23 votes which could veto action in the league assembly.

The soviets already dominate eastern Europe and are penetrating other parts of the continent to such an extent that European nations may find at no distant date that they have exchanged the totalitarian fascism of Hitler for the equally totalitarianism of Stalin.

The soviet penetration of the United States also is going on apace. The CIO and its political action committee, under the leadership of Sidney Hillman and leagued with his American Labor party, is a potent influence for the Russian Communists. Hillman and his PAC already have bored deeply into the Democratic party. The New Deal is permeated with Communists and their fellow travelers.

Immediately after the Tehran conference in which Mr. Roosevelt gave Stalin the green light to extend the soviet hegemony over Poland and eastern Europe, Earl Browder dissolved the American Communist party, came out for the fourth term and concentrated on boring into the American Labor party, of which the Communists soon won control, and into the Democratic party. Mr. Roosevelt not long thereafter was instructing the leaders of the latter party to clear the Vice Presidential nomination with Hillman.

Molotov has been promoting this soviet penetration of the United States in many subtle ways. Last night he was toasting Harry Bridges, whom the United States government has ordered deported for membership in the Communist party which was dedicated to the overthrow of the American form of government by force and violence.

Some "Newspapers" Help

The soviet infiltration of America is being carried out in other ways. Earl Browder, head of the Communist Political association, is the principal unofficial soviet propagandist in the United States. The Daily Worker, for many years subsidized by Moscow, the New Masses, and other communist publications promote the soviet cause, taking their stand with Moscow against Washington whenever Russian and American policies differ.

Other newspapers, including David Stern's Philadelphia Record, the New York Post, owned by Dorothy Schiff Backer Thackrey, daughter of Mortimer Schiff, the international banker, and the Marshall Field press have been actively furthering soviet policies in this conference.

VET DENOUNCES BRITON'S ROLE AS GI VOICE

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 8.—Criticism of the state department's choice of consultants to present the viewpoint of the American soldier was voiced today by Philip Ellison, representing a veterans' group known as the American Veterans of World War II. at the security conference.

Ellison was particularly critical of the selection of Charles G. Bolte of New York City as an official consultant. He questioned the capacity of Bolte, a British army veteran, to provide an American outlook.

Bolte represents the American veterans' committee, an organization with only 2,500 members, which was picked by the state department as the only "junior" organization to be given official standing at the conference.

Other Groups Recognized

The other soldier groups recognized are the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American Veterans, all organized after World War I.

Ellison described the "run-around" he had been given by the state department here after he had been notified by his group's Washington headquarters that he would be given a consultant's credentials. He said he was told by John S. Dickey of the state department that Bolte's organization was the only group composed exclusively of this war's veterans which would be given a consultant's rating.

Ellison, a combat photographer with the army air forces who saw foreign service and was discharged after suffering serious injuries in an accident at Wright field, Dayton, O., said he had demanded an investigation of the origin of Bolte's "committee." He said he understood it had a radical complexion.

10,000 Members Reported

Ellison's group, which the state department refuses to recognize, was organized last December in Kansas City, Mo., and has 100 posts with a reported 10,000 membership.

"We want genuine GI representation at the conference," Ellison said in an interview.

POLES APPEAL TO FRISCO: SAVE 16 FROM REDS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

LONDON, May 8—The exiled Polish government in exile appealed to the San Francisco conference today to persuade the Russian government to free the 16 arrested Polish underground leaders and to obtain from the soviet union a guarantee for the safety of the men and their families. The "urgent appeal" was sent to San Francisco thru Secretary of State Stettinius.

The appeal was revealed as the exiled government publicly described the charges of sabotage against the underground leaders as a "complete fabrication."

Prof. Adam Pragier, Polish information minister, told a press conference that this "is not the first time underground leaders have disappeared and their arrest has subsequently been announced by the Russians." He cited two cases where the Polish home army had coöperated with the Red army in fighting the Germans, only to be disarmed and taken into custody when the fighting ceased.

ADVERTISMENT
CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR
She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

"C'mon, Neighbor—
let's dig for final Victory!"

"Sure, food's scarce. It takes a lot to win a war and much more to secure the peace. That's why we're growing our own—plenty of the best-tasting, health-giving vegetables we ever had. It's fun for the family—it's good exercise—it's a fine way to make new friends—and it's a sure way to make your share of the earth fight for Victory!"

Last year, Americans planted more than 18½ million Victory Gardens. From them came over 40 per cent of the nation's fresh vegetable supply.

This year, the need for Victory Gardens is even more urgent. Our armed forces are larger. They'll need a greater share of the total food. Then, too, many of our farm lads have been called into Service.

So plan your Victory Garden now . . . there must be a better tomorrow secured by an abundance of food for all. Give the few minutes each day your garden requires and it will produce delicious fresh fruits and vegetables. Peas, beans, cabbage, corn, tomatoes, carrots—all healthful and useful, fresh or stored.

You can do it. Thousands of Ford employees have their gardens under way. For two years they have won for the Ford Motor Company the National Victory Garden Institute plaque—the Institute's highest award. They know that the food they raise this summer—and all that they preserve—will help to secure the victory for which their sons and daughters fight.

C'mon neighbor, the season's getting along—let's all dig now for final Victory!

AFL CALLS CIO'S PARLEY PLOT TO ENSLAVE LABOR

Flays Russia's Role in Oakland Meeting

BY ARTHUR EVANS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 8—The American Federation of Labor, thru William Green, its president, today assailed the world trade union conference meeting at Oakland, Cal., as an effort to destroy free trade unions and to establish "a world labor political organization" under the control of government. Philip Murray of the CIO presided at the Oakland meetings, with Sidney Hillman at his right hand. Delegations from Russia, France, and other countries are participating.

AFL Refuses to Take Part

The Green statement cited the effort of the Russian delegation to the San Francisco conference to get recognition for the world trade union congress, and declared:

"We have declined to identify ourselves with a world trade union movement that is inspired by a political philosophy which is designed to subordinate and subjugate man and property to the exclusive will of the state."

The views of the AFL, as formulated by its executive council a few days ago in answer to reports that the federation will join the Oakland movement and give up its continued fight against Communist controled unions, was read at a press conference by Mr. Green.

Helped Form First Federation

The statement reviewed the traditional position of the federation for free organized labor, and pointed out that as far back as 1910 it helped create the international federation of trade unions. Associated with this were labor movements in Czechoslovakia, Belgium, France, Norway, and other invaded countries in which the Nazis destroyed the labor groups and sent the leaders to concentration camps.

Green said, "There is not the slightest possibility of the AFL joining with any forces bent on destroying the international federation of trade unions."

"It is falsely alleged," he continued, "that the AFL is likely to abandon its historic role in the field of international relations, assume the mantle of isolationism, desert the freedom of the workers, and join with those, under the title of the world trade union congress, who would enslave and enchain the workers to the state.

"We cast aside such insinuations.

"We declined to become part of a world trade union movement that would subordinate the American labor movement, as well as that of other lands, to the dictates of those who themselves are not free to determine their destiny."

Cites Soviet's Role

In a declaration that the world congress is a "subterfuge designed to subjugate American labor," the AFL statement said one evidence was "the most recent effort made by the soviet government at the San Francisco conference in sponsoring the world trade union congress as the recognized world labor movement and in attempting to substitute it in place of the international labor organization created by the free governments of the world."

The federation called for a world convention of the international federation of trade unions at the earliest possible time, to be held in Canada or the United States.

On the question of using slave labor in reconstruction of devastated areas of Europe, Green said this would be morally and economically wrong.

SUMNERS OFFERS NEW FORMULA ON TREATY-MAKING

Majority Approval by All in Congress

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 8—House administration forces today proposed a compromise in their fight to obtain approval of a constitutional amendment changing treaty ratification machinery.

The original proposal, to which strong Republican opposition has developed, would permit ratification of treaties by a simple majority vote of both houses of congress instead of by two-thirds of the senate alone, as at present.

Rep. Sumners [D., Tex.], chairman of the house judiciary committee, announced during today's floor debate on the measure, he will propose a revision requiring approval by a majority of the entire membership in each house, instead of a majority of those voting. In other words, it would take 218 "yes" votes in the house and 49 in the senate to ratify a treaty.

Majority Vote Opposed

Sumners stated frankly he was offered this as a "compromise" in view of strong opposition to the first proposal.

He spoke during debate on another proposed change, offered by Rep. Springer [R., Ind.], which calls for two-thirds approval of treaties by each house.

Springer declared treaties have such a far-reaching effect on the nation and its people that it would be unsound to make them effective by a simple majority vote, which, he added, can often be mustered by political pressure from the party in power.

Seeks Protection of People

Rep. Vursell [R., Ill.] declared the majority approval plan would permit the administration to force any kind of world peace organization it wants on the nation without regard to the rights of minorities.

Vursell said the Springer amendment would wisely give the house a voice in treaty making and at the same time protect the people, thru the two-thirds proviso, against being dominated by the executive branch of the party in power in foreign affairs.

The measure, and the proposed amendments, are expected to reach a vote tomorrow. Any change in the present constitutional provision requires two-thirds approval of both the house and senate and ratification by legislatures in three-fourths of the 48 states.

STRESS GREATER SAFETY IN army AIR AMBULANCES

Measures aimed at promoting increased safety of transport planes ferrying wounded soldiers and sailors to the United States from foreign battlefields were emphasized yesterday at the second session of a three day ground safety conference of the army transport command in the Stevens hotel.

Capt. George D. McClure of Washington, D. C., chief of the ATC ground safety division, told safety officers here from Alaska and four other transport headquarters that Gen. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, has ordered that every precaution be taken that no wounded man is hurt while being flown to hospitals in this country.

Only seven of every 100,000 wounded have died while being flown back to the United States, Capt. McClure disclosed.

HOOVER URGES ARMY TAKE OVER FEEDING EUROPE

New York, May 8 [Special]—Former President Hoover recommended in an address tonight that the war department take over the whole problem of feeding the liberated countries of Europe.

This step should be taken, Hoover said, unless the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, now trying to do the job, is able to start a flow of food to Europe within the next few days.

Hoover spoke at a concert and rally in Carnegie hall under the auspices of the Save the Children Federation, Inc. His address was broadcast over the Mutual network. The meeting marked the merger with the federation of the Temporary Council on Food for Europe's Children.

He said he meant no reflection on former Gov. Lehman, head of UNRRA, in suggesting that the war department could do a more efficient job of handling the European food problem. The UNRRA, he said, has lacked the single handed authority which such large scale operations urgently require, and has been hampered by power politics.

Drawing on his experience as United States food administrator in World War I., the former President said that after that conflict 16,000,000 children in 15 countries of Europe were fed thru several thousand canteens stocked with food contributed by the United States and operated by women volunteers from the stricken countries.

BOWMAN SUGGESTION: HOW TO SAVE YOUR TRANSPLANTS

YOURS FOR BOUNTIFUL VICTORY GARDENS!

Bud Bowman

CUTWORMS ARE MIS'RABLE creatures. They have sharp teeth, and live in gardens, and can hardly wait until you carefully set out your tomato plants and such. Then they go to work! And next morning, all your transplants are—gosh—nipped off at ground level!

WHAT A CUTWORM NEEDS is a baffle-works. And what a baffle-works is, is a tough fiberboard collar—the kind you make from Bowman Milk cartons that are so sturdy and moisture-proof. Slice a carton in three or four square "rings", plant the plants, slip a collar over each one—pressing just to ground level. Then dare the cutworms to cut through that!

MAYBE YOU'LL HAFTA drink some extra Bowman Milk to get all the plant collars you need. But that'll be good for you—like the extra vegetables from your Victory Garden. And you'll enjoy it—'cause Bowman Milk is so country-fresh and rich and delicious.

THE PRISONERS

No time should be lost in releasing the millions of German prisoners now in allied hands.

Even if the Germans were to keep their weapons, which isn't the fact, the freeing of the prisoners couldn't do us any harm now that the German armies have been utterly disorganized and their cohesion, as well as their will to fight, have been broken. The conspicuous war criminals can be screened out. The rest of the prisoners should be sent home just as rapidly as it is possible to do so.

Normally, in Europe at least, after the fighting ceases prisoners are held by the victors until the peace is signed. This policy is intended to persuade the vanquished to accept terms that they might otherwise reject; the possession of the prisoners is used as a bargaining point.

There isn't going to be any bargaining this time. The Germans will take what they get whether they like it or not, and there isn't a chance that they can do anything about it whether their men are in prison camps or back home. This war didn't stop at the borders of Germany. All Germany is occupied. All her weapons are or shortly will be in our hands. All her means of transport and therefore of mobilization are in our control. She is bound, hand and foot, and is wholly at our mercy.

The compelling reason for releasing the prisoners is the prospect of famine in Europe next winter. As it is, we are going to have to do a lot of feeding in the liberated countries at considerable sacrifice here at home. The more foodstuffs Germany produces, the more food there will be in Europe for distribution, the less we shall be called upon to deliver, and the more ships we shall have available for supplying our armies across the Pacific.

The time is growing short. Within a few weeks the planting season will have passed. If we don't release the prisoners we shall have to continue feeding them as well as millions of other Europeans. Holding the captives aggravates the problem by increasing the demand on our resources and diminishing the supply of foodstuffs that the Germans ought to be providing for themselves and the victims of their aggressions.

America has nothing to teach Europe about the ways of starting wars, but, thanks chiefly to Lincoln and Grant, we do know how to end them. The formula is found in the Second Inaugural address. The application of it was seen at Appomattox. Grant sent the confederate soldiers home and even let them take their horses and sidearms with them. The enemy had been defeated beyond possibility of renewing the conflict. No use could be served by holding prisoners in idleness. Grant let them go, wisely, as all of us now realize.

The only excuse for keeping our prisoners now in a parallel situation is the lame one that Russia means to keep hers and hold them in slavery for a term of years. Perhaps that is what Russia intends to do and perhaps it isn't, but at any rate the proposal is a thoroly vicious one because slavery is always wrong, under all conceivable circumstances, and also because the enslavement of prisoners can only prolong the reign of hate in Europe and invite new and more dreadful wars. We may not be able to prevent the Russians from pursuing a hateful and hate breeding course, but at least we don't have to imitate them.

DECORATE THEIR GRAVES WHEREVER THEY MAY BE

Now that the victory in Europe is won, the nation should solemnly and gratefully remember the sacrifices of its heroic dead. So far 210,000 Americans have given their lives for their country. It is appropriate for us all to honor them this Memorial day, now only three weeks away.

Their graves are scattered from the beaches of Normandy to Guadalcanal, from Casablanca and Kasserine Pass to Tarawa, from Cassino to Iwo Jima and Lae. Wherever they rest, there, forever, is a part of America.

THE TRIBUNE feels that a grateful nation could display its solemn pride in all these men who died in defense of their country in no more appropriate way than to observe Memorial day all over the world this year. Each of us can participate this May 30 in the same spirit to which the nation was called when Gen. John A. Logan, himself a Chicagoan, first proclaimed that Memorial day in 1868 be observed "for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who fell in defense of their country."

SOME OTHER POLISH VICTIMS

In 1939, when the Red army took part in the partition of Poland that Stalin had arranged with Hitler, it arrested, among others, two leaders of Jewish trade unions in Poland, Henryk Erlich and Victor Alter.

During the Nazi invasion of Poland Erlich and Alter had been extremely active in rallying the Jews of Poland to resist the invaders. They were held prisoner for two years until Hitler attacked Russia, then were liberated in September, 1941, under an amnesty for all Polish citizens held in Russian territory, as arranged by the Polish government-in-exile in London. Thereafter, Erlich and Alter renewed their activities against Nazism and discussed with the Russian government the organization of a Jewish anti-Fascist committee in Moscow.

On Dec. 15, 1941, however, the Polish ambassador in Washington was informed that the two men again had been arrested by the Russians. For more than a year thereafter, representations were made to the Russian government to obtain their freedom. British and American labor organizations made repeated pleas on their behalf. In this country, Philip Murray of the CIO, William Green of the AFL, and Wendell Willkie were among those who made such pleas. Mr. Willkie sent a cablegram to Foreign Commissar Molotov late in January, 1943, and Mr. Green a similar message on behalf of himself, the AFL, and others, about the same time.

None of these messages received any reply from the soviet government until, on Feb. 15, 1943, Mr. Green received a communication from Maxim Litvinov, then the Russian ambassador to the United States, informing him that Erlich and Alter had been condemned by a court martial and executed the previous December. The Russian charge against them was that they had been engaged in activities on behalf of Hitler, whom they had been stoutly opposing for more than a decade.

The circumstances of this case become germane to that of the 16 Polish leaders who went to Moscow in March, at Russian invitation, to discuss the broadening of the Russian puppet government of Poland. Repeated representations had been made by the American and British governments concerning the status of these Poles, who dropped out of sight soon after arriving in Moscow. Only a few days ago Mr. Molotov disclosed at San Francisco that all 16 had been thrown into prison for alleged "anti-Russian" activities.

In view of the fate of Erlich and Alter the next question that arises is, how many of the 16 are still alive?

END THE CENSORSHIPS IN EUROPE

The ridiculous suspension of the rights of the Associated Press to file news from Europe for some hours Monday emphasizes that the time has arrived to wind up military censorship everywhere in Europe, except as to the few details governing legitimate matters of security affecting the war with Japan. The offense of the AP was to tell the American public what it was entitled to know—that all German resistance had ended with unconditional surrender.

No question of military security was involved in this great news story for which the American people and the world had been impatiently waiting. The Associated Press fulfilled its duty to the public by making the news available at once. In doing so it scored one of the greatest news beats of all time.

The petty tyrants of the censorship division at supreme headquarters, allied expeditionary force, had endeavored to hold up this all-important news, possibly to satisfy their own sense of self-importance and probably to permit the politicians in Moscow, London, and Washington to indulge in the self-dramatization of making the announcement in their own good time. The story would have been bottled up for a full 24 hours.

When the Associated Press released the story, giving the time, place, and other particulars of the German capitulation, the censorship took punitive action in a spirit of outraged vanity. The entire Associated Press report from Europe to 1,400 American newspapers was ordered suspended. Later in the day the responsible military officials came to the realization that they had gone too far. They lifted the suspension except as to two Associated Press employes.

At no time did the censors acknowledge a responsibility to the public. They thought nothing of trying to suppress the most important story of the decade, even tho the German radio had already made the announcement of surrender and British and American radio announcers were discussing it at length.

The war is over in Europe. The only legitimate duties now left to the military press officers is to guarantee channels thru which American newspaper men can continue to transmit dispatches free from the censorships of the various European governments which are bent upon denying this country the truth. American reporters are entitled to tell this country what the facts are, whether on political, social, economic, or military subjects. The old excuse of security no longer can be twisted to permit army interference.

Our government should take steps to insure that the American press gets the whole truth from Europe, unfettered by the censorships of a dozen countries which are eager to consolidate the power of political cliques or to advance their own nationalist causes by concealing the facts from the American public. We should cut off loans, lend-lease, and relief and rehabilitation to all countries which do not meet these conditions. We should also withdraw from projects such as UNRRA, which, by attempting to internationalize relief provided almost entirely by America, deprive us of the right to fix the terms upon which we dispense benefits paid for out of American tax money. We are paying the piper; we should have the privilege of calling the tune. And the first thing this country wants is the right of knowing the truth thru a free and unhampered American press.

BY THE HEELS

A reader asks if there is still a street in Chicago named Balbo drive in honor of the late Mussolini's late air man. There is. The suggestion has been made that the street signs bearing this name be hung upside down from the lamp posts to which they are affixed. The proposal is respectfully submitted to the city council, together with the thought that it is a good rule not to name streets for any one until he's been dead for at least 25 years. A hundred years is better. At any rate, 7th st. is a pretty good name, and nobody is likely to suggest hanging it by the heels.

While preparing for the getaway the nazi higher-up tells the gullible to stay in there and fight. Nothing like it has been seen since sundry Washington dignitaries in '42 split arteries while bawling "Keep cool!"—Detroit News.

THE DAY AFTER

Let us rejoice over the absence of symbolism at the surrendering party. The famous old railway car of the forest of Compiègne, scene of the armistice signing of 1918 and the capitulation of France in 1940, was not rolled out for the occasion. This museum piece is undoubtedly hoodooed.

The little red schoolhouse of Reims, however, stirs the imagination. It suggests that the soul of modern Germany must go back to such places for a term of years to learn the fundamental maxims of behavior.

After the execution of Mussolini and the vanishing of Hitler, which prefaced the German débâcle, one philosopher approached another and asked, "Who is left for us to hate now?" He was reminded of the existence of a large number of emperor worshipers in the far east, with the admonition, "Let us beware, at any rate, of hating one another."

* * *

In recalling the celebrations of 1918, the oldtimers who had cheerful memories of pandemonium forgot to mention the victory balls. These were more flagrant in England, we believe, than in the United States, but wherever held, they were not admired. The post-war poets were bitter over these manifestations of bad taste. Alfred Noyes and Siegfried Sassoon, in particular, satirized such social occasions savagely.

RECESSIONAL

Lord of Mankind, the awful ritual is done,
Silent the screaming shell and the loud gun,
The battle's ended and the victory won.
Quietly sleep the dead.

Here on Thine altar lies our sacrifice:
The maimed, the grieved. If these will not suffice,
Exact then, Lord, the final bitter price—
The homeless and unfed.

Now is the ritual done,
All hearts are bled.
Kindle the crosses' small white flame
Whilst the last prayer is said:
Lord of Mankind, grant that all wars may cease;
Show Man the way to walk in lasting peace!

Miracle Among the Fishes

Without thought of miracles, I passed the long line of optimists blocking the meat counters of a loop store. Scant intervals between them revealed the usual hodgepodge of viscera, ragged chops, and unlovable sausage. Well, the fish counter, not a soul around—didn't want fish but willing to look. But what did I see? A luscious pot roast, a shoulder of veal, and four veal breasts in a small case next the fish—and only me to see them!

Desperately I looked about for a clerk. When the fishman emerged from his hideout and drifted into my latitude I made mesmeric signals with finger, eyebrows, and facial muscles. To which he grunted: "S'only roast I got—yu wantut?" My head nodded so hard I got an all-day crick in the neck. "One thutty and 25 points." I grabbed the package and edged around the staring line. Out on the street I came to my senses. There was me with a big hunk of meat on a warm day, no refrigeration, and eight hours before I could start home! Hah! Chiggers

DAYS LIKE THESE

And is it strange on days like these
That one should think of lovely things—
Of pale, pink buds in apple trees,
And cheery tunes a robin sings?

That one should think how very fair
This world can be—when lilacs bloom,
And cherry blossoms fill the air
With all their lovely, sweet perfume?

Choppy Tightens His Collar

When I broke Choppy's food bowl and ripped out the worst word I could think of, he came out into the kitchen, full of apologies. Dogs have a way of believing they will be blamed for everything, because they think they cannot talk, and Choppy is no exception. I assured him he was a nice doggie, and all was well.

I gave him his dinner, but there was no companion bowl, so no water, and Choppy likes a slurp of water after eating, which stupid me did not remember. Choppy finished his dinner, then came and sat in the dining door and stared at me. At first I didn't tumble, but Choppy, who thinks he cannot talk, managed to convey the message:

"Say, Bub, it's not unusual nowadays that there is no food around, but there always has been water. How come?"

Choppy now has a set of new dining dishes on an attractive green stand, so constructed that he will not get his whiskers wet while dining.

Believe I shall get a set for myself.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks answers questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents. Replies will be given by mail if stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice may be obtained from The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 So. Dearborn st., or by phone, Superior 0200.]

E. D. asks: "Is it necessary to employ an attorney to file claim for benefits under laws administered by the veterans administration?"

No. Veterans' organizations, such as the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, and Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Red Cross have service officers who will prepare and file claims for veterans and their dependents. The veterans administration also has an office at 327 S. La Salle st. and at Hines where claims may be prepared. Attorneys may be employed by claimants at their discretion, and written authorization must be given to the attorney to act for the veteran. The law limits his fee to not more than $10, which will be deducted from the amount of monetary benefit allowed by the administrator. The attorney will be paid by check by the administrator and no fee is allowed where no benefit is granted.

K. M. asks: "Can I have the war department notify me in the event anything happens to my fiance, who is in a combat unit overseas? His parents live in a distant state."

Only close relatives will be listed by the war department for notification of casualty in addition to the next of kin listed on the soldier's record. If a man has listed his wife as next of kin, giving her as emergency addressee, his parents also may be listed for notification, but not a distant relative or friend.

BALDNESS IS NOT THE ONLY HAIR PROBLEM

MEN and women in all walks of life and of all ages are interested in hair. Too much in unwanted places and not enough on the head will bring scores of persons to physicians, beauticians, and barber shops. Whether or not it is appreciated depends upon the local ground rules, but among our own people the fairer sex is expected to be free of hair on the face, chest, and arms. It has been estimated that at least 30 per cent of the female population sports a mustache—nearly or quite as well developed as that of the average boy at the time he begins to shave.

All too often the importance of down on the chin or upper lip is exaggerated. A young girl of 16 notices a few bristles which bother her so much that she continually picks at them. When long enough, they are plucked by the fingers or tweezers. This leads to a round of activities which ultimately will make the growth heavier than before. More and more time is spent looking at her skin with high-powered mirrors. She visions herself a bearded lady in the circus. Eventually she becomes so conscious of the condition that her social life is interfered with unduly. Unless convinced that the situation is of no consequence, personality problems may arise.

What is the cause of this plumage? The question has never been answered satisfactorily. Perhaps it is normal in some. When the trouble appears later in life, disorders of the thyroid or pituitary glands may be responsible.

The "feelers" may be pulled out with the fingers or tweezers. This method is tedious, somewhat painful, and temporary. Except on the face, wholesale removal with wax or other material may be employed. The preparation is applied in a warm, liquid state. As it cools it hardens, catching the hairs in its meshes. When peeled off, the entrapped fuzz comes with it. Shaving is popular especially of the armpits and the legs. Contrary to general belief the use of the razor does not add to rapidity of growth or coarseness; nor is the color deepened.

Bleaching, which makes the hair less noticeable, is harmless. The procedure is accomplished by dauding ammonia water on the involved area with a pledget of cotton, followed by hydrogen of peroxide. The parts should be washed first to eliminate all dirt and foreign material. The solution must not be too strong or burning may result.

Permanent removal is possible by electrolysis or diathermy. This work should be performed by one skilled in the profession. If done properly it should kill the follicles without scarring. The use of creams containing thallium may prove disastrous as poisoning often ensues. The X-ray is also condemned as it may damage normal surrounding skin. As with everything else, common sense is necessary lest the cure be worse than the disease.

I wish we were as successful in curing baldness as we are in the removal of superfluous hair.

EYESIGHT

J. H. O. writes: I am 75 years old and have always read a great deal. Now my sight is becoming dim. Will my eyes go out in time?

REPLY

Failing vision must be investigated by a competent eye doctor. The causes are many and, unfortunately, a few may not be corrected with glasses.

JUMPING TICKER

L. B. writes: My heart seems to jump around sometimes. Is this dangerous?

REPLY

Not necessarily. This may be a normal reaction following exertion or excitement. Other irregularities, equally annoying, may prove innocent. As a rule, they are easily rectified.

STICKY LIDS

S. W. W. writes: My eyes are glued together when I waken in the morning. Can you advise what this trouble is?

REPLY

This is frequently noted when the lids are infected [conjunctivitis].

ABNORMAL AREA

T. H. writes: What is the difference between a lesion and a scar when referring to the lungs?

REPLY

A lesion refers to any abnormality but a scar denotes that healing has occurred.

Buckling Under

It was pure accident that the meeting at which plans for women's activity in the 7th war loan drive were to be announced had been called for Monday, the day on which the news for which the world had been hungering for six years kept coming thru, quieted, denied as unconfirmed, and triumphantly, coming thru again and again. A pouring rain fell, as tho the heavens were weeping for all those fallen on the field of battle, somewhere a band played martial music, and the radio one of the chairmen had brought down kept sputtering something about it wasn't true until Stalin said so. No one believed the radio. It was true whether old Joe came thru or not, and every one knew it.

It was a grave meeting. The 7th war loan drive officially starts May 14 with a larger quota than any of the preceding six. Can this be raised? Or will the American people be so slap happy over peace in Europe that they not only will refuse to buy more bonds but will leapfrog out to cash in the ones they already have and add inflation to the other problems of all-out war in the Pacific? No one believed this, either. They could look around their luncheon table and find proof. There was general solemnity there, as there had been in all Chicago, when word of the surrender came thru. The average person at the table either had some one in the Pacific, some one in Europe who, so far as he knew, might go straight on to the Pacific, or some one on each side. They were there with prayers in their hearts. They felt, and said, that a bond drive started on V-E day would make its quota twice as fast as the others. The news of peace in Europe was only a foretaste. Now the American people would be 10 times as eager to buckle down to bedrock to get peace in the world. Or so we all felt.

Luncheon speeches can be very stuffy. Most of them are. You'd think war bond speeches would be especially stuffy, but these were not. There was rapt attention to each speaker. "How many things improve with age as much as a war bond?" one of the chairmen demanded. "We tried to make a list, but we only got as far as antiques and whisky." Motto: "Keep buying bonds until the last boy is back."

Another woman, an economist who had made a study of the financing of all wars since 500 B. C., said it looked as tho this one was the only one that was going to break even. [See this column at a later date for how she figured that one out; we, too, will believe it when we see it.] Total bonds bought to date, 112 billion dollars. She told of inflation in simple terms: of the department store which one day put 100 sets of flat silver out on a counter. By nightfall every one was gone. Motto: "For future security, hold them to maturity."

Many suggestions were made: Give bonds for Mother's day. Buy a bond as your part of Memorial day. Buy a bond on June 6, the first anniversary of D day in Europe. Buy a baby bond for a new baby [$18.75, not to be confused with the $7.50 baby bond issued to men in service] and get a Walt Disney certificate. [In New York the men servicing Dy-dee Wash customers led all in Baby Bond sales.] And how about the war stamp corsages? Well, that one seemed to be out. Harry Perlman, the man who invented them and became a $1 a year man directing the output, is now Pvt. Perlman. Before his exit from our civilian circles, 40 million dollars in the stamp corsages were sold nationally, all Chicago copies.

The bonds sold in Chicago and Cook county by women so far in the war add up to the staggering total of $1,067,068,000 [as of May 1]. The most extraordinary feminine bond investment was that of a Protestant church group, sect withheld from the eager ladies of the press, which broke down and invested $51,000 in bonds. Before the war this money had been earmarked to be sent to Japanese missionaries. The ladies finally decided that bullets might have more efficacy than tracts.

WHEEL CHAIR HANDICAPS

Chicago, May 5—Congratulations to THE TRIBUNE for showing how great the added handicaps of high curbs, flights of stairs, etc., can be to crippled men and women. Chicago once showed the way to all the world by providing the first public special schools for crippled children. Can it not now show the way for making life easier and fuller for crippled adults?

I have been a "wheel chair driver" for about eight years. Alone and unaided, I can go anywhere that my chair can go—usually places to spend money. Narrow doors, high curbs and flights of stairs bar me from many public places. A branch of the Chicago public library is three blocks from my home; it might just as well be 30 blocks away. Stairs and high curbs make it impossible for me personally to select books from its shelves.

The precinct polling place is three steps down from the sidewalk. So that I may vote, some one must carry 200 pounds of myself and steel brace both down and up those steps.

To cripples, Cmcago taxicabs are among the best in the nation, with wide doors and higher than average ceilings. But it is expensive to use taxicabs regularly. If buses had lower floors and eliminated the inside step, more cripples could travel cheaply and easily. ["Whole" persons could enter and leave more quickly and safely, too.]

Have you ever seen a church or synagog that a cripple could enter without struggling up flights of stairs? The requirement for finally cashing war savings bonds in person at hard to reach banks or postoffices discourages many of us from buying these bonds. [In 10 years, our only trusted messengers—our families—may be gone.]

OUT FOUR SHIRTS

Chicago, April 16—The six rules to avoid laundry trouble laid down by E. G. T. of Evanston were followed closely by me in handling my laundry.

I personally delivered four shirts to a branch office of one of the largest laundries in Chicago. I still have the store copy of their receipt for four shirts. After two months of telephone and personal calls to the main office and branch office, I still have been unable to get the shirts or any satisfaction. The value of the shirts was $14. Two lawyers refused to sue the laundry in Municipal court. They said the amount involved was too small, altho I offered to spend $25 to cure such a racket.

My belief is the customer is licked before he starts. I am out the shirts and can obtain no redress legally, despite my claim check. I was a customer of this laundry for 10 years. Does E. G. T. have any solution to my problem?

HITLER'S EPITAPH

Evanston, Ill., May 5—"Tho the wicked hath settled his habitation with the Eagle among the Starres, and say in his minde, I shall not be changed, I shall not taste of affliction, neither shall the dayes of Adversity lay hold on me, yet there is an appointed time for all things, and the Almighty who hath disposed the whole world, and hath charge over the Earth, will not pervert Judgement, His Eyes are upon the' wayes of Man, He seeth all goings, There is no darknesse, nor shaddow of Death where the workers of iniquity may hide themselves, but in the end the fulnesse of destruction will come upon them, as the breaking in of Waters: Terrors will persue their souls as the Winde, and their Welfair shall passe away as a Cloud."

With these words in the year 1641, the prelate of Canterbury, imprisoned in the Tower of London preceding his execution, opened his "Recantation," in which epistle he confessed his tyrannies and villainies and said: "Lo, now I passe away, and my memory stinketh."

It is strange how apt today are the phrases written 300 years ago.

THE WHITE COLLAR MAN PAYS

Hollywood, Ill., May 1—So now we are to have a war workers' organization after the war. With a soldiers' organization and a war workers' organization I think it is time for a white collar workers' organization. The soldier fought the war, the war worker [for a price] made the tools of war, and the white collar man paid for the war. In the OPA hearings one meat packer made the statement that everybody was making more money now and could pay higher, prices. I, for one, make less now, not to mention the increased living costs. Sen. Thomas tells us that none of us will see, during our life time, prices as low as they were before the war. If that is true, then that is coin clipping just as surely as it was in the period of the French kings. To me the price of a war bond, $18.75, means nine good $2 shirts. Am I to be paid back $25 representing six poor quality shirts?

THE HAYEK BROADCAST

Waukegan, Ill., May 3—I, too, heard the broadcast April 22 of the Chicago University Round Table, wherein Dr. Hayek was pitted against two of the university's crack-radicals to his humiliation. I find their treatment of Dr. Hayek impossible to condone, but not difficult to explain.

Professors Merriam and Krueger have little common courtesy for any one who disagrees with them. I wonder if this is part of the Moscow technique. Incidentally, I have a slight recollection of the utterances and conduct of Maynard Krueger during the late sit-down strike upheaval which gripped our country.

STASSEN BACKS RUSSIAN VETO OVER U. S. BASES

Insists Plan Does Not Peril Our Security

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 8—After a Big Five conference on the controversial issue of international trusteeships had broken up today, it was authoritatively reported that the American and British delegations remain unreconciled on the question of retaining veto power in the security council over measures taken by any nation to control strategic areas.

The Americans are insisting upon an arrangement whereby one member of the council, such as Russia, could halt approval of any system set up by another nation, such as the United States, over bases entrusted to its control. The British are opposed to such a provision.

All Right, Stassen Insists

Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, handling this issue for the United States delegation, insisted at a press conference that there was nothing in the American proposal which would affect "the essential security of the United States and safeguards to protect it after the war." The remainder of his statements were of the "off the record" order.

While the United States and Great Britain are seemingly locked on their differences, the Russians are sitting on the sidelines, it was stated, taking part in the discussions, but making no specific proposals.

Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov's statement to a press conference yesterday was the first definite stand taken by the soviet union, and was "news" to them, other conferees declared. He called for a "special organization of the united nations" to expedite solution of the problem, and presumably favors the American stand.

France has presented a paper described as "based on the American Plan" and China has made a number of suggestions, it was disclosed, but both are expected to follow any agreement reached by the Big Three.

Hope for Compromise

There was apparently no immediate prospect of yielding by either the British or Americans on the dispute, questioning of conferees indicated, but confidence in an eventual "compromise" was expressed.

All questions relating to specific island bases to be placed under the control of the United States and the effect of the American proposal upon such trusteeships were parried. It was emphasized that the arrangements to be set up here deal with principles and mechanism only and that the peace conference must settle questions relating to specific territories.

Similarly, ignorance was pleaded by the American delegates concerning reports of a bill relating to seized Japanese possessions to be drafted by the senators who left for Washington last Sunday after a three day visit here.

"Maybe I'm in love. But it could be just the chili and hot dogs I had for lunch!"

'PURGE' SPECTER AT FRISCO; SLAVS AND REDS SPLIT

Subasic Reported to Be Under Guard

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 8—The Yugoslav delegation sent to the allied nations security conference here by the communist-partisan government of Marshal Tito has been split by a bitter communist-noncommunist dispute, it was learned on high authority from within the delegation itself today.

The split has resulted in the virtual banishment of Dr. Ivan Subasic, Yugoslav foreign minister and delegation chairman, who is in seclusion under a doctor's care.

Ultimatum by Molotov

These are other developments in the story of Yugoslav disagreements at this conference of so-called united nations:

1. Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov is reported to have delivered an ultimatum to the Yugoslav delegation that he would "stand for no nonsense at this hour," which resulted in victory within the delegation for the Communists. Molotov referred to Yugoslavia as a model of political agreement in statements made here, and did not care to see himself contradicted.

2. Stanoje Simic, Yugoslav ambassador to the United States, whose last previous post had been Moscow, arrived here last Saturday. Before he came, Yugoslavia had been represented by Dr. Subasic, a noncommunist member of the Croat peasant party, and Lt. Gen. Sreten Zujovic, radical Communist and minister of finance. Simic's arrival tipped the scales for the Communists.

Fear of "Purge" Told

3. Dr. Subasic has been in seclusion, reported to be under guard part of the time and now in a physician's care, since last Wednesday when he made a statement, published in a local newspaper, that he feared Marshal Tito would purge the members of his Croat peasant party remaining in Yugoslavia.

MELLOW DRAMA: POLICE SILENT ON $15,000 RAID

BY JAMES DOHERTY

A citizen related yesterday an incident of present day life in Chicago. A second citizen, who was present at the occurrence, corroborated the statement, which follows:

"We were shooting craps last Friday night in a gambling house near 121st and Halsted sts. It was disguised as a pool room. It is run by a gent nicknamed Irish, who is well known in the neighborhood.

"There was considerable money in the game and there were some prominent gamblers there—men well known across the line in Indiana.

"Suddenly six stickup men forced their way in. They were armed with sawed off shotguns. They demanded all the money in sight and made some of the gamblers reach into their pockets for more. Some who didn't act quickly enough were struck on the head with shotgun butts.

"Because of this brutal treatment of the patrons, some of those present called for the police. Policemen in uniform and plain clothesmen from a squad car came, but departed quickly."

THE INVESTIGATION

Here's what a reporter who went to 121st and Halsted sts. yesterday to investigate had to say:

"There's a dingy looking joint at 12107 S. Halsted street which has a pool table in the front part of the store, near a partition. It was closed today. People out here say Irish is a big shot, but his last name seemed to escape most of them. There was a guess that it is Rogers or something similar."

And that's that.

A CITIZEN'S STORY

Here's what a business man in the neighborhood of 121st and Halsted st. said:

"They run crap games there only on Friday and Saturday nights. Irish is a prominent and powerful individual out here.

"We heard an estimate that the bandits' loot amounted to at least $15,000. I was there and I saw them scoop up a lot of money and it could easily have been that much."

POLICE VERSION

Here's what police said about the statements of the two citizens:

"I never heard of the alleged stickup and it wasn't reported at this station," said Capt. Patrick J. Crotty of Kensington district, one of nine captains tried a year ago by the civil service commission on charges of improper handling of gambling complaints. [Crotty and one other captain were only reprimanded, seven were discharged.]

"I never heard of the incident," said Commissioner Allman. "I don't believe Crotty would allow gambling in his district."

SWANK DENS BACK

Rebirth of swank gambling dens in night club establishemnts was chronicled yesterday in a report to the Chicago Crime commission. Chemin de fer, a game much liked by Edward Windsor, erstwhile king of England, was said to be all the rage.

The police, said the report, do not like to discuss the charge that patrons bet as high as $500 a minute in a north side resort where the house gets a 5 per cent rakeoff. Nor would the police admit knowledge that one patron was rooked recently of $20,000 in a single night.

PAPER DEFIES ARMY CENSOR ON PRISONER STORY

Newark, O., May 8 (AP)—The Newark Advocate today challenged deletions by the war department's bureau of public relations in a story which the daily newspaper published about a prisoner of war camp for Germans at Cambridge, O.

The story, by William W. Diehl, a staff writer, was submitted to the army for review. The army made deletions in it and the Advocate, disregarding the deletions, printed the original story under a note which said in part:

"The changes and deletions made by the army censor, in the opinion of this newspaper, are not justified. Since the information contained in the story in no way involves military security, we believe it should be printed as originally written."

The deletions were made at headquarters of the 5th service command in Columbus. Col. Luther L. Hill, acting director of the war department bureau of public relations in Washington, D. C., requested that the newspaper explain why a signed agreement, to abide by the decision of the authority reviewing the story, "was violated."

U. S. AIR FORCE TO CONCENTRATE ON JAPS: SPAATZ

LONDON, May 8 (AP)—Now that Germany is defeated, the United States army air force will devote its "full attention to the concentration of all available air power against the Japanese empire," Gen. Spaatz said today in a radio address to America. Lt. Gen. Doolittle, commander of the United States 8th air force, spoke on the same program with the commander in chief of the United States strategic air forces in Europe. Doolittle said: "Now that the war in Europe is over I know they will go on to that other war in the same spirit, with the same unflinching courage, and with the same results."

BY HIS BEARD ALL GIs KNOW JACK THOMPSON

Tribune War Writer Gets an Accolade

BY HAL BOYLE

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, May 5 [Delayed]—(AP)—They call him "Beaver" and "The Mobile Hedgerow."

He is John Hall [Jack] Thompson, and he sports the best known full-fledged beard in the American army in Europe.

Jack is war correspondent for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, but he looks more like end man in the well known coughdrop ad. Besides turning out some of the finest dispatches of the war, he serves in a double capacity for the 1st army press camp.

Also Camp Thermometer

He has been president of its correspondents' association ever since D-day and has thrust his chin shrubbery stubbornly forward on many occasions to break down news and censorship barriers.

His other function has been to serve as camp thermometer. Every one knew there were six more weeks of winter in store after that day in February when he crawled out of his bunk and saw his shadow and crawled back in again. And they knew spring had arrived the night he slept with his beard outside the bedroll.

That beard also caused a half dozen false rumors last month that the 1st army had linked up with the Russian 1st Ukrainian army.

Weeks before the soviet warriors were within vodka pouring distance of their junction with the 1st army on the Elbe river startled soldiers would see Thompson whizz by in his jeep and cry out:

"There goes the first Russian. The war is over, fellows."

Made Two Chute Leaps

Jack has been covering the war ever since the start of the North African campaign and is the only correspondent at the 1st army press camp who has made two combat jumps with parachute troops.

The first one was on an air field they were supposed to seize in Tunisia. They landed to find that the Germans had left and the French held the field.

The second leap was in Sicily. He came down in an olive tree and got the Purple Heart for a twisted knee and broken rib.

"And a few gray hairs in my beard," he always adds, because he had to walk 20 miles thru enemy lines in one day, carrying a typewriter besides a full field pack.

That was exactly 15 miles more than he ever had walked in his life in so short a time.

Thompson started the beard on the ship carrying him to Africa because he didn't like shaving in cold sea water.

"Now I can't get rid of it, because nobody would recognize me without it," he says.

Bearded by a Britisher

It has its value. Sentries pass him without a passport on sight and call him "Gen. Electric Whiskers."

Once in London, before the invasion of Normandy, Thompson was seated in a night club when a tipsy British naval officer with an equally magnificent beard came over, bowed formally, and asked:

"Pardon me, how do you like your beard?"

Jack stood up, bowed formally, and replied:

"I like it. How do you like yours?"

"I like mine, too," said the naval officer.

There was a slight pause. Then the naval officer said:

"Does your wife like your beard?"

"Yes, she does," said Thompson, amiably. "Does your wife like your beard?"

"No," the naval officer replied, and then, as Jack started to shake his head in sympathy, added:

"But I don't like her, either!"

BAR TO ARGUE FOR 3 DIVORCE LAW CHANGES

Three members of the committee on administration of matrimonial law of the Chicago Bar association will appear before the house judiciary committee today in Springfield in behalf of three amendments to the state divorce law sponsored by the association.

The amendments would provide that a separate maintenance status for three years would entitle either husband or wife to obtain a divorce; that cruelty need not be physical, and that confinement for five years in an institution for the mentally deranged should become grounds for divorce. The committee, headed by S. A. Guthrie, also includes William G. Boyden Jr. and Arthur Goldblatt. In a referendum, the bar association approved the first amendment 1,161 to 362, the second 1,099 to 431, and the third 1,193 to 333.

Another amendment sponsored by the association, abolishing the jurisdiction of city courts in divorce matters, is up for hearing today before the house committee on judicial practice and uniform laws.

Pair Gets Six Months for Automobile Theft

Leroy G. Wiley, 25, of 1901 S. 1st st., and Kenneth E. Rasmussen, 20, of 1821 N. 57th st., both of Milwaukee, were sentenced yesterday by Judge William J. Campbell of federal District court to serve six months in the county jail on charges of transporting a stolen car from Detroit, Mich., to Joliet. They were arrested in Joliet and pleaded guilty when arraigned yesterday.

W-G-N COMBINES JOY AND SORROW IN V-E PROGRAM

BY EDWARD BARRY

W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system last night presented in Medinah temple a program which fitted both the grave and the joyful aspects of Victory in Europe day.

The broadcast was grave in that it remembered the dead in Europe and the living who still must fight the unfinished war with Japan. It was joyful in that it recognized the fact that for millions of Americans the threat of violent death had suddenly been removed and that innumerable wives and parents who had lived in daily dread of tragic news again could know peace of mind.

Speak Humbly of Dead

Clergymen, civic leaders, and veterans of the present war spoke humbly of the men who will never come back and of the American nation in which are embodied the ideals which the fallen strove to uphold even at the cost of life. Where words no longer sufficed to convey the emotions fitting to the day, the extraordinary power of music to plumb the most profound human depths was enlisted with moving effect.

The "Hallelujah" chorus from "Messiah" expressed with eloquence the jubilation and exultation which were important components of V-E day feeling. The music, which had been composed in so intense a creative ecstasy that Handel, by his own account, seemed to see the very heavens opening above him, served admirably to convey a type of emotion for which words would have been helpless.

Other Sacred Music

The performers were the W-G-N chorus and orchestra under Robert Trendler's direction. The same forces presented other sacred and secular music, utilizing the voices of Ruth Slater and Hans Alten for solos.

The speakers were the Rev. Adalbert R. Kretzmann, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. Luke; Rabbi Jacob Singer of Temple Mizpah; Army Chaplain Jans J. Vander Graff; Marine Pvt. John L. Noe, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

From Springfield, Gov. Green paid tribute to America's war and agricultural workers as well as soldiers and sailors, and bespoke the continued coöperation of all groups that the war with Japan might be speedily terminated. His talk was heard by the audience in Medinah temple as well as by W-G-N and Mutual listeners.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

May 8, 1945.

WORK is well up to schedule at the Fox river farm, and the men could start planting corn today if they wished. Most of the corn ground not only has been plowed, but has been fitted for seed. A few acres of alfalfa sod remain to be turned under. Then all the corn fields will be ready.

Corn planting will start on May 15, providing the weather is right. On Monday the first warm rain of the spring fell, and there is a plentiful supply of moisture in the ground.

It's a Perfect Start

Everywhere a visitor looks at the farm he sees evidence of a perfect start toward another big harvest. The hay fields are in excellent condition and should yield a heavy crop. The oats are growing rapidly and promise a full load for the granary. The big herd of Angus cows grazes the lush bluegrass pastures and new calves are arriving almost daily. Two more were born during the week-end.

The spring pig crop numbered 189 head after farrowing. Last week 185 were alive and all were vaccinated against cholera. After the vaccination six more died, but this still leaves the farm with a large drove of spring pigs. There are seven sows due to farrow this month.

While city people were throwing confetti from windows and gathering in groups on street corners to talk about V-E day, the two farms moved thru a normal rainy day of chores. At the Fox river farm the men set about moving the individual hoghouses to clean ground. Then feed was taken to Plano for grinding, while the grinder was rigged at the farm to handle some more.

Elated Over News

At noon the men listened in their kitchens to the radio, but when the lunch hour was over they went back to their work.

At the Wheaton farm one group of workers painted screens for the farm homes. Another group worked at the chicken farm killing and dressing broilers and a few old hens.

Elation over the end of the war marked their conversation, but that did not prevent them from doing the small jobs set aside for rainy days—jobs which play a large part in keeping a big farm geared to the heaviest possible production.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

THE seedlings of Pascal celery in the farm greenhouses are about two inches tall. The gardener plans to keep them under glass for another week, then transfer them to an outdoor cold frame for weather hardening. He expects to plant the seedlings in the garden row about June 1, when they should be four to six inches tall. Celery may be transplanted as early as May 1, but early June is an acceptable planting time, inasmuch as the plants are hilled in the autumn blanching process and thus are protected from frosts.

In selecting a row for celery, it is important that a space between rows of two early maturing vegetables be chosen, because the soil from the adjacent rows must be used for the hilling process after the early vegetables are harvested. In planting celery, the farm gardener prepares a trench about four inches deep and places the seedlings that far below the surface, with eight inches between plants in the row. Ordinary summer cultivation results in the trenches being refilled around the plants. The hilling process starts in late August.

REPORTS $3,750 JEWELRY THEFT

Charles Holzer of 9208 Throop st., a fruit and vegetable wholesaler, reported to police yesterday that burglars stole $400, jewelry valued at $3,750, and two revolvers from his home.

DUNHAM, GRAVER ELECT SELVES TO PARK POSTS

Robert J. Dunham and Philip S. Graver were reëlected president and vice president, respectively, of the Chicago park board at the annual meeting yesterday.

Stephen I. Witmanski, only other park commissioner present, presented the nominations and Dunham and Graver voted for themselves, because a majority of the board is required for election. Last year the election was delayed a week when they refrained from voting for themselves. Dunham first was elected park board president in 1934 and Graver was named vice president in 1937.

The board announced redemption of $1,550,000 in tax anticipation warrants on the 1944 corporate tax levy with $15,745.34 in accrued interest, and approved agreements with the Jackson Park Motor Boat club and the Burnham Park Yacht club for operation of yacht clubs on park property.

Ralph H. Burke, chief engineer and assistant to Dunham, was reelected the board's representative on the park employes' annuity and benefit fund retirement board.

HUSBAND FINDS WIFE'S BODY

The body of Mrs. Marie Peck, 48, was found yesterday in the kitchen of their home at 2516 S. 57th av., Cicero, by her husband, James, who told police that all gas jets were open. He said his wife had been ill.

'Midsummer Nightmare'

By Christopher Hale

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Frances Stephens)

SYNOPSIS: Olivia Warburton, with her secretary, Winnie Leslie, occupies a cottage on the Jennesma estate, cared for by Tillie. Olivia walks in her sleep. The Jennesma furniture factory, now making gliders, is managed by Dirk Adams, Winnie's fiance. Sybrand Jennesma plans to manufacture his brother Gerrit's latest invention, a car motor, and hopes to interest Morgan Riley, owner of a car body company. Sen. North, who is investigating the Jennesmas for Riley, is in love with Olivia. Jason Kimball, very fond of Winnie, handles Jennesma publicity. Hilda Jennesma Paradine is found murdered, a knife in the back of her neck. The evening before her death Hilda claimed money was missing from her cottage. Lt. French of the state police questions Olivia. Tillie has informed him Olivia went downstairs in the night and took a knife from the kitchen table—the knife. When the missing money is found in Winnie's bedroom, Kimball believes it is a plant. Eddie Paradine heard nothing during the night nor is he familiar with the terms of Hilda's will. Kimball believes Hilda had a rendezvous with some one she trusted. Dirk was with Hilda from 1:30 to 2 a. m. In Olivia's opinion, Mrs. Jennesma could not have met Hilda later, and bribed Tillie. Questioned, Winnie insists Olivia is innocent. Olivia finds herself turning to Sen. North, but there is a barrier, a secret marriage in her youth. Hilda's first husband, Jerrold Corbin, is upset on learning Hilda left him only $1,000. North wonders if Jennesma is putting pressure on Olivia to influence his decision. Tillie is poisoned. Olivia denies killing her. Arsenic is found in Tillie's chocolates. A box of chocolates with one layer partly gone is found in Olivia's room. North thinks some one is trying to frame Olivia.

INSTALMENT XV.

AN ALIBI

The senator's savage tone, urgent with courage, was as good as a shot of plasma. Miss Warburton suddenly knew she could go on.

For a moment they were alone together in an intimacy so profound it blotted out the room and its occupants. She felt for a chair and sat down.

Meanwhile the trooper ostentatiously bore the candy box away for further inspection.

"You're an angel, Winnie," said Dirk. "A darling little golden haired angel."

He put his face down into her fragrant hair and kissed her cheek, but she pushed him back rather abruptly. The porch swing jarred against the railing.

"What's the matter?" Dirk said sharply.

She didn't know why, but she didn't want him to kiss her any more, in spite of having his ring on her hand again.

"I . . . I want to talk . . . about you," she improvised a little breathlessly. She saw him relax. "I mean, I think we should hurry up and prove you had nothing to do with Mrs. Paradine's death. Isn't there some way we could satisfy that lieutenant?"

Dirk gave her a queer glance.

"Never mind about him. I'm not really in any danger. Just forget it, darling."

She evaded his reaching arms. "Don't. I'm serious. I'm worried about you."

"Forget it," he repeated with a lazy smile. "I'm looking out for myself. Come on back here. I miss you, angel."

She moved farther away on the swing.

She was puzzled and indignant. Why was he so airy about it all of a sudden, when he'd been so fearful before, afraid to take a chance on not volunteering information to the police?

"Look," he said crossly, "if I tell you something in confidence, will you keep it to yourself and stop stewing?"

"I most certainly won't tell, but I'll stew when and if I want to."

"Well—it's like this.. I've got an alibi. A good one—if the worst comes to the worst. The, the woman who lives next door to us in Grand Rapids——" he stopped to light a cigaret with great care.

"Yes?"

"It seems she was awake when I got in that night, at 2 a. m. The night, you know. Her bedroom overlooks our garage. She heard the door squeak and got up to look out. There was a moon. She saw me."

"Well! What are we waiting for? Have you told the lieutenant?"

"Of course not. Come back here. Don't forget I told you this in confidence."

"But why?"

"O, she's got some crazy idea she doesn't want to be mixed up in a murder trial if she can help it. And French seems to have lost interest in me. So the whole thing may blow over, see? She may not have to take the stand at all."

Winnie's lovely lip curled. "But, Dirk, it seems too mean. She could say a few words in private to the lieutenant. That wouldn't ruin her precious reputation, would it? Why, he could make her testify if you told him."

"O, could he? You don't know her. She's stubborn. She'd just deny the whole thing, say I made it all up . . . and then I would be in a spot. No . . . you mustn't tell a soul. She's not going to say anything unless I'm definitely accused of the thing. Then she'll come out strong and give me a clean bill, see? And now . . . 'let's forget the whole thing and celebrate our getting together again."

"No, thanks. I have a toothache."

"Wh-hat? That's the first I've heard of it."

"I didn't want to bother you with my little troubles."

"O, is that so." Dirk had a very nasty tone when he chose. "I know a good dentist."

"So do I."

They looked straight into each other's eyes. Then Dirk gave an abrupt laugh and went down the steps.

French was not pleased when the Paradine maid requested an interview. She said she had startling information.

Theresa Lindstra came into his office in a green tweed suit.

"It isn't that I want to get Ed . . . Mr. Paradine into trouble," Tessie said plaintively. "I just thought it was my duty to tell you these facts."

Already, she was regretting this interview.

"I'm very busy. Please get to the point."

"It was the morning she was killed," Tessie said, sulkily. "I was lying there in bed not wanting to get up, and I began to hear voices in the yard and I smelled smoke and I thought, gee, the place is on fire."

He eyed her steadily, in silence.

"So, of course, I hopped up and looked out of the window and I saw a lot of people down in the yard and some policemen, too, and I looked across the wing to where their bedrooms are and I saw smoke coming out of Mr. Paradine's bathroom."

"Perhaps he was having a cigaret."

She laughed nastily. "Yeah. That's what he tried to pass it off as. A cigaret. When I asked him about it when I was serving his breakfast. I guess I know a cigaret smoke when I see it. I never argued with him. But I knew he was lying."

"Paradine had breakfast, then, before he went out to look at his wife's body?" French asked.

"Why sure. He told me special to get him something quick. He said it might of taken his appetite away to of seen her first."

French thought it was an interesting sidelight on Paradine's character.

"Then you don't know what he was burning?" he asked the girl.

"Sure I do. I mean I got a swell guess what it was. Love letters from other women to him. He used to sing over the radio. He sings swell."

"But why should he burn these letters after his wife was dead?"

"Why, 'cause one of them did it! One of the women who were still writing to him at that lock box he's got down town. She murdered Mrs. Paradine so he could be free to wed another."

Her story had an acrid scent of blasted hopes. Perhaps she had taken Eddie's kindness for something stronger. She did not seem to realize she was building up a good case against herself.

HOUSE BODY O.K.S CURB ON TAX FREE HOUSING

Committee Approves Armstrong Bill

BY GEORGE TAGGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 8 [Special]—A blow against socialized public housing was struck today when the house revenue committee approved for passage the Armstrong bill to eliminate tax exemption for public housing.

Alarm was expressed about the unlimited future spread of public housing, which was begun by the federal government but has now been taken up by the state and city governments under new legislation. The main question was that if this trend continues, who would pay taxes in years to come?

The vote for the Armstrong bill was 20 to 6. Some members reserved the right to vote against the bill but said it would have a hearing before the committee of the whole house.

8 Democrat Supporters

Surprising the public housers, eight Democrats, including three from Cook county, voted for the bill.

Rep. Armstrong [R., Chicago], was supported by spokesmen for the Civic Federation of Chicago and the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards.

J. B. O'Neil of the federation, said that with rents of up to $52 a month the federal housing projects do not require any subsidy.

Favors Direct Subsidy

"We would prefer a direct money subsidy to destitute families to enable them to pay rent to landlords who must support local governments with taxes," O'Neil said.

Rep. Marzullo [D., Chicago], said that in his district he knows families in federal housing projects with incomes of $3,000 a year.

Rep. McCabe [D., Chicago], research chief for County Assessor John S. Clark, who sponsored similar bills in three previous sessions of the legislature, reported that there is a growing disposition on the part of congress to require housing projects to pay taxes.

Attacks Fallacies

Larry Holmes, business manager of the state real estate group, attacked the contentions that public housing clears slums, that public and private housing can work in coöperation, and that all government owned property should be tax exempt.

"The only way to clear slums is by clearing them," he said. "Since the Chicago fire of 1871, there has been virtually no enforcement of local laws as to fire and health hazards. Tear down buildings that are unfit for living. That's the way to do the job."

Speaking for the opponents of the Armstrong bills were Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the Chicago housing authority, and Municipal Judge George Quilici, head of the National Public Housing conference of Chicago.

ANTI-RACE BIAS BILL ASSAILED IN SENATE HEARING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 8—The senate judiciary committee tonight was told that the current drive for an Illinois fair employment practice act is like the prohibition movement in that both would take advantage of emotional displacement to change social procedures without giving the public a chance to vote on them.

The main witness was Charles F. Hough, Chicago attorney who represented 38 employers' associations, including the Associated Employers of Illinois, the Chicago Association of Commerce, and the Illinois Federation of Retail associations.

Hough contended the plan unworkable and said it would stir racial and religious discrimination so that minorities would lose rather than gain. It was the first attempt in Illinois, he said, to pass a law under which citizens could be jailed or fined without a court trial.

He was one of many witnesses opposing the bill sponsored by Senators Mills [R., Chicago] and Wimbish [D., Chicago] to set up a state commission with broad power to punish charges that job seekers are discriminated against.

BRIG. GEN. POUST IS NAMED STATE WELFARE HEAD

Senate Confirmation Is Expected Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 8—Gov. Green today selected Cassius Poust of Sycamore, an attorney who is retiring from the army with the rank of brigadier general, to be the new director of the state department of public welfare.

Cassius Poust

Prompt confirmation of the Poust appointment is scheduled tomorrow in the senate, which recently rejected the renomination of Director Rodney H. Brandon.

Helped Prosecute Capone

Poust refused to discuss the department until he is formally approved as Brandon's successor. He and the governor became acquainted when both were assistant United States district attorneys in Chicago, where Poust was first assistant from 1929 to 1931 and helped prosecute Al Capone and other gangland figures.

When the national guard was federalized in 1941, Poust was a colonel commanding the 129th infantry in which he enlisted and served overseas in World War I. After serving with the 33d division at Camp Forrest, Tenn., in the present war, Poust commanded special troops at Camp Gordon, Ga., and then was president of the officers reclassification board at the Presidio, San Francisco, Cal.

Native of De Kalb County

Poust is 53 and is a native of De Kalb county. He and Mrs. Poust have four children. The sons, Lt. John Poust and Pvt. William Poust, are with the army in Germany.

Green said Poust was selected for the job "because of his excellent record as an administrator in both civil and military life."

SPLIT IN G.O.P. MIRES FIGHT ON GREEN'S BUDGET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 8—A factional split caused the dissolution today of the special caucus committee thru which some Republican senators were attempting to slash appropriation bills.

A test roll call in a Republican caucus showed that 10 of the 34 majority senators objected to continuation of the economy drive. In that group were Senators Peters [St. Joseph], budgetary commission chairman, and Downing [Macomb], appropriations chairman.

Sen. Lantz [Congerville] said the special committee, which has worked nearly two weeks and in a preliminary report recommended savings of $11,840,940 in four appropriation bills, was "commended and then discharged." The reason given was that the opposition group could combine with the Democrats, who have ridiculed the economy movement, to outvote proponents.

Gov. Green was blamed for the collapse of the economy drive in a statement issued by Thomas E. Fiske, executive secretary of Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois.

Alien Interned Germans Not to Be Released Quickly

The government plans no immediate release of interned German aliens now that victory has been won in Europe, Andrew Jordan, immigration and naturalization head in Chicago, said yesterday. Jordan recalled that after World War I. internees were not released for nearly two years and then only after the signing of a peace treaty.

EXPECT BOHME TO DENY SETTING FIRE FATAL TO 7

Charles Bohme, 44, of 1135 E. 44th st., will take the stand in his defense today before Judge Frank M. Padden in Criminal court where he is on trial, without a jury, on a charge of murder by arson. He is accused of starting the fire Nov. 19 in the Lille apartments, 1353 E. 47th pl., where seven persons died.

The state, which has asked the death penalty, concluded its case yesterday after introducing an alleged confession in which Bohme was purported to have admitted starting the Lille fire and 26 others in the Kenwood district. Testimony placing Bohme at the scene of the apartment fire was given yesterday by Mrs. Francine Beltz, 4730½ Woodlawn av. She said she saw Bohme in a tavern that night and he told her about "seeing a big fire and watching firemen carry out several bodies."

Bohme is expected to repudiate his purported confession.

P. Ballantine & Sons, Newark, N. J.

Some words fool you:

BILL means...

BILL means...

but BALLANTINE ALE & BEER always means...

Purity, Body, Flavor!

The bird gets his dinner with his bill; you get a bill with your dinner. "Bill" is a confusing word. Like a lot of other words, it has more than one meaning.

What a pleasant contrast, that well-known word "Ballantine." Everybody knows that Ballantine always means PURITY, BODY, FLAVOR. . . . the three qualities symbolized by Peter Ballantine's famous trade mark. Join the knowing ones who wind up the day with a bottle of "America's finest." Look for the 3 rings; call for "Ballantine."

WHITE ESTATE FIGHT TIES UP $59,950 IN BONDS

Federal Judge Walter J. La Buy yesterday ordered $59,950 in municipal bonds impounded pending further litigation over the handling of three trust funds set up by the late Michael E. White, wealthy construction company head.

The court action had been asked by Edward Walter White, one of the defendants in a suit brought by his niece, Mrs. Mary Angela Dunphy, 28, and her mother, Mrs. Henrietta R. White, both of Milwaukee, Wis., charging misappropriation and improper diversion of approximately 6 million dollars from the trust funds.

The petitioner asserted that the bonds were found in the offices of White Consolidated, Inc., and belonged to the company rather than in Michael White's estate, now being probated in Florida. Judge La Buy gave objectors 15 days to file counter-affidavits and set a hearing for June 6.

U.S. NAVY CRAFT BLOWS UP OFF MAINE; 49 DIE

Some Survivors Tell of Seeing Sub

Cape Elizabeth, Me., May 8 (AP)—Forty-nine men died in the frigid waters of the Atlantic ocean only three miles offshore after a terrific explosion split their navy Eagle boat amidships in New England's worst naval disaster of the war, the navy disclosed tonight.

Only 13 of the crew of the patrol ship PE-56 survived the mysterious blast April 23 during a noon lull in target practice maneuvers.

Many of the men were below decks when the explosion came and few had time to grab life jackets as, stunned and bewildered, they struggled topside thru debris cluttered passageways, survivors said.

Stories Are Conflicting

Many of those who got over the side before the 430 ton vessel sank perished in the water when their numbed hands no longer could retain holds on boxes, oil drums and shoring that floated in the wreckage.

Those who survived suffered internal injuries, cuts, shock and immersion. They had many conflicting theories of what caused the blast.

Some believed they saw a submarine lurking nearby and one was just as positive it was not a torpedo that struck the ship. Some thought the explosion sounded like that created by a depth charge or a mine.

The bbilers of the vessel had been overhauled 10 days previously and were described as in good condition.

On Target Maneuvers

Within 17 minutes service craft had picked up the survivors, but of the 49 men who were lost only two bodies were recovered. The other 47 were listed on navy records as "missing" but are presumed to be dead.

The PE-56 had been engaged in target maneuvers with aircraft from the Brunswick naval air station off the entrance to Portland harbor.

Lt. (j. g.) John P. Scagnelli, 25, of New York, was the only one of the ship's six officers among the survivors.

Scagnelli said he had just turned into his bunk for a nap after chow "when there was a terrific explosion." A few minutes later, he said, the after section of the ship had moved 50 yards away and was settling fast and the forward section was filling.

WORK AS USUAL ORDER OF DAY IN LEGISLATURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 8—Except for brief observances by the legislature, V-E day was just another working Tuesday in the statehouse today.

The senate paused at noon to hear three pastors, representing three faiths, in a memorial service which Msgr. John B. Franz of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Springfield, likened to "another Gettysburg," at which the people can dedicate themselves to national ideals before the fighting is ended. Dr. Solomon Foster, Springfield rabbi, and the Rev. Herbert A. Peterson of Trinity Lutheran church, Ottawa, were the other speakers.

Without music, the senators sang the opening stanzas of the "Star Spangled Banner" and "God Bless America."

The house adopted resolutions rejoicing in victory and ordered them sent to President Truman and Gen. Eisenhower.

NAVY CONFIRMS PLANS FOR LAKE ERIE BOMB RANGE

Vice Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, yesterday confirmed reports from Erieau, Ont., that a 30 mile aerial bombing range is being prepared in Lake Erie with permission of the Canadian government.

Shipping officials of Erieau, which is on the northwestern shore of the lake, had protested that the range might restrict shipping movements to and from the port and curb its $250,000 fishing industry.

Adm. Carpender gave no details of the plans, but said they were made "with permission of the Canadian government."

TOMATO, ONION PRICES CUT BY OPA; APPLES UP

Sharp decreases in several items, with others somewhat higher, mark the weekly fruit and fresh vegetable ceiling prices, effective tomorrow, announced for Chicago yesterday by the office of price administration. Decreases include hothouse cucumbers, down 5 cents to 25 cents a pound, and field varieties, off 3 cents to 13 cents; yellow onions, 3 cents lower at 3 pounds for 22 cents; white onions, down 2 cents to 3 pounds for 31 cents; bulk tomatoes, off 3 cents to 28 cents a pound; beans and peas, a cent a pound lower at 20 and 17 cents, respectively.

Willow twig apples will be 2 cents a pound higher at 13 cents, and Baldwins and Spies ½ cent higher at 10 cents; sweet peppers will go up 3 cents to 26 cents a pound, and oranges and eggplant will be 1 cent a pound higher at 13 and 17 cents, respectively.

New California potatoes, No. 1s, size A, will go on the list for the first time this season, at 5 pounds for 32 cents.

CIO UNION MARS V-E DAY BY 191ST STEEL STRIKE

191 While virtually all workers in Chicago area war plants remained at their jobs in celebration of V-E day yesterday, 21 members of local No. 1066 of the United Steelworkers' union [CIO] marked the day by engaging in the 191st strike in the sheet and tin mill of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, Gary, Ind., since the attack on Pearl Harbor.

The strike began yesterday morning when the employes left their jobs in the 80 inch hot strip finishing section of the mill to protest against the corporation's refusal to add an extra worker to a crew of workers.

Today with Women

Engagements of Mary Aldis and Emily Norcross Revealed

BY JUDITH CASS

IN the wake of V-E day comes a rush of glad tidings of a romantic nature, including the engagements of three young north shore persons and the marriage of a young Lake Forester. Today Maj. and Mrs. Graham Aldis of Lake Forest are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Mary Cornelia, to 1st Lt. Charlton Ogburn Jr. of the army signal corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ogburn of New York.

Miss Aldis now is living in Alexandria, Va., with her parents as Maj. Aldis has been stationed in Washington, D. C., since his return from England two years ago. She was graduated from Milton academy and from Sarah Lawrence college with the class of December, 1944. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis of Lake Forest and of the late James Keeley.

Lt. Ogburn, a 1932 graduate of Harvard university, served with Gen. Frank E. Merrill in Burma in 1944. Since then he has been on duty with the war department in Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. Pliny Norcross announce the engagement of his sister, Miss Emily Dyas Norcross, to Gordon Adamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Adamson of Highland Park. Since the death of her parents, the late Dr. and Mrs. Edward P. Norcross of Highland Park, Miss Norcross has lived with her paternal aunt, Mrs. George Allen Mason, and Mr. Mason in Highland Park.

Miss Norcross was graduated from Kemper hall and Northwestern university. As Dr. Norcross is serving on the medical staff of a La Porte, Ind., war plant he and his wife, the former Nancy Corwith Dangler, divide their time between that city and Highland Park. Edward P. Norcross Jr., Miss Norcross' other brother, served as a lieutenant in the army before his medical discharge last year. He and his wife, the former Harriette Weislach, now live on a farm, Windy Hill, near Prairie View, Ill.

Mr. Adamson, a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school, attended the University of Chicago. His grandfather, the late Dr. Comfort E. Peck, was one of the pioneers in the dairy industry in Chicago. The wedding is planned for this summer.

Other Romantic News

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan C. Spalding are telling their Lake Forest neighbors of the marriage last Friday in Haverford, Pa., of their eldest son, Lt. [j. g.] Charles F. Spalding of the naval reserve, and Miss Elizabeth Coxe. Mr. and Mrs. Spalding did not go east for the wedding, which was a small ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eckley Coxe.

Lt. Spalding returned from the Pacific early last month and before going to Philadelphia he spent 10 days with his parents in Palm Beach, Fla. He and his bride have gone to San Francisco, where Lt. Spalding is awaiting further orders. The former Miss Coxe attended St. Timothy's, and Lt. Spalding attended the Hill school and Yale university. He has two brothers, Capt. Vaughan Spalding Jr., who is serving in India, and Pvt. Edward Spalding, on duty in San Antonio, Tex. Lt. Spalding is co-author with Lt. Otis Carney of the marines of "Love at First Flight."

On the Calendar

Among interesting events on the calendar for the next two weeks are the following: The Mary Crane league's benefit spring dinner-dance May 18 in the Saddle and Cycle club; the Cathedral Shelter Guild's benefit dessert-bridge party at 1 p. m. May 23 in the parish house of

White Collar Girl

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Martial Notes

It's like the strains of martial music now—the band in the parades of our childhood. Remember? How the band turned the corner and went down the next block and you could still hear it playing in the distance. It went past Jim's house . . . and Dorothy's . . . down past the school . . . and the church. Feet still were marching, tho you couldn't see them . . . you just heard the band playing in the distance.

That's the way it is now—and, well, the white collar girls know it. They know it's not over. They hear the drums beat in distant places. And their hearts follow the band.

They know it's not over. They go back to desks this morning with extra work piled high . . . some with war orders to be dispatched immediately, guns and tanks that still will be needed. They go back to offices full of people, each with his own, individual, personal sense of relief that half the battle is won, each with his own personal resolve to see it thru.

They go back to work with some for whom the war is over—their own are coming home [joyous words!]—and for good! . . . back to work with some for whom the war will never be over as long as the human heart is able to feel lingering, haunting pain.

Without Them

As the white collar girls go back to work today they form an invisible army. They are not aware of it. The bosses haven't been aware. None of us has. Or if we have we've been too busy to stop and think about it very much. We just know that there's been a "help shortage," that good secretaries have been at a premium, that capable workers were in demand.

We haven't sat down with pencil and paper and figured that 11 million men have been under arms, that the places of 11 million men have had to be taken by the women at home.

Without them we could not have fought the war.

These are the white collar girls. O, no, they don't always wear white collars—and sit at desks and answer buzzers. Sometimes they are in denim, in slacks, in uniform. They are the women who work.

Sometimes they are the fresh faced farm girls whose steady nerves have turned out ammunition our men have needed on the battlefields. Sometimes they are motherly, competent housewives who have served meals in cafeteria kitchens so that the strength of our workers can be sustained. Sometimes they are school teachers with overflowing classes of restless, war conditioned children. And sometimes they are nurses and dietitians in hospitals, so woefully understaffed that every day brings tasks not in line of duty, tasks undertaken to "keep things going."

The Corner Rounded

Yes, these are our white collar girls. They still have to "keep things going" just as do the men who will turn now from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The white collar girls know it! You can depend on it!

They still hear the strains of martial music . . . they see that the marching men have rounded the corner—a very important corner—but their hearts, and their heads, and their hands still follow the band, until it rounds the last corner—and comes home.

Mary Meade Demonstrates How to Can Asparagus

1 A requisite for asparagus canning is a pressure cooker—the hot water bath method is unsafe. Use young, tender asparagus and wash well in warm water. Cut off tough part of stalks, leaving in lengths to fit jars. Tie in bundles and place, tips up, in kettle half full of boiling water. Cook covered for 5 minutes.

2 Pack asparagus, tips up, into clean hot jars. Fill with boiling cooking liquid, leaving ½ inch head space. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart and seal. Fill and seal one jar at a time. Two piece metal tops are screwed on firmly tight; glass top seals with rubber rings are screwed tight, then released a quarter turn.

3 Put one inch of hot water in cooker; place jars on rack, leaving space between. Cover cooker. Apply heat; when steam has escaped 7 minutes, close petcock or, with war time cooker, drop on 10 lb. weight. When indicator registers 10 lbs. and weight barely oscillates, turn down heat slightly and process asparagus for 40 minutes.

4 Turn off heat and let indicator return to original position. Take off weight (or open petcock slowly on pre-war pressure cooker). Carefully remove cover, tipping away from face. When jars have ceased to bubble, remove from canner to rack or board. Tighten glass top seals; do not tighten two piece metal ones.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Asparagus Timbales

3 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
4 eggs, separated
2 cups cooked asparagus, mashed

Melt margarine, add flour, and blend. Add milk, stirring constantly to make a smooth sauce. When thickened, remove from heat, add beaten egg yolks, salt, pepper, paprika, and asparagus. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Bake in greased casserole or individual molds at 325 degrees, one hour for large casseroles, 30 minutes for individual molds. Set molds in pan of water. Serve with creamed mushrooms.

White Cotton Best Answer to Lingerie Needs

BY REA SEEGER

Cotton lingerie for summer is still the best answer to the "keep clean and fresh" problems. Most of the current collections are of white, with smooth, white balloon cloth rating special attention for the beautifully made nightgowns.

These are gowns with almost unbelievably wide skirts, exquisite handwork around the tops and decorative hand fagoting for shoulder straps, midriff-bands, and yoke detail. The cotton is so soft and fine, it closely resembles the pre-war batiste or lawn.

Slips that will whirl easily thru daily sudsings if necessary are made of the same cotton and many are matched in detail trim or with lace frills to nightgowns made in the same manner. Severely tailored slips, miracles of designing, are so knowingly cut and fitted that the worries about hiking up or twisting on the body have vanished for keeps. Some have decorative edges, others are prim and tailored.

Under-skirts or petticoats have come into the fashion picture. They're frankly short, fitted smoothly, but are gay, even giddy, because of the striped materials used. Both gingham and a chambray are available, some patterned with very broad stripes of colors, others of narrow prim rows in blue and white, rose and white, and brown and white.

A flat hem edge of white eyelet embroidery adds a very feminine and festive accent to these petticoats. They, too, will tub all thru summer. They are ideal with summer town suits of cotton or linen of pastel colors or the dark street shades of copper, blue, and black. Prices are modest and there is a wide and assorted color range.

Milk Loses Vitamins on Exposure to Sun, Housewives Warned

Milk left on the porch exposed to direct sunshine can lose in one hour more than 25 per cent of some of its most important vitamins, Robert R. Buswell, representing the Abbott laboratories nutritional research department, said yesterday in an address to members of the Loop Cooperative club in the La Salle hotel.

Tardy retrieving of the day's milk supply becomes more harmful in proportion to the direct rays of the sun, he asserted. Vitamin losses will be greater in summer than in winter and it behooves all housewives to bring in the milk as soon as they hear the milkman deliver the bottles, he advised.

Speaking on "Is It True What They Say About Vitamins?" Mr. Buswell declared that vitamins should not be purchased without a doctor's prescription.

Louis Sudler in Promising Debut with Chicago Mendelssohn Club and Symphonic Choir

The lights went on again last night, but the concert business clung to schedule, which meant that Louis Sudler, a Chicago baritone, made his downtown debut at Orchestra hall as soloist with the Chicago Mendelssohn club and the Chicago Symphonic choir, both under the direction of Walter Aschenbrenner. Mr. Sudler has been known for several years as a business man who likes to sing, but after last night he will not be called a dilettante. He is obviously serious about it, and he may turn into a singer who has a business on the side. It wouldn't be the first time that has happened, either.

His voice is good, but not yet as good as it can be, which makes scaling it a little risky. Evidently he only recently discovered its potential range and volume and is just learning to exploit both. But he has unusual possibilities, and he is working in the right direction. He needs more completely supple production to make his singing all of a musical piece. When he adds this to a beautiful quality curiously husky in timbre, to remarkably clear enunciation, good presence, and an upper register of genuine beauty, he may have a surprisingly shiny future on his hands.

Mr. Sudler sang Handel's Largo to the humming of the choirs [Mr. Aschenbrenner is great on humming], and with Edgar Nelson expert at the piano he added several songs, including the sardonic "Rich Man" of Richard Hageman and Franklin P. Adams, but the key to his possible future was a remarkably interesting performance of "Vision fugitive" from Massenet's "Herodiade." This was a baritone with one foot in the opera house.

The Chicago Mendelssohn club, a male chorus now in its 51st season, and the Chicago Symphonic choir, a robed group of women with a few men disposed at the rear, are well known amateur singing organizations whose performances are primarily for the benefit of their families and friends, or shouldn't there be a distinction? Both are at their best in informal music, chiefly of the folk song type. Accompanists last night were G. Archer Farrell and Allen Bogen.

Notes

"Russian Lullaby" is the extraordinary title of the operetta Ernest Vajda has conjured from the life and music of Tschaikowsky. . . . Billy Rose has invited Al Jolson and the Katherine Dunham troupe to appear in the first edition of his "Concert Varieties." . . . Having invaded the classics in "The Rivals," Bobby Clark may play "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" for Mike Todd. . . . A current magazine piece about that same Mr. Todd is the work of John Chapman, described in a foreword as successor to "the late Burns Mantle." . . . Ludwig Bemelmans is dramatizing his novel, "The Blue Danube," for Jed Harris. . . . Tom Powers, whose "Virgin with Butterflies" recently was published, has a new book ready called "Sheba in the Trampled Grass." . . . "Blue Holliday" is the new name of the Negro musical formerly called "The Wishing Well." . . . Mitzi Hajos is over at the Civic Opera house, helping get "Mme. Du Barry" ready for Saturday night's opening.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

For its last offering of Yiddish musical comedy, the Chicago Jewish Theater association presented "Nathan Takes a Wife" in the Civic theater last night. It will run thru next Monday night.

Judging by the response of the numerous customers, there must be a vein of gold in the current piece. It has all the stock characters—the humble, slightly moronic umbrella peddler who substitutes for the long lost heir, the parents working for desirable marriages for their daughters, a juvenile patterned after Fannie Brice's Baby Snooks, the time honored grandpa and grandma celebrating their golden wedding.

The plot gets under way by an almost forgotten Russian uncle leaving his fortune to a nephew who must marry a designated girl to get the money. Mistaking the identity of the girl he engages Menasha Skulnik—the umbrella merchant whose doleful countenance and shuffling gait, combined with jokes of ancient vintage, the audience seemed to consider extremely hilarious—to pose as the would-be bridegroom, so that the real heir may devote himself to his true love, who, it turns out, was the one the farseeing uncle had intended for him all along.

Lacking a printed program, and because of the fact that the characters seldom called each other by name, it is difficult to assign proper credits. If Lily Lilliana is who we thought she was, then she is a slender, pretty girl, with a graceful manner, who might do well at more important assignments. In lesser degree, the same might be said of Yetta Zwerling. But Ann Winters was a Baby Snooks you would never call snookums.

Altho officially described as a musical comedy, the music is an exceedingly minor matter—and we mean that both literally and figuratively.

Install Rev. John O'Hara as New Bishop of Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., May 8 (AP).—The Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., was installed today as eighth bishop of Buffalo in colorful, centuries-old rites in St. Joseph's cathedral. Bishop O'Hara, a former president of the University of Notre Dame, had served as military delegate of the services and as an auxiliary to Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York, who officiated as the installing prelate.

News Is Given of Weddings in Recent Weeks

Mr. and Mrs. Rene Wahl of Winnetka announce the marriage on April 25 in the Orrington hotel, Evanston, of their daughter, Joyce, to Corp. Kenneth W. Treiman of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Treiman of Hyde Park. After an eastern wedding trip Corp. Treiman and his bride will be at home at his post in Fort Custer, Mich. The former Miss Wahl was graduated from Stephens college and the University of Iowa. Corp. Treiman was graduated from the University of Chicago.

Announcement is made of the marriage on April 7 of Miss Joan Muir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen E. Muir of Maywood, and Hamilton H. Howry Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howry of Hinsdale. The wedding took place in the First Baptist church of Maywood, with a reception following in the Oak Park Arms hotel. Mr. Howry and his bride are at home in Oak Park.

Mrs. Ernest J. Quille of Central Park blvd. announces the marriage recently in Our Lady of Sorrows church of her daughter, Kathleen, to Lt. James G. Kohout of the naval reserve, son of James F. Kohout of Cicero. The bride was graduated from the school of nursing at St. Elizabeth's hospital. Lt. Kohout attended Illinois state college. He now is stationed in San Francisco, Cal., where he and his bride are at home.

En route to Ensign A. Steven Herndon's post in San Francisco, Cal., to await his overseas service, he and his bride, the former Grace Elizabeth Jaynes, are stopping over in Denver and Colorado Springs, as well as in Norwood, Colo., where they are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steven H. Herndon. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Jaynes of Ashland blvd. and Ensign Herndon were married on April 28.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	6 spades	Pass
7 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

When a choice of two plays is presented to you, that one should be selected which offers the greater chance of success, even tho it involves the loss of an additional 50 or 100 points. An outstanding case of false economy was witnessed in today's hand.

South was declarer at a contract of seven spades on bidding which while it was perhaps somewhat too aggressive, is not open to very severe criticism. West naturally opened the king of diamonds and declarer was faced with the problem of disposing of the remaining diamond in his hand.

There were two methods available. One was to finesse the jack of hearts, and the other was to play the king, ace, and ruff a heart in the hope that the queen would fall, establishing dummy's jack. The actual declarer attempted to ruff out the queen of hearts, but did not succeed and the contract was down one.

He subsequently confessed to me that he had a sneaking feeling the finesse was a slightly better percentage play, but that if it failed he would go down two instead of one. I could have forgiven him for the false belief that his play was better than the finesse, but not for the very false type of economy that he put into practice. What is 50 points as a price to pay for a better chance of fulfilment of a grand slam contract?

In point of fact the finesse is the superior play. It will succeed about half the time. Whereas with seven cards out the most probable distribution is four-three and the missing card, in this case the queen, is more apt to be in the hand that has four of the suit and will therefore probably not fall.

To summarize: The finesse will be the losing play if East has either Q x or Q x x, in which case the play to ruff out the queen will succeed. If, however West has Q x x x or Q x x x x the finesse will succeed whereas the other play will fail. The latter two combinations are more frequent in occurrence than the first two. All other combinations are immaterial, because both plays will have the same result.

Christ church, Winnetka, and an all-day meeting of the board of directors of the Church Mission of Help Friday in St. Mark's church, Geneva, and the Geneva home of Mrs. George W. Overton.

Other benefits include the annual spring card party of the Hinsdale senior center of the Infant Welfare society May 16 in the Hinsdale Community house, and a dance at the Riverside Country club May 19 planned by the Riverside center of the society.

Those who watch for rummage sales should mark the following dates: Next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at 1006 S. Michigan av., where the Kenwood center of Infant Welfare will hold its spring sale; May 17 and 18, chosen by the Kenilworth center of Infant Welfare for its spring event, and May 22 and 23, when the board of the Woman's Symphony orchestra will hold an Attic Treasure sale at 1006 S. Michigan av., with a special selection of attractive pieces forming the merchandise.

Here and There

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Drury Kettering are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter Monday in Ravenswood hospital. The baby's grandparents are the Michael J. Longs of Ridge av. and the Ralph Thomas Ketterings of Lake Shore dr. Young Mr. Kettering recently was honorably discharged from the army.

If the Woman's Athletic club expected a flood of cancelations because of V-E day for its regular lecture and luncheon yesterday, it had a surprise. The many calls which kept the club's telephones jangling from early morning requested, strangely enough, not cancelations but additional luncheon reservations, which finally mounted to 375, a much larger number than usual. Some of those who heard Margaret McWilliams speak on "Women of Canada" were Mrs. George B. Everitt Jr. and her mother, Mrs. Gordon G. Taylor; Mrs. Herbert Kochs, Mrs. Daniel Boone, Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone, Mrs. Louis Leverone, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Miss Emily and Miss Margaret Goehst, Mrs. Bennett W. Carrington, Mrs. Clinton Merrick, and Mrs. Jay C. McCord.

Today's Events

At a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Fashion group today in the Continental hotel, Carmel Snow, editor of a fashion magazine, will tell of her recent experiences in France. During her stay there she received an assignment from the American Red Cross which took her to the fighting front. Mrs. Snow was in charge of the Red Cross canteen service in France during World War I.

Dr. Fabien Sevitzky, conductor of the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, and Howard Harrington, manager, will be guests of the Cliff Dwellers at luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today.

The Daughters of France will have their last meeting of the season at 3:30 p. m. today in their headquarters in the Fine Arts building.

The Northwestern Settlement board in Evanston will meet today in the home of Mrs. Albert E. Cross, 2837 Sheridan pl., Evanston. A special guest will be Miss Harriet Vittum, who will discuss the summer plans for "The House in the Woods."

Members of the Friends of Orphans will meet today in the Evanston home of Mrs. Chester W. Hauth.

The Girls' Upper school of the Harris schools will present a benefit lecture by E. J. Buckles of the faculty at 3:30 p. m. today in the school. Mr. Buckles will speak on "18th Century Silver." Proceeds from the program will go toward the school's art fund. Tea will be served.

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. E. R. Kreger, Neenah, Wis.]

THE QUESTION.

What is the worst breach of etiquet you ever made?

WHERE ASKED

Service men's center, 176 W. Washington st.

THE ANSWERS

Maurice Lund, transport airman, Lancaster, Minn.—In my senior year in high school I dated two different girls. I asked both to go to the senior prom with me. They both accepted. Came the night of the prom and I didn't have the nerve to call either of the dates off. I deserted both of them and went to the prom alone.

Sgt. Hal Simons, 195 E. Chestnut st.—While riding in the subway I was reading a newspaper over the shoulders of the man who sat in front of me. I became so engrossed in what I was reading that I tapped him on the shoulder and said, "You can turn the page now. I've finished reading." I was terribly embarrassed.

Mrs. Russell Northrup, typist, 4340 Flournoy st.—I had accepted a dinner invitation from my newly acquired mother-in-law but I was so hungry I ate dinner before going. When I went to my in-laws I wasn't hungry and to the discomfort of the hostess I found it difficult trying to eat a second dinner an hour later.

Dorothy Lekas, office clerk, 231 N. Central av.—Just last week I received a long distance phone call. While I was talking, the doorbell rang. I excused myself and told my friend to hold the wire. Forgetting about the call, I left the house with another friend. I'd gone 12 blocks when I remembered the phone.

William Harnick, aircraftsman, London, Ont.—I met a girl in a restaurant and asked her if she'd like to go dancing. She accepted my invitation. We arrived at the dance and checked our coats and hats. I told her I'd meet her on the floor. I didn't know her without her hat and coat on and I never saw her again.

Pvt. Charles Beesley, Toronto, Ont.—This was the first dance I'd ever attended. I knew very little about dancing and less about etiquet at a dance. I left my partner standing in the middle of the floor after the first dance. A friend saw my error and told me I should usher the girl back when the dance was over.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, CAL., May 8—The last party I went to in San Francisco was given by the navy. They invited all of us out on what was supposed to be a Jap ship, and then put on an amazing display of dive bombing. Planes, 150 of them, dived, some of them from 20,000 feet, directly at the ship we were on, leveled out when they were 600 feet or less above us. Even knowing that no bombs would be released, you couldn't help ducking. It was terrifying, yet beautiful. Men at the controls of those planes were the real thing. Some of them were members of task force 38, army air group No. 8, responsible for shooting down 159 Jap planes. Also members of air group 19. They got 163 Japanese planes and four airplane carriers. They're the most decorated men in any branch of the service. Among them, they have 85 navy crosses. A. P. Coffin of Indianapolis, Ind., is one of them. They're here to mix in with the new boys who soon will be going over. Some veterans will be added to every group going out to the South Pacific.

One of the Early Birds

Yet the only camera shooting for all of this was handled by Ken McEldowney of the Federal Films. He got it on 16 mm. color. That will be released in schools, churches, and for educational purposes. Room had been made for 18 newsreel cameramen, but the poor fellows were so overworked they got there too late. . . . How Miriam Hopkins got aboard I'll never know. But her companion, Upton Close, might have been responsible for it. Also aboard was Joe Kennedy's son, Jack. . . . It's just a shame the newsreels didn't get the shots, 'cause it was a great show, and every one on board that boat was not only scared stiff but thrilled.

Don't You Believe It

About the silliest story I've heard lately is that Louis B. Mayer and Sam Katz are rowing. Louis says, "Sam is just one of my arms, that's all." When Sam heard that L. B. was on his way to New York, he returned from Chicago two days earlier than he had expected, so they could have day and night conferences. One of the reasons L. B. is going back east is to have a complete physical checkup. . . . Ida Koverman is taking 20 stars on a tour of the hospitals up north, ending at Hamilton field Thursday, after which Louis Lurie cracks out with a big party for them. Among the entertainers will be Dotty Lamour, Lina Romay, Renee De Marco, Carlos Ramirez, Bob Aida, Marion Bell, Vivian Blaine, Jess Barker, and Leo Carrillo.

Profitable Sidelines

"Blaze of Noon," the unfinished book of Capt. Ernest K. Gann, has been bought at a large figure by Paramount. The Captain ferries planes from here to London. His first book, "Island in the Sky," is sold out. "Blaze of Noon" is about the pioneer days of the United States air mail. . . . Alice Faye has agreed to sing one song in "Fallen Angel." . . . I was amused at a guy on Phil Baker's show. When asked the name of Phil Harris' wife, he said, "Which one—first or second?" The one he couldn't remember was Alice Faye. . . . Constance Bennett and George Bigaud are making recordings in French for O. W. I. . . . Bill Robinson stopped rehearsal of "Memphis Bound," his New York show, and rushed to telephone Shirley Temple in Hollywood when he suddenly remembered it was her birthday. He never fails to call her on that day. Pat O'Brien and his wife are back in town after their hospital and bond tour.

City's Devout Give Thanks for V-E Day

BY THE REV JOHN EVANS

Chicago's D-day prayers of last June 6 were answered yesterday, and Chicago's devout did not forget to give thanks. There was a steady movement of thousands toward churches where persons would sit or kneel for a few minutes and then depart. Organists were at consoles, playing softly. In Catholic churches there was the exposition of the blessed sacrament to heighten the thanksgiving.

Except for the prayers themselves as formally or informally uttered, and for musical selections, the spirit of worshipers yesterday was reminiscent of D-day. They were quiet in the solemnity of great realization; realization not only of the greatest military victory of all history, but also of Almighty God's presence and activity in both history and victory, and of ever increasing responsibilities of enduring peace.

Before President Truman's 8 o'clock proclamation, Dr. Charles R. Goff, pastor of First Methodist church, Chicago temple, found a cluster of persons waiting for the loop church to open its doors. Following the proclamation, the famous tubular chimes rang out over the intersection of Clark and Washington sts., calling persons to enter the church and give thanks to God for the victory.

They came in increasing groups, and Dr. Goff conducted 14 successive prayer services during the forenoon with persons either kneeling at the altar rail or sitting with bowed heads in the pews. At noon one of the largest congregations ever to enter the notable edifice attended a service set up jointly by the Church Federation of Greater Chicago and the temple. Dr. Goff and the Rev. Harold W. Ruopp, president of the federation, conducted the service. The succession of prayer services continued thruout the afternoon.

Dr. Ruopp, commenting on President Truman's proclamation of next Sunday as a national day of prayer, called attention to that day as also being Mother's day. The coincidence, he said, would be particularly fitting with the combination "lifting Mother's day out of its ordinary setting and putting it in a much larger framework. Mothers who give their sons to battle are lovers of peace. They know that the homes of the world are at stake unless a just and lasting peace can be achieved. A national day of prayer is always a mother's day."

Scores of Lutheran churches thruout the city began their V-E observances Monday night, with services repeated yesterday morning and last night. One of the largest Monday night services on the north shore was held in Christ Episcopal Church on the Hill, Winnetka, where the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard not only celebrated victory but offered intercessions for the 500 members of the parish in service, and memorials for the dozen whose names are marked by gold stars.

A week long V-E retreat for young women and girls of the back of the yards district opened Monday night in St. John of God Roman Catholic church, 52d and Throop sts., conducted by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, founder and national director of the Catholic Youth organization. Nine congregations of differing national origins within a square mile are participating. There are 1,200 retreatants. The Rev. John Vysnauskas of Holy Cross Lithuanian church, assisted Bishop Sheil last night.

In addition to the Lithuanian congregation, Slovak, Bohemian, German, Mexican, Polish, and Irish congregations are participating. Holy hours were held in virtually all Catholic churches last night with solemn masses this morning. At Holy Name cathedral the solemn high victory mass will be offered this morning at 10 o'clock.

George F. Manzelman, president of the Chicago Baptist association, asked all Baptist churches of the city yesterday to observe V-E day last night. Presbyterians of the city attending a conference on world order at McCormick Theological seminary, together with the 175 students, held V-E services last night.

Bishop Wallace E. Conkling asked for a 40 day period of special prayers in all churches of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago following the regularly planned V-E services yesterday.

Nearly all synagogs were open for prayers thruout the day, with services in Reform synagogs last night held in memory of members who had fallen in battle.

Play Sandals

BY ELLEN BRUCE

There is no end to styles of crocheted sandals and play shoes, and we need have no fear of rationing when we can fashion such shoes from odds and ends in the scrap bag. This attractive pair of comfortable sandals may be made in little time. Giving the soles a light coat of varnish adds to the durability and in no way affects laundering.

For instructions in crocheting the play sandals, No. X 1153, send 15 CENTS in coin [wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Girl Scout Leaders to Evaluate Program at Three Day Parley

Illinois executives of the National Association of Girl Scouts will assemble at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in the LaSalle hotel for the opening session of a three day conference at which the Girl Scout program will be evaluated. The conference's first speaker and discussion leader will be William F. Byron, assistant professor of sociology at Northwestern university, whose subject will be "Do Youth Programs of Today Build for Tomorrow?"

Workshop sessions will be conducted tomorrow afternoon and Friday morning, and on Friday afternoon seven senior Scouts will participate in a panel discussion, "Youth's Contribution to Post-war Community Living," with Miss Kathleen Power as coördinator.

The Saturday meeting will be devoted to the topic, "What Are We Doing About It?" with Mrs. J. H. Pratt, former regional chairman, presenting the volunteer's viewpoint, and Mrs. Florence Doyle, Chicago executive, the professional view. Miss Phyllis Sargent and Miss Marie Kelley will preside at the conference.

Wise Woman Wins the Love of Stepchildren

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Since I'm only 14 years old I suppose I really shouldn't be writing to you," writes a young girl, "but I just have to tell you about the stepmother I have. She is just wonderful. I'm sure my own mother would love her and be glad that she is living with us in our home.

"Mother died when I was 7 and my brother 4 years old. We had to have a housekeeper then. She was nice enough but didn't fill the bill. When daddy said that he was going to have a new wife I was really frightened because I thought it meant Jack and I wouldn't have much fun any more, but I was mistaken. We even call her 'mother' now, altho she never suggested it, and she sure is swell. I guess we loved her right away because she always asked us what we thought about everything she thought we should do instead of demanding that we change our ways. And she was so interested in our happiness and our troubles . . ."

Of course the younger the children are, the easier it is for a new mother to make a place for herself in their hearts. And this must be her first object—really to care about them and to treat them so that they feel it—not so much by endearing terms as by interest and understanding. Real love is catching, haven't you noticed? If she cannot accomplish this, she cannot hope to succeed in the fullest sense of the word.

This stepmother evidently did not think, "When I'm married and have the power, I'll reform those children." She did want to change some of their ways for their good and the family's but her main desire was to give them something they needed and didn't have. She did just that and was then able to direct their lives without friction or resentment from them.

I think that a stepmother should tread lightly as far as signs of affection from the children are concerned—not asking, but winning by her just desserts their love and the tokens of it. Also, like this woman, she should not insist on their calling her "mother," especially if they remember their own mother. Let them find some other name or use her first name, perhaps.

It is not easy for children to accept into the most intimate relationship in the world an outsider, to be controled and have their ways of living ordered by a new person. Handle them gently if you are a stepmother, and don't expect quick returns.

Thru the Looking Glass

The nicest gifts for mother are those that tell her you think of her as a person and not part of the household effects. She's flattered and pleased with the remembrance that injects a bit of luxurious living into her every day routine and enlarges her sense of femininity. Whether she's a very young mother or has arrived at the proud grandmother stage, the little gift which implies that she's cherished and pampered is the one that buoys up her spirit.

In this category there are some lovely preparations in a light floral fragrance, a delicate blend of scents that bring to mind an old fashioned garden with all its delicate color and aroma.

There's a lovely dusting powder, wonderfully fine in texture, light as a feather. It's permeated with the pretty floral fragrance and is delightful to use after bathing. The container is a treat to the eye, a white box with tiny pink and blue flowers scattered over it.

A bath cologne in the same lovely scent is a real addition to a woman's bath accessories. It's light in effect, but the fragrance clings to the skin for hours. For real luxury it may be used for an after bath massage, a cooling rite to remember in the warm days ahead. The cologne is contained in a milky white bottle decorated with the same dainty pink and blue flower motif, a little blue ribbon tied about the neck, and makes an attractive addition to the dressing table or bathroom shelf.

There are several other preparations in this line, including a complexion soap with a soothing, creamy base and some sweet sachet puffs.

The items are sold singly or in sets and are perfect gifts for mothers who like things that look and are completely feminine.

Junior D. A. R.'s Vote $4,000 for Equipment for Navy Hospitals

National officers and committee chairmen of the National Junior daughters of the American Revolution assembly voted yesterday to purchase nine metal locators at a cost of $4,000 for use in navy hospitals. They also decided to award seven $100 scholarships this year instead of the usual three to needy students. The board session was held in the Stevens hotel under the direction of Mrs. H. A. Alexander of Grenada, Miss., assembly chairman.

The executive group is considering adoption of a program of assistance to the Leader Dog league in Detroit, Mich., as the society's major war service project. Work of the league, which provides leader dogs for blind persons, was outlined before the assembly by Harold Warman, blinded office manager, who appeared with his guide dog.

RACING AWAITS DECISION TODAY ON LIFTING BAN

Halt Special Rule on 4-F Athletes

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—The racing ban may be lifted tomorrow, it was learned today amid swift developments affecting sports as the aftermath of Germany's unconditional surrender. The White House announced that War Mobilizer Vinson will hold a news conference at 10 a. m. tomorrow [Chicago time], and it is certain that the racing question will be brought up at that time.

Fred M. Vinson

Sportsmen felt confident that Vinson would carry out a suggestion made by James F. Byrnes, former war mobilizer, that racing be allowed to resume after V-E day.

Another development today favorable to sports was the war department's indefinite suspension of a regulation requiring review of all cases of professional athletes rejected in the draft. This rule was lifted pending the result of an investigation on allegations of discrimination.

Price Leads Fight

Rep. Melvin Price [D., Ill.] recently protested to the department that 4-F professional athletes unable to meet physical requirements were being inducted anyway. An aid to Price said today, "We have just learned from the war department that application of the regulation governing such cases has been indefinitely suspended."

Undersecretary of War Patterson had ordered an investigation based on Price's complaints of discrimination.

"Any case of a professional athlete now before the war department for review will be held in abeyance pending result of this investigation," Price's aid said he had been advised.

Ruling Affects Three Senators

"This means that such players as George Case, Mickey Haefner, and Dutch Leonard, all Washington Senators recently examined, rejected, and their cases sent to the war department for final decision, will not be inducted, pending final result of the war department's investigation."

There also was word from the army that the athletic branch of the service forces has begun immediate preparations for allied tournaments in many sports in Europe and that plans are being made for wide scale competition in the Pacific theater of war.

As for the racing ban, President Truman said recently at a news conference that he did not intend to lift the restriction before V-E day. He left open, however, the possibility of resumption after Germany's surrender.

May Run Derby on June 2

If the prohibition is abolished tomorrow, racing officials said that some tracks probably can reopen shortly. The Kentucky Derby, usually held the first Saturday in May, probably would be run on June 2 or June 9. Other headline events like the Pimlico and Belmont stakes would follow in their regular order.

"We're pretty well set to go providing the war man power commission will give us some relief on employment ceilings at the tracks," said one racing official.

TRACKS AWAIT SIGNAL

New York, May 8 (AP)—Track officials, expecting the ban on racing to be lifted within a few days, said today they are ready to resume the sport on which more than one billion dollars were wagered in 1944.

Racing plants, for the most, are in good condition, since they have been in use for several weeks as horsemen kept their runners close to actual racing condition. The machinery behind the sport that yielded $55,971,232.87 in states' revenue last year also is all set to go.

The ban on the sport since Jan. 3 means there will be curtailed seasons in New England, New York, Illinois, Maryland, and Kentucky since they normally open in April.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

A DETROIT baseball writer busied himself on a rainy day by picking an all-Michigan team from the major leagues. . . . His lineup would read: Catcher, Mike Tresh, White Sox; pitchers, Hal Newhouser and Paul Trout, Tigers, and Steve Gromek, Indians; first base, John McHale, Tigers; second base, Glen Crawford, Cardinals; shortstop, Cass Michaels, White Sox; third base, Roy Cullenbine, Tigers; outfielders, Augie Bergamo, Cardinals; Frank Secory, Cubs, and Chet Laabs, Browns. . . . He asked for it, so here's the all-Illinois team we could match with his native sons, if conditions permitted: catchers, Vince Castino, White Sox, and Bill Holm, Red Sox; pitchers, Orval Grove, White Sox, Nelson Potter, Browns, and Milt Haefner and Dutch Leonard, both of the Senators; first base, Nick Etten, Yankees; second base, Don Johnson, Cubs, and Le Roy Schalk, White Sox; third base, Al Schoendienst, Cards; Shortstop Lou Boudreau, Indians; Outfielders Mike Kreevich, Browns; Johnny Dickshot, White Sox, and Dick Sipek, Reds. . . . Officials of the Jersey City club have moved the fences in 30 feet to stimulate home run production. . . . The distance down each foul line now is 300 feet. . . . Doubters who are wondering if college athletes now in military uniforms will return for further competition have their answer in the case of Bob Larson, pitcher-outfielder on this year's University of Washington varsity. . . . Larson, back on the campus after four years of war, is doing very well on the diamond and plans to turn out for football next fall at the age of 26. . . . He earned baseball letters in 1939 and 1940 before being drafted long before Pearl Harbor. . . . Dwight Pitkin, London Associated Press man who handled Ed Kennedy's world scoop on Germany's surrender, used to be a copyreader on the sports desk of the Chicago Tribune.

Mike Sabena, the infielder sold by the Dodgers to New Orleans, has capitulated and will play with the Pelicans. . . . Sabena demurred at first, saying he did not want to report to a class A club after having played last season in the class AA American association. . . . The University of Oregon has refused to accept the resignation of Mike Mikulak, as back field coach. . . . Mike, a major in Germany, mailed the resignation with a note reading, "I may be presuming a lot, but I never have been notified that I was given an official leave of absence." . . . He is listed that way NOW. . . . When Red Killifer managed clubs in the Pacific Coast league, he had a signal, "thumbs down," when he wanted a pitcher to dust off a hitter. . . . If the hurler ignored it, he was fined $10. . . . Sudden thought: Whatever happened to Leo Durocher's plan to play regularly for the Dodgers? . . . Says Bill Benswanger of the Pirates: "This is the best club we have had in seven years and I believe we have a real chance to win the pennant." Frankie Frisch will love that. . . . During a recent track meet in Australia service men were invited to compete. . . . Down came a chap in a United States navy uniform. . . . He won the 100 yard dash in well under 10 seconds to the amazement of Anzac fans. . . . Turned out to be Hal Davis of California fame. . . . Tom Kelly, superintendent of police at four of Chicago's five race tracks, Arlington and Washington Parks, Lincoln Fields, and Hawthorne, is back from a winter in Florida to prepare for the opening of the local season.

Parties

Have you ever noticed how people warm up
When the party gets under way,
Every one mellow and friendly
With the pleasantest things to say?
Your face, which they've hardly noticed before
Or distinguished from any other,
All at once assumes the features
Of a well loved, long lost brother.
And the invitations they issue you,
Insisting on day and date,
How is it they've never asked you before?
But that's not the half of it—wait!
Suddenly they discover
Your business or line of trade,
You'll get a big order tomorrow—
Rich and lush are the promises made.
I've often pondered how nice it would be—
And I'm not trying to act the smarty—
Could we only love folks as we seem to
At the height of any good party!

TRAFTON SIGNS TO COACH RAMS' LINE NEXT FALL

CUBS TRY NEW ATTACK TODAY AGAINST PHILS

Cavarretta Swings in Fourth Spot

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 8—The Chicago Cubs, with a new batting order, and trying to forget their flops since they wound up a six game winning streak with Hank Wyse's one hitter over the Pirates on April 28, hope to get back into victory ways when they open a three game series against the Phillies here tomorrow afternoon.

Since the aforesaid six-game winning streak, the Cubs, you know, have played two Sunday double headers and a game pitched by Paul Derringer. They folded in both double headers, the first time in Chicago, and last Sunday before a patched up outfit playing in the uniforms of the Cardinals in St. Louis. Derringer won over the Cardinals last Saturday for his fourth success of the season without a failure.

Derringer will go after his fifth straight tomorrow. He has whipped the Cardinals twice and the Pirates twice. If Charley Grimm's new lineup is as good as the old one has been in working for Paul, the Cubs should win.

Phils Have Troubles, Too

The Phillies have won only three of their 16 games this year. The Cubs, with all their recent floundering, have won eight of their 14. Even last year, when the Cubs lost 13 of their first 14 games, their subsequent climb to the first division of the National league was helped by the Phillies, who obliged by dropping 13 while winning nine in competition with the Chicagoans.

In the shakeup tomorrow, Bill Nicholson will yield his treasured cleanup spot to Capt. Phil Cavarretta, who has been hitting consistently. Nicholson, who trained with the Phillies, knocked a homer his first time up on opening day and for several days seemed to be in shape for a lot of marauding. He has been a big bust recently, however, and Grimm figured a shift out of the No. 4 spot might ease the tension.

The outfield, during the late phases of that six game winning streak, seemed set, with Eddie Sauer in left, Peanuts Lowrey in center and Nicholson in right. But the foldup in St. Louis Sunday caused the benching of Sauer and Lowrey.

Secory Gets His Chance

In the new lineup, Frank Secory, who would have started the season had he not injured a leg in the lone exhibition game with the White Sox, will be the only new starter. Sauer went so well as a replacement for Secory that he carried a .350 batting average to St. Louis last week-end. Then he tightened up to the point Grimm felt justified in benching him before the second game Sunday, switching Lowrey from center to left and restoring an earlier slump victim, Andy Pafko, to center. In tomorrow's array it will be Secory in left, Pafko in center, and Nicholson in right.

Some of the Cubs arrived here this morning in time to participate in the V-E celebration in the vicinity of the Liberty bell. The balance of the squad got here later, following the trip to Baltimore and Bainbridge. The Cubs' scheduled exhibition game with Bainbridge navy was canceled because of wet grounds.

The Cubs do not have to face the leading Giants or the second place Dodgers until after they have finished here and in Boston.

WEATHER MAN'S AID SOUGHT BY GOLF STUDENTS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Yesterday's bright and pleasant temperatures proved highly encouraging to the members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, who comprise the faculty of the 13th annual free Tribune golf school. These teachers have long since realized that a contrary fellow known as the weather man would commit something like his behavior of Monday, when he forced a postponement of the game's largest system of group instruction.

That opening lesson, interrupted by the combination of a day long downpour and the V-E stories, will be resumed Friday night. The members of the Illinois P. G. A. and officials of the school decided to call off the initial lesson two hours before it was to be held.

Two Lessons Friday

The pros, who were sacrificing one of their free days in conducting the Monday night classes on the four courses of the Chicago park district, returned to work at their own clubs yesterday. President Alex Cunningham of North Shore said that they'll all be back Friday to have another go at opening the school, with the courtesy of the aforesaid weather man.

The opening lesson on Friday will be devoted to the grip, the A phase of the fairway alphabet. Because of the doubled-up lesson, the faculty also will emphasize the stance to compensate for Monday's postponement. The other two lessons will be held on next Monday night and on Friday evening, May 18.

One Club and Yourself

All lessons are free. The only requirements for matriculation are one golf club and prompt attendance at the park district course nearest your home or work. All classes will begin promptly at 7:15 o'clock. The locations of the four courses are: Jackson park, 63d st. and Stony Island av.; Columbus park, Jackson blvd. and Central av.; Marquette park, Kedzie av. and Marquette rd.; and Diversey, in Lincoln park at Lake Michigan and the foot of Diversey blvd.

LAWSON NAMED SHAW'S AID AT SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., May 8 (AP)—Lt. Comdr. James Lawson, former Stanford football coach, has signed a contract to serve on the coaching staff of the San Francisco eleven of the All-America conference when the professional football league begins operations after the war, A. J. [Tony] Morabito, owner of the club franchise, said today.

Lawrence [Buck] Shaw, formerly of Santa Clara, will be the head coach of Morabito's team.

[Ninth of a series concerning war time athletic activities of Western conference schools, the problems faced and conquered, and their post-war plans.]

BY EDWARD PRELL

Even the casual sports fan knows that the caliber of contestants in college and professional sports has suffered during the war. Over and over the point has been proved that close competition, and the excitement it generates, is a bigger factor than the skill of the competitors. The crowds have continued to crowd into athletic parks even tho most of the stars have departed.

Alvin [Bo] McMillin, football coach at Indiana university, offers some interesting conclusions on the fluctuating strength of conference elevens in the war years.

Buckeyes Below Par

"Man power losses have lowered the standards of some teams a great deal more than they have others," says the veteran coach. "Ohio State's Big Nine championship team, for instance, was 20 per cent below the standard of its 1942 champions. Purdue's 1943 co-champion eleven was 15 per cent above the 1941 and 1942 civilian teams, however.

"In our own case, Indiana's 1943 team was 35 per cent below the 1942 squad in ability and the 1944 outfit 20 per cent below. I think that without a doubt, Iowa's 1943 and 1944 teams were 40 per cent inferior to the 1942 Hawkeye team. This is not taking anything away from the boys who played on those two teams, tho, for they have carried on magnificently."

McMillin says many Indiana players with eligibility left who are in military service have told him they are eager to return and begin where they left off. "I've heard from virtually every outstanding player of Indiana's 1942 season," he explained, "and they are, without exception, eager to get back and finish their playing careers. But if the old timers lose their zest for the game—and zest is paramount to a good football player, even above

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Cleveland's Indians, despite their embarrassment [eighth place] convinced the haughty, pace making White Sox yesterday that there is a limit to all things. The James Dykes boys had slapped them around five straight and assembled yesterday in Comiskey park with the idea of doing it again. Instead the Indians took charge of the show and to prove they weren't exactly novices administered an effective 7 to 1 flailing that left the Sox with only a lady finger grip on first place.

Along with being the Indians' initial success of the year in combat with the Chicagoans, the game also put a demerit mark behind the name of Orval Grove. He started well enough, retiring the first 12 batters, but wilted rapidly and had to be removed in the seventh by which time the visitors were comfortable with four runs. It was only the fourth time in the 13 games played by the Sox thus far that the starting pitchers couldn't go the distance.

Three Hits for Moses

If all the Sox could have done as well as Wally Moses at bat, the whole job would have been simple. Wally collected three hits, one for a run in the first inning but aside from these three there were only four others off Red Embree. But despite his skill Red was faced by a trimming until the sixth when Grove finally was painfully dented by a two run homer propelled into the seats by Felix Mackiewicz. Incidentally, this was the Indians' first homer of the year, an honor all the other major league clubs had previously attained.

When Grove had to take it on the run in the seventh his place was taken over by Earl Caldwell, the ex-Brewer, and the Indians continued with their merriment.

As soon as Grove had given proper treatment to three Indian batters in the first inning Moses began his afternoon of hitting by aiming his leadoff triple against the right field scoreboard. He went home quickly on Oris Hockett's fly to Mackiewicz.

Another Double in Fourth

Moses was up again in the third and this time dropped a two bagger in left but two were out at the time and Hockett furnished no assistance. However, the fourth brought another double, this a pop fly messed up in short right field by Al Cihock and Pat Seerey. It put Dickshot on second with none out but when the inning ended he had progressed no farther than third.

Grove's sweep of 11 successive batters was broken up when Ed Carnett doubled to left with two gone in the fourth. Manager Boudreau followed with a line drive single which Cass Michaels knocked down, but Carnett didn't know just what happened until he was about to cross the plate. Then he learned that Michaels had recovered and thrown to Mike Tresh in time to end the inning. Grove did another escape act in the fifth, which Seerey opened with a triple, and this effort apparently exhausted his skill.

Mackiewicz Hits Home Run

The opening incident in the Indians' two run sixth was an out but the next out was considerably delayed. Rocco tripled into right center and was still breathing heavily on third when he had to resume traveling, the cause being the Mackiewicz homer into the left field pavilion. Grove got thru the remainder of the inning but only after the bases had become filled on a pass and a single and Tony Cuccinello had speared a line drive by Dutch Meyer, who batted for Cihocki.

Grove asked for it in the seventh by handing a pass to Jim McDonnell, who led off. He was forced by Embree, after which Mickey Rocco singled and Mackiewicz walked, loading the bags. One scored on a force play and another on Boudreau's single, the latter blow being considered sufficient reason to send Caldwell to Grove's relief. The rescuer fanned Seerey to close the inning but got his in the shape of four hits in the eighth.

DOHERTY AGAIN SHOWS COACHING SKILL IN TRACK

Builds Another Strong Team at Michigan

BY WILFRID SMITH

Nineteen Michigan athletes scored in the triangular track meet last week at Lafayette with Purdue and Miami, O., university and only four of them were members of the Wolverines' 1944 Western conference championship squad. This points to the efficiency of a coaching system which for this campaign assembled 150 men to try out for positions on the squad.

Michigan has won seven of 11 possible indoor and outdoor Western conference championships since Ken Doherty took charge and has taken the last five in succession. It is considered almost certain that Michigan will retain the outdoor championship at Champaign May 26. If the Wolverines lose any meet this spring, the only chance is on Saturday when they are hosts to Illinois, Great Lakes, and Ohio State. This quadrangular meet, since it involves Illinois, which was beaten by one point by Michigan in the conference indoor games last March, practically is a pre-view of the outdoor meet.

Humes to Run Saturday

The four men who scored points at Purdue and who received major awards at Michigan last year are Julian Witherspoon, sprinter; Richard Forrestel, quarter miler; Dick Barnard, half miler, and Charles Birdsall, two miler. In addition, Warren Bentz, who shared the pole vault victory at Purdue with two teammates, received a minor track letter last year.

The list of point winners at Purdue last week does not include, of course, Ross and Bob Hume, the outstanding members of the team around whom Michigan fashioned its recent Big Ten titles. Because of medical studies they did not go to Lafayette, but will compete this week. The Humes' best mark last spring was 4:14.6 and a dead heat in the mile in the Central Collegiate meet at Great Lakes.

The mile is the best distance for the twins and they shared the conference championship in this event last year. Their time was 4:25.4, a deliberately slow race because of later events. Bob Hume ran second in the conference half mile that same afternoon behind Bob Kelley of Illinois and then he finished third in the two mile run, which was won by Ross. Thus the pair accounted for 21 of Michigan's 70 points, the second highest team total in Western conference track history.

Forrestel Gets Better

Forrestel, Barnard, and Birdsall were winners at Lafayette last week in the quarter mile, half mile, and two miles, respectively. Forrestel, a navy student from Akron, N. Y., is the best of these three veterans. Barnard placed only third in the conference half mile last year while Birdsall was fifth in the conference two mile. Forrestel has improved remarkably and his 440 yard race in 50 4/10 seconds last Saturday was superior to his best listed performance in the 1944 season.

Kelley will be the man for Forrestel to whip in the Big Ten meet—the Illini star won last year—and Saturday at Ann Arbor it is likely Forrestel will lose to Grover Klemmer of Great Lakes. Klemmer, former University of California athlete, is co-holder of the world record for 440 yards, and at Columbus, O., last Saturday he ran a :49.2 quarter. Klemmer tied the world record of :46:4 for this distance in 1941. The record originally was established by Ben Eastman of Stanford in 1932.

If Bob Hume runs in the half mile Saturday, he will meet Les Eisenhart of Great Lakes, former Ohio State star.

27-1 SHOT WINS AND PAYS $56.20 IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, May 8 (AP)—Border Beauty, a 27 to 1 shot, won today's Premio Paricutin at the Hipodromo de las Americas by two and one-half lengths.

The 6 year old mare, purchased from H. T. Palmer by D. Covarrubias of Mexico, did the five and a half furlongs over a good track in 1:06 with Apprentice Mario Diaz up. Long shot players collected $56.20, $7.00 and $3.20 across the board.

ALEX KAPTER'S MOTHER DIES; FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services will be held in Waukegan today for Mrs. Eleanor Kapter, 57, mother of Alex Kapter, former Northwestern university football captain. Mrs. Kapter died suddenly at the family home in Waukegan Monday night. Alex, an aviation cadet in Norman, Okla., and a member of THE TRIBUNE'S 1943 College All-Star football squad, is expected to arrive today. Mrs. Kapter is survived by three other sons, Bruno, Adolph, and Walter, all in service.

Here's the Track Picture

Here is how the situation shapes up in each section:

MARYLAND—Approximately 1,000 horses quartered at Pimlico and Laurel. Probably will be 10 day joint meeting at Pimlico, May 16-26, with a one day meeting in June to permit running of the Preakness a week after the Derby.

KENTUCKY—Keeneland plans to open its meeting at Churchill Downs May 19 to be followed by regular Churchill Downs session. Kentucky Derby nominations closed April 25 and are expected to be announced soon as the ban is lifted. Derby may be run on June 2 or A. Between 800 and 900 horses stabled at Downs.

NEW YORK—Will open within week or 10 days after lifting of restrictions with tracks sharing remaining dates. The decision as to whether the Empire City and Saratoga meetings will be run at their own tracks is up to Gov. Dewey. All major stakes will be run. Close to 1,500 horses quartered at New York tracks.

May Extend Illinois Season

ILLINOIS—Sportsman's Park said to be able to operate in three days with 800 horses stabled there and at near-by Hawthorne, Washington and Arlington Parks going ahead with major stake program, including two $60,000 Futurities. Classic, Arlington handicap and American Derby. Racing season may be extended to mid-November.

NEW ENGLAND—Track officials announced today that, if ban lifted by Saturday, Narragansett will open 25 day meeting Saturday and reopen Labor day for 30 days; Suffolk Downs will hold 54 day meeting ending week of Aug. 1, and Rockingham will run 18 days in August and close season with 36 day meeting. More than 1,000 horses available.

California Tracks Ready

OHIO—Beulah Park has 350 horses at track and hopes to resume May 19 or 26 if ban lifted this week. Other major Ohio tracks ready to resume as racing commission fixes dates.

CALIFORNIA—Santa Anita planning summer meeting, holding many of its rich stakes usually run during winter season. Bay Meadows also ready to resume.

DELAWARE, NEW JERSEY—Delaware Park ready for its regular May 29-July 4 meeting with Garden State Park following July 13-Sept. 8.

WEST VIRGINIA—Tentative dates for 30 day meetings at Charles Town and Wheeling Downs approved by state racing commission pending ban elimination. Both tracks probably will open May 28 and continue to July 4.

M'Millin Puts Yardstick on War's Effect

Service Improves Players

McMillin is confident that military training will make better football players of the collegians. He cited the case of Rex Grossman, a sophomore in 1943 spring training and one of the best Hoosier full back prospects in years.

"He was 15 pounds overweight," said Bo, "that spring. I tried to impress on him the necessity of getting in shape before entering the army. This he failed to do but later told me army life soon took off the excess and that he then won the camp heavyweight boxing title.

"Such outstanding players of our 1942 season as Chuck Jacoby, Paul Walker, Bob Dean, Pete Pihos, Lou Saban, Bill Hillenbrand, and Ted Hasapes write that they want to play out their eligibility. Pihos wrote me from Germany asking for a football and a pair of shoes. 'I'm getting stale,' he complained, 'and I'm afraid I'll lose my touch.'

Writing a letter of appreciation, Pihos declared, "If I can find time and a field which isn't mined, I'll get into top shape again."

McMillin says that morale of the Indiana teams in 1943 and 1944 was high. One of the reasons for this was J. C. [Rooster] Coffee, smiling Negro guard, who was graduated this spring. "Rooster, with his ever smiling face and effervescent personality, never let an opportunity pass to give the boys a smile," Bo added.

Favors Freshman Plan

Z. G. Clevenger, Indiana's director of athletics, believes that maturity and experience still are major factors in competition and that freshmen should wait a year before engaging in varsity play. At the same time, Clevenger praised the fine play of the first year boys during the man power emergency. He favors a conference program of freshmen competing against freshmen.

Football and basketball attendance have been hit hard at the Bloomington school. Games in three seasons before the war average 15,419 and the average for the last three seasons has fallen to 7,470. Average basketball crowds in the same periods have dropped from 4,049 to 3,289.

Twelve "I" winners have lost their lives in this war, and six members of the coaching staff have gone into active service.

Tomorrow: Minnesota.

CLASSIC LEAGUE SECOND ROUND ENDS TONIGHT

The pressure is on the Monarch Beers tonight in the final second round session of the 1945 Classic Bowling league's season. Trailing the Meister Braus by two games, the Monarchs must win three to gain a tie if the Meisters win one. The Meisters can clinch the title if they win two in Kaadland, 3249 N. Ashland av. If the Monarchs sweep their series with the third place Primas and the Meisters lose three to the eighth place Du Bouchetts, the former would have a clear claim to the play-off berth. The Primas have a mathematical chance to finish in a tie for top spot. A sweep of their series and three Meister defeats would do the trick.

Paul Krumske's Braus, however, have staged a late season rally to move into first place and seem headed for a defense of their 1944 crown in the roll-off with Thompson's Restaurants, first half champions. If a tie for the leadership should result tonight the two leaders would meet next Wednesday in a roll-off.

ANGLERS HOLD V-E CELEBRATION IN SNOWSTORM

BY BOB BECKER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CROW LAKE, Ont., May 8—When news of V-E day reached the fishermen who are up here in the Lake of Woods region for the first lake trout fishing of the year, they figured out a type of celebration that only a bunch of anglers ever would think of. All of us here on the bank of Crow lake got the news via radio and then decided to hold a combination fishing party and shore picnic not far from camp.

Because of a freak storm which brought high winds and snow, it was impossible for lake trout fishermen to get out on the open water. Not only was it too cold to cruise around in the boat but the white caps were too high for comfort. So around noon when the camp had been decorated with bunting and flags, Doctors C. O. Kohlbry and Charles L. Waldo, and Ray Hall and Clinton F. Russell from Duluth, Minn., joined with three other experienced lake trout anglers, Rush Watkins, 5837 Blackstone av., Chicago, and Oscar L. Weber and William R. Cook, Stevens Point, Wis., for the V-E day party.

Repeating D-day Method

It was agreed that all would meet on a wooded point, sheltered from the chilly wind, but close to camp. Ours was the first boat ashore, so we put up a small American flag. Then the other boats checked in to make our beachhead secure.

A big fire was built and here we stayed all afternoon. Despite frequent snow squalls sweeping down the lake accompanied by a 25 to 30 mile an hour wind, weather more ideal for duck hunting than fishing, some of the boys headed by Weber tried their hand at trolling. No one, however, got a strike.

The only successful fishermen were those who stayed around the fire. A couple of the boys rigged up fly rods and put on live minnows. The minnows were dropped in deep water about 50 feet from the shore where lake trout would pick them up.

Blindness No Handicap

One of the highlights was the landing of a 5 pound lake trout on a fly rod by Russell, sightless for almost 21 years. He picked up Watkins' fly rod as soon as a lake trout had grabbed the bait, got into a boat and played his fish skillfully in front of the victory day party while snow was falling.

Four lake trout, weighing up to 7 pounds, were landed before the fishermen, muffled up in their big coats, headed back for camp in another snow flurry. There is about an inch of snow on the ground tonight, enough to cause the sportsmen to think about beagle hounds and rabbit hunting instead of fishing tackle.

PHILS GET TWO CARDINALS FOR BUSTER ADAMS

Philadelphia, Pa., May 8 (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies announced today that Buster Adams, regular left fielder, has been traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for two players.

The Phils will get John Antonelli, third baseman who last year batted .312 in 139 games for Columbus of the American association, and Glenn Crawford, who played shortstop for Columbus in 1944 and batted .291 in 130 games.

Adams came to the Phils in 1943 from the Cards. He batted .283 in 150 games for Philadelphia last year.

FRISCO PRAISES RING TALENTS OF HORNET VETERAN

Pvt. Frankie Frisco, boxing instructor at Fort Meade, Md., who is in town on a furlough, visited headquarters of the Veteran Boxers' association of Illinois in the Garrick bldg., yesterday with a medically discharged navy hero whom he predicts will make his mark as a lightweight boxer.

The lad is Tony Panico, 21 year old west side lightweight. Tony was released from the service last November after participating in 14 South Pacific engagements, including the Santa Cruz battle, during which the aircraft carrier Hornet was sunk.

Panico, a sailor for three and one-half years, passed ammunition until the order came to abandon craft, and spent nearly five hours in the water before being rescued. He swelled with pride, however, while telling how the Hornet's anti-aircraft battery shot down 81 Jap planes.

Panico returned to the ring recently, beating his Milwaukee opponent in an intercity show in the Madison Athletic club.

Mrs. Danny Gallagher, wife of a director of the Veteran Boxers' association, who died in Chicago on Monday night, will be buried today in McHenry, Ky. . . . Harry Teaney, former Cleveland Golden Gloves boxer, who fought professionally in Chicago, is taking his basic training at the marine base at Camp Le Jeune, N. C.

An Australian tag team match will pit Joe Dorsetti and Hans Buesing against Jess Hernandez and Young Sandow in a wrestling show tonight in Rainbo Fronton, 4836 N. Clark st. . . . Johnny Farrell, Elgin light heavyweight, and Herbert Hansen of Rockford will meet in a five round bout topping an amateur boxing program this evening in the West Side gymnasium, 10 S. California av.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL LEAGUE TO OPEN SEASON MAY 18

The National Girls Softball league will open its second season of play on Friday night, May 18, with the Rauland Radar Quens, formerly the Kandy Kids, last year's champions, playing the Bloomer Girls in Parichy stadium, the Sparks playing the Music Maids in Rock-Ola stadium, and the Chicks meeting the Bluebirds in Bidwill stadium.

The league, a six club circuit since the addition of the Rock-Ola Music Maids, will play a 100 game schedule with the season divided into two halves of 50 games each. All teams will play each other 10 times during each half of the season. The first half will end July 15 while the second half will end Sept. 6. Play-offs between teams finishing in first and second place in each half of the season will get under way Sept. 8.

Five Basket Stars Admit Bribe Charge

New York, May 8 (AP)—Five former Brooklyn college basketball players testified in court today that they had accepted a $1,000 down payment on a $3,000 bribe to throw a game with Akron [O.] university in Boston last January.

The testimony was given at the Kings county court trial of Harvey Stemmer and Henry Rosen, charged with conspiracy to defraud certain persons in connection with the bribe.

Larry Pearlstein, 24, who said he played on the team, altho not enrolled in the college, testified Rosen brought up the subject of fixing games at his home. Later, Pearlstein said, four teammates and he went with Rosen to Stemmer's home, where they were given $1,000 as payment on the $3,000 offer.

Other members of the team, testifying today, corroborated the testimony. They were Bernard Barnett, Jerome Green, Stanley Simon, and Robert Leder. The plan to throw the game was revealed before the scheduled date of the contest and it was canceled by officials of the two schools. The players involved were expelled.

PHILS MAY TRAIN IN VENEZUELA IN 1946—PENNOCK

Philadelphia, Pa., May 8 (AP)—General Manager Herb Pennock said today the Philadelphia Phillies may train next spring in Venezuela, possibly Caracas, if the travel ban is relaxed and if arrangements can be made.

Pennock admitted there had been some talk of the club going to South America for a pre-spring training tour, but added that anything really definite was in the future.

"The club would go to South America about three weeks before opening its training camp in Florida," Pennock said. "Club officials still have a warm spot in their hearts for Miami Beach, the former training site."

Manager Freddy Fitzsimmons also has ideas about spring training. He likes Havana, Cuba, and said he would divide the time between the off-the-mainland site and a leisurely tour north.

FREE BASEBALL SCHOOL DRAWS BOYS ON V-E DAY

Baseball minded youngsters yesterday celebrated V-E day by attending a baseball coaching school in the rear of the Guardian Angel orphanage, Devon and Dame navs., one of five such schools sponsored by the Chicago Sports association. The coaching staff was composed of former major, minor, and semi-pro stars.

Thomas J. Bowler, semi-pro and amateur baseball commissioner in Chicago and head of the staff, was assisted by Buck Weaver, former White Sox star; Steve Vrablik, Cub pitcher; Hugh Sweeney, Toledo first baseman; Joe Nagle, former Brooklyn and Cincinnati infielder; Walter Laskowski, Louisville catcher, and John Butler, Peoria shortstop. Tomorrow afternoon the school will be held in Sherman park, 53d st. and Racine av.

PITCHERS STAR AS PURDUE BEATS ATTERBURY, 14-1

Lafayette, Ind., May 8 [Special]—Camp Atterbury was limited to two hits as Purdue pounded out a 14 to 1 victory over the Soldiers this afternoon.

Only 13 batters faced Bob Buysse, Purdue's starting hurler who worked the first four innings without yielding a hit. Then Pitt Curtiss was touched for only two singles.

Jim Jennings, first baseman, paced Purdue's hitting attack with four hits, including a home run, triple, and double. Score:

Camp Atterbury	000	010	000	—1	3	1

HIGH OFFICIALS TELL CIVILIAN LIFE PROSPECT

Expect No Idleness Before Japs Fall

Washington, D. C., May 8 [Special]—Chairman Krug of the war production board headed a group of administration spokesmen today in describing government plans to rela war time controls and facilitate the shift back to civilian goods production on at least a limited scale.

Opinion was unanimous that war cutbacks would cause no unemployment problem prior to the defeat of Japan. Conflicting views were expressed by two high officials on the prospect for an early increase in tire supplies for passenger automobiles.

As the senate turned its attention to the reconversion problem, Krug testified at a closed session of the war investigating committee. Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.], committee chairman, announced later Krug had testified that with the coming of V-E day, "extensive plans" have been made to speed the war against Japan, and at the same time to provide for the release of substantial amounts of materials and facilities to effect a gradual conversion back to civilian production.

Questioned About Tools

It was also learned, however, that committee members questioned Krug regarding reports that 25 per cent of American machine tool production for the next year is to be sent to Russia under lend-lease. The senators asserted that with the war in Europe finished, the machine tools, considered necessary to aid reconversion of American industry, could not legally be sent to Russia under lend-lease. It was learned Krug was unable to answer the questions. Committee members said they will inquire into the reported post-war diversion of machine tools.

Carbon black supplies should be sufficient by June 1 to permit "capacity production" in the rubber industry, Harold G. Boeschenstein, WPB deputy vice chairman in charge of operations, told the war investigating committee.

Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] asked Boeschenstein if the WPB tire production estimate included 2 million civilian tires a month, as compared with the 1 million now being produced. The WPB official answered in the affirmative but did not indicate how soon this may be.

"Needs Exceed Production"

However, John Collyer, director of the WPB rubber program, told the industry, "it is clear military requirements directly related to the Pacific war, plus minimum tire needs to avoid breakdown of essential civilian transportation, far exceed current estimates of production for many months."

Other reconversion and post V-E day developments included:

1. Krug authorized aircraft manufacturers to build civilian transport planes for United States air lines if this does not interfere with military work. Employes assigned to commercial production cannot have protection from the draft, and those beyond reach of the draft must not be transferred if the shift will jeopardize filling military needs.

2. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation, said the peak of the shift of troops and equipment from Europe to the Pacific will put American land transportation to its most severe test of the war. He said the impact of this movement already was being felt.

3. The war department ordered a 10 per cent cut in heavy artillery ammunition production.

May Be Bigger Task

4. At a meeting of the senate war contracts subcommittee, attended by Krug, War Mobilizer Vinson, Gen. Somervell, and high ranking naval officers, it was agreed generally that no unemployment problem was likely before Japan is defeated, and that reconversion may be an even bigger task than mobilizing industry for war.

5. Price Administrator Bowles indicated continuance of rigid rationing and price controls. He said the coming year will be one of the most critical "in the fight against the disaster of inflation and the runaway prices which created such havoc following World War I."

6. At a house food committee hearing, Earl B. Wilson, sugar specialist with the Commodity Credit corporation, testified that "there unquestionably will be a sugar shortage thru 1946." He said the supply should be "sufficient" by 1947.

Business Gets Tax Aid Soon —Doughton

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—Demands for tax reduction, promises of speedy aid for business, and cautions against expectation of immediate broad reductions in general tax burdens were offered on Capitol hill today.

Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee said he expected measures to be taken soon to assist business, but denied any "justification" for expecting large reductions now in individual or corporation income levies. He implied he will convene the committee soon to study aids to business.

Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.], Republican tax leader, said, "I feel strongly that the present burdensome tax rates made necessary by the war should be eased as much as possible without delay." He did not propose individual tax relief until after defeat of Japan.

No General Tax Act

Doughton said no general tax reducing legislation will be written this year.

He said he hoped means could be provided for improving the cash position of business by stepping up payment of refunds and the maturity of certain post-war bonds held by industry, but added, "We've got to cut spending before we can cut taxes."

He did not go into details of tax proposals for immediate action, but the congressional tax staff has been at work for months planning adjustments. From statements on Capitol hill these appeared high among the proposals.

1. Setting of a definite date for abolition of the 95 per cent corporate excess profits tax. Doughton thinks this should end when Japan falls.

Propose Refund Bond Payment

2. Making readily available about 1½ billion dollars of excess profits post-war refund bonds for 1942-'43 in lump sums on a specified date, rather than by the present plan of paying in instalments.

3. Giving credits, on current tax payments, for additional excess taxes paid since 1943 rather than issuing bonds for future redemption.

4. Permitting corporations to estimate losses in advance and deduct their credits from current taxes, rather than claiming refunds after losses occur.

5. Encouragement to small business by increasing the excess profits exemption from $10,000 to $25,000.

SIMONDS SAW VOTES TO LIFT DIVIDEND RATE

Simonds Saw and Steel company yesterday increased the quarterly dividend rate on common stock to 50 cents and voted a payment of that amount. Previously 40 cents was paid. Amerex Holding corporation voted a semi-annual dividend of 50 cents. Previously the payment was 37½ cents.

Midland Oil corporation authorized a disbursement of 25 cents on $2 preferred stock to reduce arrearage to $14.25. General Shareholdings corporation will reduce arrearage on $6 preferred to $4.50 thru payment of a $1.50 dividend.

DEFROSTING DEVICE WARMS FROZEN FOOD QUICKLY AND SAFELY

New York, May 8 [Special]—A war time electronic development that can be turned to peace time use in the kitchen was disclosed today thru the announcement that high frequency heat can be used to defrost frozen foods quickly while preserving taste, texture, and nutritive value.

"In much the same way that a radio station transmits sound, this device 'broadcasts' a beam of electric heat thruout a solid block of frozen food, thawing it in minutes instead of hours or days," said H. W. Glib, director of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company's national bakery division.

Among the consumer devices predicted for early development is one to be used similarly to an electric toaster for defrosting packaged frozen foods. Another may be a quick-thaw attachment for zero storage boxes.

The new method of defrosting involves the use of an "oven" in which the frozen food is subjected to uniform electronic defrosting. In a recent test by Dr. William Cathcart, chief of the A. & P. bakery laboratories, 30 pound cartons of peaches soldily frozen and normally requiring 20 hours to defrost safely were thawed in less than 15 minutes.

AUTO INDUSTRY SPEEDS START OF CONVERSION

Remaining War Job Complicates Task

BY PHILIP HAMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., May 8—With victory won in Europe the motor industry today moved to speed limited output of civilian automobiles while meeting the heavy demands of the Japanese war. Most of the industry considers it more difficult to reconvert partly to peace time operations than it was to move all out into war production in 1941-'42, said a spokesman.

Many reasons exist for what may appear to be slowness of the giant industry from which the nation expects miracles to get back to making a product with which it is so familiar. A moderate number of new cars will not start rolling off assembly lines until late this year or early in 1946.

The roughly 6,000 parts that go into an automobile are made either by the car manufacturers or by the approximately 25,000 suppliers in 1,375 cities thruout the country Before cars can be made the operations of all must be synchronized.

Key Machinery Needed

But neither the car makers nor their suppliers have a free hand, nor are they likely to have until the Japanese war is won. The manufacturers must have some 50 million dollars worth of new key machines of which about a half are in prospect and they must regain possession of thousands of their old tools for reconditioning.

Before the manufacturers can regain their own machines or obtain government owned machinery no longer in war use they must obtain approval from numerous government agencies, each with its own regulations and procedure.

Among the more important groups which must pass on the release of materials, machines, and men to car production are the war production board, army, navy, army air forces, defense plant corporation, war man power commission, and the surplus war property administration.

Red Tape Poses Major Obstacle

The industry reports that cutting the red tape produced by each of these agencies is a major task. Some plants may deal with only several of these agencies, but some are involved with all. The 4,000 or 5,000 new key machines needed will be useless unless government control over 100,000 company owned machines is released. Many of these as well as government owned machinery have been made idle by cutbacks, and the auto industry is striving to get rules relaxed to permit civilian car production.

The machines most difficult to get include presses, cylinder boring equipment, special milling machines, special multiple drills, and gear cutting equipment. The aircraft industry, in which cutbacks are increasing, has a large amount of gear cutting equipment, but is said to be releasing little.

Expect to Use Ingenuity

The importance of suppliers is apparent when one realizes that failure of one to deliver an essential part can block the building of an auto—and that one supplier may be making something vital in the Japanese war. The manufacturers agree that the Japanese war must come first and in such cases expect to use their ingenuity to overcome problems.

The outlook for procuring steel and certain other materials is considered fair. However, the textile situation is rated critical because of the heavy military demand coupled with man power shortages at the mills. The auto manufacturers, like the tire industry, use large amounts of textiles for upholstery lining and other items.

Department Store Gain Since 1940

Increase in Sales of Federal Reserve Districts and in Leading Cities in the First Quarter of 1945 Compared with Same Period in 1940

Fair's Trade in 1944 Best for 20 Years

S. S. Kresge, chairman of the board of directors of The Fair, told stockholders at their annual meeting yesterday that the store's operations in 1944 were the most satisfactory in 20 years, and that this year's business is expected to be even better.

S. S. Kresge

He said no new outlets would be opened this year, but that the company would undertake a modernization and improvement program as soon as government restrictions on materials are revoked. Departmental expansions also are contemplated in various lines, including home appliances, Kresge said.

Departments Understaffed

Increased business this year also was predicted by Hector Suyker, president, who reported that The Fair's business in February and March was substantially ahead of last year despite continuing shortages of man power and merchandise. He said many lines of goods continue unavailable and that many departments are understaffed.

In response to a question from a stockholder, H. C. Baldwin, Detroit, a director who presided at the meeting, said the company was considering retiring the remaining 4,524 shares of outstanding 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

He said the company last year purchased and canceled 12,600 shares of this stock at $110 a share, and obtained and canceled 17,676 more thru an exchange for 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock plus $31.50 a share.

Stewart-Warner Earns $467,642

First quarter earnings of Stewart-Warner corporation were $467,642, or 37 cents a share, in the first quarter this year, James S. Knowlson, chairman and president, said at the annual meeting in Richmond, Va. Profit was determined after a provision of $250,000 for post-war plant rehabilitation and contingencies. No comparative figures for a year ago were available.

H. H. Neulle, president of Delaware and Hudson railroad, at the annual meeting in New York said that a merger of Albany and Susquehanna railroad and the D. & H. would assist any new financing the D. & H. may undertake.

National Tea Approves Preferred Stock Issue

Stockholders of the National Tea company authorized the management at a special meeting yesterday to issue 40,000 shares of $50 par 4¼ per cent cumulative preferred stock and to change the no par common stock to $10 par value. Proceeds from the sale of the preferred will be used to replenish working capital and place the company in a better position to finance modernization and expansion, officials said.

Radio Corp. Pays Final 35 Million on 'V' Loan

New York, May 8 (AP)—Radio Corporation of America today announced the liquidation of the 75 million dollar V-loan credit it arranged with 35 banks in September, 1942.

People and Events

Appointment of Capt. Edward L. Taylor as war contract department manager of Camfield Manufacturing company, Grand Haven, Mich., was announced yesterday by Russell W. Camfield, general manager. Recently discharged after three years with the army air transport command, Taylor will be general sales and advertising manager as soon as civilian production is permitted. The company is developing an automatic toaster as the first of its peace line of home electric appliances. Taylor formerly was associated with Shick, McGraw Electric, and Hurley Machine company in the Chicago area. Lawrence P. Glasner, also formerly with Schick in Chicago, was appointed assistant sales manager of Camfield.

M. J. Lanahan, Chicago automobile dealer, has been elected president of the Associated Employers of Illinois, the organization announced yesterday. Lanahan is a former president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association. Charles S. Craigmile of the Belden Manufacturing company was elected vice president; Carl A. Krause of the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing company, treasurer, and George H. Tompkins, secretary. Tompkins also is general manager of the organization.

Steel City bank, South Chicago, has elected as directors George Moeller, general sales manager of the Manchester Hosiery mills; T. K. Cushing, partner in Modern Homes company, and Robert F. Slaney, partner in the Wee Folks Laundry Service company.

Titus G. Le Clair, chief staff engineer of Commonwealth Edison company, will address the consulting engineers division of the Western Society of Engineers in the Chicago Engineers club tomorrow.

H. A. Bergdahl of the Sales Executives club and an officer of the Crane company will discuss post-war opportunities in selling tonight at the job finding forum of De Paul university.

Eldred D. Wolff has been appointed employment agent for the Milwaukee road to succeed P. M. Garvey who died recently.

RYE RECOVERS LARGE PART OF EARLY LOSSES

Rye future broke 1 to 4 cents a bushel at the opening yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade on an accumulation of selling orders, but support soon appeared and prices rallied rapidly to end ⅝ to 1⅛ cents lower. May rye which closed at $1.39¾ to $1.40 Monday was offered down to $1.36 and closed at $1.38⅜ to $1.38⅞.

Trading in other grains was relatively light and prices dipped fractions. Wheat closed ⅜ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. Corn lost ¼ to ⅜ and oats were ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. Active deliveries of barley closed unchanged.

Early selling slurry in rye was attributed to interests wishing to cash profits on an expected sharp V-E day opening rise which did not materialize. Trading dwindled later.

Mixed opinions were expressed by brokers as to the probable effect of the European peace on the price of American grain. Some expected the European demand for foodstuffs to be so vast that grains and many other commodities would advance materially if price ceilings were removed or lifted.

TRADE PARLEY, FOREIGN LOAN EASING ADVISED

House Group Asks Fewer Barriers

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—A congressional committee today proposed a post-war economic program coupled with an international conference to consider reduction or elimination of trade restrictions.

Rep. Colmer

The committee, created by the house to study economic policy and planning, said the program is intended to establish and maintain peaceful conditions thruout the world and provide "a high and expanding level of income and employment both at home and abroad." The committee, of which Rep. Colmer [D., Miss.] is chairman, has been working six months.

Indorses World Bank

Among its specific recommendations were the following:

1. The international bank for reconstruction and development, a part of the Bretton Woods international monetary agreements, "should be established as an operating agency as soon as practicable."

2. Resources of the Export-Import bank should be increased so it can make "developmental loans which would be beneficial to our international position."

3. The Johnson act, restricting loans to foreign nations in default on debts, should be repealed.

4. "A clear understanding concerning lend-lease obligations should be reached promptly after the war."

5. Exchange rates should be stabilized to create a balanced condition in each country's foreign exchange market.

Backs Monetary Fund

6. An international reserve of foreign currencies should be established to maintain exchange rates. [This proposal parallels the international monetary fund proposed in the Bretton Woods agreements.]

7. In cases where changes in the par values of currencies become necessary, they should be made thru an international agency rather than "by arbitrary unilateral action."

8. Certain business practices, such as the fixing of prices in world markets, division of markets, and export quotas, "should be forbidden by international convention."

9. Nonrestrictive private agreements for disseminating technical information, establishing quality standards, and similar purposes should be registered with an international organization.

10. An enlarged merchant marine should be maintained under the American flag as "essential for our national security."

Some Ship Subsidies Asked

11. Operating and construction subsidies should be paid for merchant vessels whose operation is essential for national security.

12. For shipping not considered essential for security, the comparative cost of rendering transportation service should be the determining factor and no subsidies should be paid for such shipping.

V-E Day Just Another Day on Exchanges

V-E day was just another day yesterday for most of the country's stock exchanges, commodity markets, and banks, altho some markets closed early.

The Board of Trade in Chicago and other grain markets closed at noon. The action was taken to meet personnel problems that developed on other grain markets because of celebration of V-E day. Traders in the grain pits at 11 a. m. observed a minute of silence for prayer, as they have daily since Pearl Harbor.

Observe Brief Silence

Two minutes of silence were observed by traders on the floor of the Chicago Stock exchange as the market opened at 9 a. m. Trading was quiet and turnover smaller than on Monday, when the German capitulation was announced.

The packing houses at the Chicago stock yards closed at 11 a. m. Volume was small and commission men, buyers, salesmen, and stock yard employes speeded trading to clear stock earlier than usual. This enabled some employes to leave work early.

The Chicago Mercantile exchange halted trading an hour early.

Banks Fully Staffed

Banks and brokerage houses were staffed fully and business was normal, altho one large loop bank reported a flurry in its war bond department where bonds were purchased to carry the V-E date.

Some banks permitted employes to leave early after speeded-up work was completed.

Altho a few celebrators gathered in Wall st. and paper was showered out of windows, the scene was tame compared with Monday's celebration and little spontaneity was shown.

PARLEY ON HARD COAL DEADLOCK CALLED BY ICKES

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes today asked anthracite miners and operators to meet him in Washington tomorrow morning. Hard coal mining has been halted a week because of the refusal of John L. Lewis' 72,000 United Mine workers to accede to a war labor board request to extend the wage contract which expired April 30.

Ickes, who also is solid fuels administrator, said he was responsible for coal production and wished to learn for himself the obstacle to a settlement. Contract negotiations have been under way in New York at the operators' and miners' joint conference.

Earlier Eckes had requested the disputants agree to extend the old contract while negotiating, with any wage adjustment retroactive to May 1.

PEACE STOCKS EXTEND RISE IN MIXED MARKET

Copper and Motor Issues Rally

New York, May 8 (AP)—Peace stocks extended recent advances on today's market, but war benefitted issues retreated and the close was irregular.

Prices slipped at the start. Coppers and motors rallied later and farm implements rose on indications manufacturing restrictions in this field would be removed. Some stocks declined in the final hour as reconversion apprehension persisted. Dealings were sluggish at intervals but transfers were 1,580,000 shares compared with 1,590,000 yesterday.

Stock Average Lower

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.1 at 65.1. Of 945 issues traded, 391 were down, 341 up and 213 unchanged.

At peaks for the year or longer with advances running to 2 points were J. I. Case, Oliver corporation, Hudson Motors, American Smelting, International Nickel, Certain-teed, Burroughs Adding and Hayes Manufacturing. Higher were New York Central, Lackawanna, Canadian Pacific, Eastman Kodak, Budd Manufacturing, Anaconda, Kennecott, General Motors, and Sears Roebuck.

Declining were Bethlehem, Santa Fe, International Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont, Johns-Manville, Douglas Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, Goodrich, and Chrysler.

BONDS ACTIVE AND HIGHER

New York, May 8 (AP)—Trading on the bond market was active today and sales rose to $15,090,000 from $14,120,000 yesterday. Much of the turnover was in low to medium priced rails. A single block of 2 million dollars of Seaboard Airline 4s, reorganization certificates, was traded in the final hour at 49¼, up ¼.

A dribble of selling among loans recently strong caused a few declines, but these were more than offset in most cases by robust gains of favored bonds.

Czechoslovakia 8s rose 15¼ points to 98. Denmark 4½s and 5½s were lower.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN

Prices were irregular in reduced turnover of 38,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most actively traded were General Motors, up ¼ to a 1945 peak of 70½; Middle West Corporation, up ⅛; Miller & Hart and Commonwealth Edison, both unchanged; and Chicago Corporation common, down ⅛. Butler Brothers climbed 1⅞ to 19¾.

SOUTHERN UNION GAS COMPANY

Notice of Stock Purchase Rights to Stockholders

Subject to the condition noted below, the Board of Directors has authorized the issuance and delivery to stockholders of record at close of business on May 10, 1945, of warrants entitling such stockholders or their assigns to purchase for One Dollar ($1.00) per share, payable in cash, one (1) additional share of common stock of Southern Union Gas Company, par value One Dollar ($1.00), for each ten (10) shares of such stock held of record on that date; provided, that no fractional share of stock will be issued. Stock Purchase Warrants to purchase one or more whole shares will be issued in the names of record stockholders subject to exercise or to assignment, and Stock Purchase Warrant Scrip for fractional shares will be issued in bearer form subject to transfer by delivery but exercisable only when accompanied by like scrip together representing the right to purchase one (1) full share. Warrants and scrip will be exercisable in the manner and time to be stated therein.

Persons receiving stock certificates of Southern Union Gas Company after the record date but at any time prior to expiration of the warrants and warrant scrip, against surrender of old stock certificates issued by other merging corporations [New Mexico Gas Company, New Mexico Eastern Gas Company or [old] Southern Union Gas Company], as provided in the Agreement of Merger and Consolidation dated September 2, 1942, will not be affected by the record date of May 10 as to stock so received, but will contemporaneously with their receipt of such stock receive warrants and/or scrip described above entitling them or their assigns to purchase for One Dollar ($1.00) per share, payable in cash, one (1) additional share for each ten (10) shares of stock so received.

The issuance and delivery of warrants and warrant scrip is conditional upon formal authorization by New Mexico Public Service Commission of the stock sale involved and upon approval by a majority in interest of the stockholders of an amendment to the Certificate of Incorporation increasing the number of authorized common shares from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000, such amendment to be acted upon at the annual meeting of stockholders to be held at Dallas, Texas, May 30, 1945. Following such authorization and approval warrants and warrant scrip will be mailed [on or about June 1, 1945] from the office of The Northern Trust Company, Transfer Agent, Chicago, Illinois, to stockholders of record on May 10. If not exercised the warrants and warrant scrip will expire approximately 30 days after mailing, the exact time of expiration to be stated therein.

Because these securities are believed to be exempt from registration they have not been registered, and it is not intended that they will be registered, with the Securities & Exchange Commission; but such exemption, if available, does not indicate that the securities have been either approved or disapproved by the Commission or that the Commission has considered the accuracy or completeness of the statements herein made.

Warrants and warrant scrip will be issued for the purchase of 96,115.8 shares of common stock (based upon the total number of such shares presently outstanding) and may be issued for the purchase of an additional number of shares not exceeding 1,799.8 (based upon the maximum number of additional shares possible to be issued hereafter against surrender of old stock certificates of the other merging corporations as set out above). Accordingly, the minimum number of additional shares subject to sale upon exercise of warrants and warrant scrip is 96,115, and the maximum is 97,915.

It is estimated that the expenses incurred and to be incurred in connection with the distribution of the warrants, warrant scrip and common stock, including cost of preparation and delivery thereof, will not exceed $4,800 or approximately 5 cents per share of common stock which may be sold upon exercise of the warrants and scrip. There will be no underwriting discounts or commissions.

The securities are being offered by and for the benefit of Southern Union Gas Company. The net proceeds from the securities will be added to the general funds of the Company and will be used for the improvement or maintenance of its service and/or for the construction, completion, extension or improvement of its facilities.

C. H. ZACHRY, President

Dallas, Texas, May 3, 1945.

NEW FINANCING TOPS 89 MILLION DOLLARS IN DAY

Pennsylvania Rail Bonds Sold to Equitable

More than 89 million dollars of bonds and stocks were sold, awarded to underwriters, or offered to investors yesterday. The securities included railroad, utility, industrial, and other issues.

Pennsylvania Railroad company sold to the Equitable Life Assurance society $52,981,000 of 3 per cent general mortgage bonds on a bid of 100. Halsey, Stuart & Co. bid 99.3899 for the same coupon. Equitable bid for its own account alone.

Awarded N. Y. Power Shares

A banking group headed by Harriman Ripley & Co. was awarded a new issue of 240,000 shares of New York Power and Light corporation 3.90 per cent preferred stock on a bid of $102.30 a share. Morgan Stanley & Co. and associates offered $102.75 for a 4 per cent dividend rate. The successful underwriters expect to reoffer the stock later this week at $104.

Allen & Co. and associates sold 200,000 shares of Graham-Paige Motors corporation 5 per cent convertible preferred stock at $25 a share. Proceeds will be used to pay off outstanding debt and replenish working capital.

Harzey, Stuart and other other underwriters were awarded $4,400,000 of Kansas, Oklahoma & Gulf railway first mortgage bonds on a bid of 99.059 for a 3¾ per cent interest rate, and reoffered them at 100½.

Offer Muter Stock Today

A secondary distribution of 80,000 shares May Department Stores company common stock was made at $36.50 by Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers.

Hicks & Price will offer today 108,000 shares of the common stock of the Muter company, Chicago, at $5 a share. Ninety thousand shares are from holdings of an officer and the others represent new financing by the company. Net proceeds of the latter will be used for working capital and expansion. The company manufactures radio parts and equipment.

A banking group headed by A. G. Becker & Co. will offer 25,643 shares of Ashland Oil & Refining company 4¼ per cent convertible preferred stock at $101.50. Proceeds will be used to increase crude oil production.

MONEY SCHEME TERMED WORLD SOCIALISM PLAN

Washington, D. C., May 8 (AP)—The Bretton Woods proposals for a world bank and stabilization fund were described today by a representative of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce as part of a scheme for a world "so-called 'planned economy,' or socialism."

Dr. V. Orval Watts, economic counsel for the Los Angeles group, told the house banking committee that rejection of the agreements would bring "measurably nearer" the day of "returning liberty, lasting prosperity, and peace." The United States is not in a position "to afford the luxury of supporting a world-wide RFC or WPA such as is contemplated in the Bretton Woods agreements," he said.

1,000 RAIL CARS HALTED, ROUTED TO WEST COAST

The railway division of the Chicago office of defense transportation yesterday announced that the railroads last week halted 1,000 eastbound freight cars and put into effect routing plans to Pacific ports in preparation for intensification of the Japanese war. The ODT did not say how the cars would be used or where they had been sidetracked.

W. F. Kirk, western ODT railroad director, is studying west coast ports and railroad yard facilities to determine the railroads' role in the Pacific war, the agency said.

Major Job Expected.

The carriers expect to have the job of transporting thousands of troops en route from Europe to the Pacific in addition to large quantities of supplies and equipment consigned to the Pacific theater.

Fred G. Gurley, president of the Santa Fe, said his road is prepared to handle the expected increase in passenger and freight traffic because an improvement program costing about 200 million dollars was started early in 1942.

He said the program was completed recently with the opening of a new bridge over the Colorado river at Topock, Ariz., and of diesel repair facilities at Winslow, Ariz., and Barstow, Cal.

New Locomotives Added

Santa Fe's diesel fleet includes 15 passenger, 68 freight and 124 switching engines, he said. The road also had added 30 "mountain type" and 25 Santa Fe type locomotives. It expects to receive soon 10 more freight diesels and 10 more switching diesels.

Other improvements include the extension of traffic control and communications, heavier rail on main line routes, and road bed rebuilding.

QUANTITY MEAT DISCOUNT FAVOR TO A. & P. TOLD

Danville, Ill., May 8 (AP)—Charles E. Martin, general sales manager of the Illinois Meat company, testified today his company had quantity discount agreements with the A. & P. food chain since 1940, but none with any other customer. He told Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley it had only advertising contracts with the chain at present.

The government introduced another group of exhibits to bring its total above 1,000 in the anti-trust suit against the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and 28 officers and subsidiaries.

Walter Jarmon of Brooklyn, N. Y., advertising and merchandising manager of Virginia Dare Extract company, testified his firm gave A. & P. a price of 37½ cents a dozen units on a beverage concentrate in direct sales in 1940, the same as to jobbers. It also sold to the chain at 45 cents a dozen less a 5 per cent advertising allowance, a credit which another witness said was not given to any other customer of Virginia Dare in his area.

MACHINE TOOLS SALE ATTENDED BY 2,400 BUYERS

Display of new machine tools and production equipment offered for sale was concluded at Springfield, Ill., yesterday by the Reconstruction Finance corporation after attracting approximately 2,400 buyers from 24 states, Peter I. Bukowski, manager of the Chicago RFC disposal agency, said. Most offers were made by companies in war work, said Bukowski, and these will receive first consideration in filling orders.

Some orders may not be filled because the navy requested withdrawal of certain items for use by Seabees at advance bases, he said. Results of the sale will be announced Friday. Results of a sale of used machine tools at Indianapolis will be available May 16, he said.

RECEIPTS OF ALL LIVE STOCK OFF, PRICES STEADY

Receipts at the Chicago stock yards yesterday were the smallest for a Tuesday in many years. The slump was nation-wide, with the 20 largest markets obtaining 26 per cent fewer cattle, hogs, and sheep than a week earlier.

Bidding was exceptionally brisk, and most offerings were sold early, resulting in a short trading session. Prices were mostly steady to strong.

Cattle receipts fell to 5,000 from 7,711 a week earlier for the smallest Tuesday volume since June. The hog supply was less than 8,000, compared with 12,305 a week earlier.

Lambs steadied after their sharp break Monday and some classes were strong.
